The soldier receiving a slight flesh wound from the new bullet fights no more that day; he calmly stretches himself on the ground and goes to sleep. The man receiving a serious wound suffers no agony, as the narcotic from the bullet is absorbed by his system, and he is insensible to pain before he reaches the hospital.

RURAL PROBLEMS

President Creelman Sees Need of Big Reforms

"There never was a time in the history of Canada when instruction was so much needed as right at the present moment," declared Dr. Creelman, President of Guelph Agricultural College. This was not because the education of the farmer had been neglected, he explained, but because of the rapidly-changing rural situation, involving new circumstances and new practices. The father was no longer able to properly teach the son; methods had been revolutionized since the father himself had learned his business. Wheat—so essentially "the crop" of former days that men used the expression "good as the wheat"—was almost displaced by more valuable farm products, such as alfalfa.

"In our college and on our experimental farms we have learned and proved enough to at least double the production in Ontario to-day," said Dr. Creelman, "yet we are not able to reach, as we should like to, the ordinary farmer with our knowledge. It is true that last year we had 5,000 farmers conducting experiments on their own farms, but it is also true that there are over 300,000 heads of families whom we reach only indirectly. What is the use of our proving certain facts in our colleges if we can't get them before the consideration of the man on the farm?"

How Ontario Compares

While Ontario was undoubtedly making a name in world-agriculture her farmers were not up to the standard of those of other lands in the matter of production, the speaker de

Reversing Motor Boats

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Peel and boil as many parsnips as required, cut in slices, spread each slice with a little butter, and pour over them a teacupful of sauce made by boiling two tablespoonfuls of flour with milk, a little butter, and pepper and salt to taste. Serve hot.

Barley Pudding

Put a breakfastcupful of pearl barley to soak in a pint of milk for one hour, then place in a saucepan, and simmer gently for an hour on the side of the stove, stirring occasionally to prevent burning, then turn into a basin, and when cool mix in thoroughly two whole eggs with a little ground cinnamon and sugar to taste. Pour into a well greased dish, and bake for three-quarters of an hour.

Creamed Haddock

Take a fresh haddock and fillet it. Butter a shallow dish, and put in the haddock. Squeeze the juice of half a lemon over it, add one ounce of butter, cut into small pieces, season with pepper and salt, and cover the dish. Bake for twenty minutes. Make a teacupful of white sauce, add to it the liquor in which the fish was cooked. Bring to the boil, pour over the fish, and serve. Garnish with slices of lemon.

Macaroni Balls

Boil two ounces of macaroni till tender, then cut into small pieces. Beat up the yolk of an egg, add an ounce of grated cheese, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir in the macaroni, and put the mixture into a saucepan. Stir well and cook for several minutes till the egg is quite set. Turn out when cold, flour the hands, and shape the mixture into balls. Egg and breadcrumb them and fry in boiling fat.

White Soup

Take six potatoes, three onions, four ounces of crushed tapioca, one pint and a half of milk, two quarts of water, and one ounce of butter. Cut up the potatoes and onions and place in the water, which must be boiling, and boil for three-quarters of an hour. Then rub through a sieve and put back into the pan. Add the butter and salt and pepper to taste. Boil for another half hour, add the milk, and allow to boil once more. Then serve.

Looked Poor, Was Rich

A miserably-clad woman was found by the police lying in the street in a Paris slum the other day. She was taken to the Charité Hospital, where $3,250 in notes and gold was found sewn inside her ragged skirt. The woman, Estelle Follet, sixty-eight years old, went out charing, and her neighbors believed her to be so poor that they had been in the habit of giving her presents of food and clothing.

Butterfly's Long Trip

Brilliantly colored butterflies or moths, three inches in length and brightly hued, are not common in Canada, and consequently some workmen in a Toronto lumber yard were surprised to see one of this kind fluttering around in a car. It was in with some ash lumber, which arrived from the Southern States, so that evidently it had traveled the distance from its native clime in a box car. It was three inches long and measured three and a half inches from tip to tip of the wings. The body was two and a half inches long and the wings were striped with grey, yellow, black and white.

No Standing Army

"I have never been an advocate of a permanent or standing army except for instructional purposes." These words did not come from the mouth of a critical Liberal, but from Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, in his speech on the Militia Estimates. He proceeded to tell a tale of work well done in the active militia, proving that he has justly earned the title of "The Soldier's Minister."

Speaking of the active militiai he said :—

"Coming now to the active militia, I may say that the active militia is divided into two classes, the permanent corps and the non-permanent, the permanent corps consisting of 3,021 officers and men and the non-permanent force consisting of 74,606 officers and men. We hear a great deal about militarism in Canada. I have never been an advocate of a permanent or standing army except for instructional purposes. I am reducing the permanent force. I inherited, in the permanent force, an army service corps which was in size 25 per cent of the army service corps that the whole of the British army has. I am reducing that. I am putting men in other employment, and I have made up my mind that I will not have a large number of men in our army service corps about the country."

Good-Bye, Old Backache Nerviline Will Fix You

Stiffness Is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it!

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully— it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

SATISFACTORY WASHING

To Get Best Results If You Wash Your Own Waists

A Flannel Blouse—Shred a piece of best curd soap in a pint of water, and boil till quite dissolved. Have ready basins of warm soft water, and in one make a good lather with the prepared soap. Wash the blouse by squeezing it between the hands. No rubbing. Then wring it out thoroughly, rinse repeatedly in the second water, and then once in clear cold water. Wring, shake out, and dry quickly, but not near a fire.

A Silk Blouse—Wash as above, but rinse in cold water in which you have mixed a teaspoonful of methylated spirit. This gives a gloss. To wring do not use the hands, but wrap in a dry towel, which press and beat. Iron, on the right side, while rather damp, for silk dries quickly.

A Cotton Blouse—Wash in the prepared soap and warm water, as before, but in making the soap add a teaspoonful of turps and ammonia. Don't rub soap on the blouse. Rinse in cold water, which may be doctored as follows if the colors need reviving: Add a teaspoonful of vinegar to revive reds and pinks; the same amount of ammonia for mauves; a lump of alum for blues; and a teaspoonful of pepper for greys or blacks and whites.

After the final rinsing and wringing, try, instead of ordinary starch, rice water. When the blouse is dry, damp it, roll up tightly in a towel, and leave for an hour. After this iron on the right side.

RECIPES CATALOGUED

A Business Contrivance That Is Very Useful In Housekeeping

Few women outside of business and academic circles realize the convenience of the card catalogue system. One energetic woman who had been a very successful secretary made an efficient housekeeper and homemaker because she remembered in her married life the devices that had helped her in business. She had a number of catalogues to indicate the state of her household supplies—linen, etc.—but the most interesting of all was her card catalogue cook book and menu index. It was just like a library catalogue, being composed of a couple of drawers in a little cabinet filled with cards on which were typed recipes. These cards were grouped under appropriate heads and made readily accessible through a number of guide cards headed, dinner soups, entrees, salads, meats and desserts. When faced with the problem, "What shall we have to eat to-day" she simply ran through her cards for the meal in question and often found the recipe for a dish she had quite forgotten about.

For use as a cook book this arrangement is much more convenient than the old book form. The collection of recipes grows rapidly, too, as it is so easy to paste on a card a newspaper clipping or a recipe from a household magazine, and slip the card into its proper place where it does not get lost, as loose papers have a habit of doing. The catalogue outfit is quite inexpensive and the utility of the scheme will certainly repay the original trouble of making.

THE CANADIAN "MOVIE"

An American visitor to Canada has made it his business to visit the moving picture shows in both the east and the west, and he has recorded his observations in a letter which appeared in the New York Times: "The moving pictures shown in Canadian cities, with few exceptions, are of American manufacture and depict scenes in the United States. Across the screen march our soldiers and over them waves the Stars and Stripes. It is that flag that flutters over many buildings and waves over many a battlefield. When, almost without exception, the hero dies for his flag it is the Red, White and Blue. And it is the men of Uncle Sam who arrive at the frontier post in time to save the hero and the heroine."

The events and scenes thus depicted are accorded varying receptions in different localities. "In Eastern Canada, I have seen such films received in silence or with audible expressions of disfavor. Not always is the disapproval a sign of ill-feeling. Once in Winnipeg when scene after scene from San Francisco to New York appeared, a man next to me turned to his companion. "Why don't they give us pictures of what is going on in England?" Now, that man was simply homesick. He had watched picture after picture and there was nothing of the happenings at home. In this respect the feeling that moves an Englishman is the same that would move a Swede lumber jack up in Michigan. Both simply want [illegible] scenes."

HIRING AN ESCORT

Chauffeurs Are Supplied Who Prove Agreeable Companions

Shopping, calling, and other friendly feminine activities, conducted on automobile for women, by women, and with women—such is the slogan of a unique business which was organized in New York. Suppose that you are spending a few weeks in town, or even that living there, you do not desire either to buy an automobile or trust to the vicarious delights of a taxicab. You simply telephone the secretary of this organization (a woman, of course), and specify the hour at which you wish to be met. An electric brougham will call for you, piloted by a college girl, who is in most cases a student at Barnard and who has been thoroughly trained in handling an electric in the traffic. She will take you to your destination and prove, if desired, rather a companion than a chauffeur on the way. This branch of the service is essentially for the daytime, and men are barred. There is an extension of it, which is, however, perhaps even more novel. If Milady wishes to go to the opera or the theatre and does not care to be without male protection, a perfectly good Columbia student, suitably togged cap-a-pie, will be supplied. He will not only guide her brougham but will act as escort at the entertainment, and for supper afterward if so desired. Even seats and flowers will be arranged for, if Milady wishes it. This kind of thing is rather expensive, the day service with college girl drivers costing $300 a month for a daily use of the car for an hour and a half.

Coin Causes Death

A child of three years, Walter Riley, Brixton, swallowed a halfpenny. He was removed to the hospital, but it was not until a month later that the coin could be removed. He died from bronchial pneumonia and exhaustion. At a city coroner's inquiry a verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

Only five children are on the register of Angton School, seven miles from Lancaster, one of the smallest schools in England. Recently an inspector found but two children present.

EFFECTS OF STARVATION

Individuals Suffer in Many Different Ways

Dr. Clara C. Benson of the department of household science of the University of Toronto, in an instructive and illustrative lecture before the Canadian Institute traced the development of the science of nutrition. The first experiments were carried out in the United States in 1890, and all the work done in the interests of the science of nutrition has been done since then, she said. She showed by means of lantern slides and charts the amount of proteins, fats carbonhydrates in the different foods, and the work each food performs in the body.

One very interesting and instructive investigation was that dealing with starvation, which showed how the process affected the person. The results showed that the subject required at first a decreasing amount of protein each day, which element was absorbed from the body of the subject from its own economy until the tenth day, after which a small but constant supply was necessary. The amount of heat given out by the body was shown to be equal to the amount of energy obtained from the food by burning it in oxygen. The proportion of food value extracted from the constituent parts of the body was the factor which determined the extent of life in the body deprived of food, and depended on the individual condition of each person. No definite figures could be given, as each body depended for its life on its ability to supply the constituents of bodily life from its own composition, which varied in the individual.

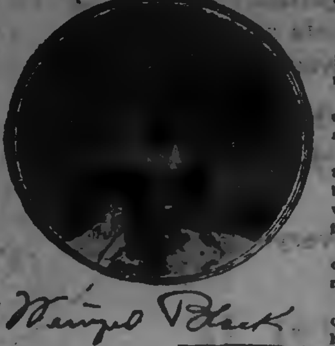
Tests of Human Nature Prove Us All Brothers

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1916, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

THE doctor told me another story this morning, from real life, as most of the doctor's stories are. He's a strange person that doctor of mine.

Sometimes I suspect that he is first of all a human being, then a man—and after that a doctor.

And somehow the more I think these things about him the more I want to believe what he has to say about the whooping cough and the grippe and the rest of the "professional" things.

"You see a lot of human nature, don't you doctor," said a friend of mine to the doctor this morning.

The doctor looked at my friend quizzically; then the twinkle in his eye went to sleep and he said very seriously, "Yes, I do—human nature is just about the finest thing there is, and the more I see it the better I like to be human."

My friend looked as if the doctor didn't quite understand, but somehow I believe he did.

"I'm a crank about it," said the doctor, "just crank enough to be always taking chances and having them come out just the way I hoped they would."

A Simple Experiment.

"This is one of my ways," he said. "I've tried it over fifty times in the last two weeks, and it's always fun for me.

"I'm down at the club late a good bit and there's seldom a night that some poor devil doesn't stop me and ask me for money for a night's lodging or for a meal, and sometimes for a drink.

"I keep a dime and a nickel in this particular pocket for this particular purpose.

"I always say the same thing to all the different people.

"'You've struck me at a bad time, my friend; this is every cent I've got in the world myself—maybe that's the reason I'm willing to share it with you.'

"I hold out my hand with the nickel and the dime in it and then I wait and see.

"And the man nine times out of ten takes the nickel and leaves me the dime. When he does that I give him the dime too, and wish him good luck—and we chat a minute or two together; he goes his way and I go mine, both of us the better for having met.

"The tenth time the man takes the dime and leaves me the nickel. Then I laugh and say, 'Well, old chap, you left me carfare, didn't you?' And usually the fellow has the grace to look ashamed of himself.

"And that isn't all. I have another scheme. It's a new one; all my friends said it was going to cost me a dollar a throw—but it hasn't cost me a cent that I didn't want it to—so far."

All of Us Beggars.

"When I want really to test a man who asks me for money in the street I say, 'I've only got a dollar, and I can't afford to give you that; just step down to the corner and change it for me, will you, like a good chap, and I'll give you a quarter when you get back.'

"I've done that thing seven times in the last three days, and the man has come back with the change every time. Do you blame me for believing in human nature after that?"

Life and death and suffering and endurance and hope and courage and love and devotion—all these things he sees every day of his life—when he makes his rounds, so he says. Can you blame him for liking to think about it—sometimes?

When we are very young we pray for beauty, and then we pray for love. Then we pray for success, and then we pray for happiness, and then we pray for money—what beggars we are and how we do try to wheedle all the change away from the generous hand—that gives so freely.

Youth, love, friendship, attainment, admiration, hope—we want them all—all—without giving back a particle of change.

I wonder sometimes if that is not why the generous hand draws back a little and we are left with nothing just because we were not thankful for part.

I'm glad the doctor told me his little story. I'm going to think about it a good deal.

It seems to me there's something in it.

By TEMPLE MANNING

IMAGINE yourself in a valley surrounded by mountains which tower far above the snow line. The grass at your feet ends in a purple band circling the lowlands and extending for some distance up the sides of the mountains; above this there is a wide band of scarlet; above that one of pink which, just before vegetation ends, merges in one of white. It is as if some master landscape gardener has been at work, for the bands of color are made by wild flowers.

It was not difficult for me to fancy myself in real fairyland when I first visited the little known Kulu district, away up in the Himalayas, about 40 miles from the railroad terminus. At first I could hardly credit the word of my guide that nature alone was responsible for the orderliness of these wide bands or beds of bloom. The character of the soil at the different elevations I found to be the real reason, of course.

On some of the "alps" I discovered the flowers so thick that a tent stake could not be driven without destroying them—anemones, columbines, fritillaries, geums, potentillas, iris, gentians and a host more. At one pass, where the watershed dividing the slopes was almost as steep as the roof of a house, a carpet of white and blue anemones was on one side and on the other was one of yellow anemones. Not a single flower strayed into its cousin's domain.

The Kulu people are intensely fond of their many colored land. All of the blooms, they say, were created for the enjoyment of man except two, which God made for his own delight. These are the narcissus bagetta and the primula rosea. This does not seem to prohibit the natives from converting them to their own use, however; there is no flower they wear more often than the narcissus.

The forests, which are almost regularly divided among the great flower beds, contain some of the finest cedars in the world. The English government is spending much money to protect these. Electrical storms do the most damage, whole rows of the magnificent trees being mown down by the lightning.

I was camping one night up the valley of Kulu when one of these terrific storms was raging. In the morning a man came to tell me that three persons had been struck by lightning a few miles higher up, asking my advice as to how to treat them. I accompanied him and found two men and a boy who had taken refuge under a huge tree, which had been struck. The man showed some signs of life and I dressed his fearful burns and advised that he be sent to the government hospital on the railroad. Several weeks later I had the pleasure of seeing him almost entirely recovered.

All of the many festivals of this race of people are distinguished by the lavish use of flowers. Their processions are veritable animated bouquets. At their fairs even the shaggy ponies collected for trade are bedecked with blossoms. The colors in the cloth they weave follow the idea of the mountain bands. They have, in effect, taken unto themselves and their life the spirit of the garden in which they live.

This region is far from inaccessible and should not be omitted from the itinerary of the traveler who appreciates the "different." If nature has not set for him a magic scene here, she has in no other spot on the globe.

"Home Worker Today an Artist

By ELEANOR AMES

WHEN considering an artistic career, how about taking up housework? It offers splendid chances for the development of an artistic temperament. One can be quite as artistic in ironing a shirt waist as in playing a sonata, and there is wonderful opportunity for the expression of art in house cleaning.

At least that is what Billie Burke says, and if any one in the world ought to know it is that very charming young woman, because she has actually done it.

To be sure she made her artistic triumph as a houseworker right out on the stage with all the illusion of a theatrical setting, but she says she became "letter perfect" by long rehearsals in her own home. In other words, she has always "dabbled" in housework enough to know how to do every branch of it, and she is convinced it offers excellent artistic possibilities.

"All work is pretty much what we make it," she told me. "If we are interested in what we are doing and determined to make good, no work will be entirely drudgery. I have no patience with the woman who feels herself above doing housework if the occasion demands her doing it. I have found that such women are usually incapable of doing the very tasks they despise.

"I am not denying there are lots of unpleasant things to be done in the daily routine of housework, but even they can be made to seem less dreadful if one is really competent and knows how to work.

"To begin with, I believe the woman who has housework to do should look upon it as a part of her life, her career, so to speak, and should go at it with a determination to make a success of her job. Haphazard housekeeping is expensive and unpleasant.

"Housekeeping should be reduced to a system and then it will be found comparatively easy. And the houseworker should take as much pride in accomplishing results as the artist does in painting a picture, or the actress in playing a difficult role.

"Housework is a most useful, ancient and honorable calling. It depends upon the worker whether it is artistic. I believe in going to college to learn how to do housework. By that I mean I am thoroughly in sympathy with the domestic science schools. They are helping a lot of women to find careers.

Polishing Furniture

Remember that too much furniture polish is just as bad for the furniture as too little. Only just enough is required to cover thinly the surface of clean furniture. The real secret of obtaining a high polish is to have a number of clean polishing cloths—old silk make nice finishing ones—also plenty of "elbow grease."

Holland Blinds

First of all brush the blinds to free them from dust. Then spread a blind on a table, lengthwise. Sprinkle it with clean sawdust, and go over it lightly with the palm of the hand, about half a yard of the blind at a time. Use fresh sawdust and rub it well in. When the whole of the blind is covered, polish with a clean cloth and that the blinds will be as clean as when new.

PUT another log on the fire, Peter, and draw the shades. My, how blustry the weather is becoming. There's almost snow in the air tonight."

"It was blowing cold when I came in," I said. "How's Dad?"

Mother's face lengthened a little.

"Well," she said, "his rheumatism is bothering him a little lately, but that's about all. Here, son, draw your chair up closer to the fire."

We talked a little of books and things. Mother and I know and like the same books and pictures, and after Mary's lack of interest in the things I like it is a little refreshing to have mother corroborate my viewpoint and talk enthusiastically of the things we both know. Tonight somehow we got on the subject of woman's susceptibility to good looks.

"Take Mary, for instance," I said. "If that gas man who was a robber and stole all her jewelry hadn't been good looking and attractive he'd never have gotten in. A red-haired man with freckles and a pug nose would have been halted in the kitchen and made to show his badge or die."

Mother laughed.

"Very likely," she said.

"That," I began in my high-handed way, "'s another one of the things I dislike about women. Jordon's wife just came home with wonderful tales of a naval officer she met. Said he was so clever and wonderfully magnetic, and a lot of rot like that, and Jordon says the plain truth of the matter is he's simply good-looking—nothing more. "Peter! Peter!" exclaimed mother. "You're saying just the sort of thing I've heard you criticise women for saying. You're gossiping, son."

I had the grace to blush.

Mother waited, then she artfully led me into ambush by a question.

"Women jurors!" I snorted. "It would never work, mother. Never! If the man was good looking, he'd be sure to get off—"

"Oh, Peter, Peter," said mother, with a twinkle in her kindly eyes. "Isn't that just an attribute of humanity—to admire beauty? Why blame it all on women? Isn't it a notorious fact that the more beautiful the prisoner the more sympathy and consideration she gets from a sober male jury?"

"Er—yes," I granted grudgingly. "I suppose it is."

"Doesn't the business man most often hire the best looking stenographer?"

"I've read so."

"Don't men give the pretty woman flattering consideration they never grant the homely one, no matter how meritorious she may be?"

"Help!" said I faintly. "You're right, mother."

"The whole trouble is, son, that men take an isolated case or so—always from the opposite sex—and they shrug and say, 'Pooh! women are fools. They do thus and so. It is an inherent weakness of the sex!' It isn't just a sex weakness. It's a weakness of the whole race of humanity. Men will always tell you that women gossip. They do, but so do men.

"Your father's boon companion, Lawyer Adams, comes in here once a week to play cards, and, Peter, his tongue fairly sparkles with gossip the whole evening through. You say that women are hoodwinked by good-looking men. Men are always hoodwinked by good-looking women. And there you are. Tests of Human Nature Prove Us All Brothers

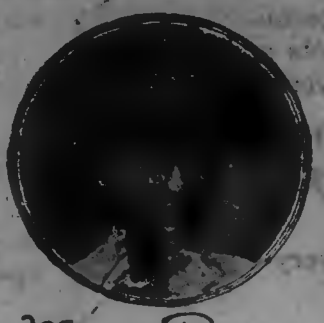
By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

THE doctor told me another story this morning, from real life, as most of the doctor's stories are. He's a strange person that doctor of mine.

Sometimes I suspect that he is first of all a human being, then a man—and after that a doctor.

And somehow the more I think these things about him the more I want to believe what he has to say about the whooping cough and the grippe and the rest of the "professional" things.

"You see a lot of human nature, don't you doctor," said a friend of mine to the doctor this morning.

The doctor looked at my friend quizzically; then the twinkle in his eye went to sleep and he said very seriously, "Yes, I do—human nature is just about the finest thing there is, and the more I see it the better I like to be human."

My friend looked as if the doctor didn't quite understand, but somehow I believe he did.

"I'm a crank about it," said the doctor, "just crank enough to be always taking chances and having them come out just the way I hoped they would."

A Simple Experiment.

"This is one of my ways," he said. "I've tried it over fifty times in the last two weeks, and it's always fun for me.

"I'm down at the club late a good bit and there's seldom a night that some poor devil doesn't stop me and ask me for money for a night's lodging or for a meal, and sometimes for a drink.

"I keep a dime and a nickel in this particular pocket for this particular purpose.

"I always say the same thing to all the different people.

"'You've struck me at a bad time, my friend; this is every cent I've got in the world myself—maybe that's the reason I'm willing to share it with you.'

"I hold out my hand with the nickel and the dime in it and then I wait and see.

"And the man nine times out of ten takes the nickel and leaves me the dime. When he does that I give him the dime too, and wish him good luck—and we chat a minute or two together; he goes his way and I go mine, both of us the better for having met.

"The tenth time the man takes the dime and leaves me the nickel. Then I laugh and say, 'Well, old chap, you left me carfare, didn't you?' And usually the fellow has the grace to look ashamed of himself.

"And that isn't all. I have another scheme. It's a new one; all my friends said it was going to cost me a dollar a throw—but it hasn't cost me a cent that I didn't want it to—so far."

All of Us Beggars.

"When I want really to test a man who asks me for money in the street I say, 'I've only got a dollar, and I can't afford to give you that; just step down to the corner and change it for me, will you, like a good chap, and I'll give you a quarter when you get back.'

"I've done that thing seven times in the last three days, and the man has come back with the change every time. Do you blame me for believing in human nature after that?"

Life and death and suffering and endurance and hope and courage and love and devotion—all these things he sees every day of his life—when he makes his rounds, so he says. Can you blame him for liking to think about it—sometimes?

When we are very young we pray for beauty, and then we pray for love. Then we pray for success, and then we pray for happiness, and then we pray for money—what beggars we are and how we do try to wheedle all the change away from the generous hand—that gives so freely.

Youth, love, friendship, attainment, admiration, hope—we want them all—all—without giving back a particle of change.

I wonder sometimes if that is not why the generous hand draws back a little and we are left with nothing, just because we were not thankful for part.

I'm glad the doctor told me his little story. I'm going to think about it a good deal.

It seems to me there's something in it.

Clears and Improves the Complexion

For twenty years a celebrated German scientist worked at this great puzzle seeking to find the secret of blood building. The vegetable constituents were brought from the four corners of the earth and so blended that a genuine blood and tissue builder was at last produced.

SANOL BLOOD BUILDER has proved a boon to mankind. The tired worn out mother in the home, with her daily round of domestic and social cares, the head of the family in office or workshop, the growing girl or boy during schooling period, at times need a body building medicine. Sanol Blood Builder supplies the blood with and incorporates into the organism of the human body that which it absolutely needs, the good results are marked and rapid.

Sanol Blood Builder, if taken according to the directions will stop the waste of the body, brighten the appetite, strengthen the system, rebuild the blood corpuscles, improve the complexion, brace the muscles and calm the brain.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4530, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Love

Love came at dawn, when all the world was fair,
When crimson glories, bloom and song were rife:
Love came at dawn when hope's wings fanned the air,
An murmured, "I am life."

Love came at even when the day was done,
When heart and brain were tired and slumber pressed;
Love came at eve, shut out the sinking sun,
And whispered, "I am rest."

LONDON'S CENSOR BOARD

Rejected But 22 Films Out of Over Seven Thousand Last Year

Twenty-two films out of 7,488 submitted to the British board of film censors were entirely rejected by G. A. Redford during last year, according to the report of the board.

Exception was taken to 166 films on various grounds, but many of them were eventually passed, after certain eliminations had been made. The grounds on which films were rejected included:

Indelicate or suggestive situations.
Indecent dancing.
Cruelty to animals.
Indelicate accessories in the staging.
Judicial executions.
Excessive drunkenness.
Native customs in foreign lands abhorrent to British ideas.

Since the inception of the board 7,628,931 feet of film have been examined.

Rapid Fire Gun

The Belgian army is experimenting with a rapid fire gun which can be carried on an aeroplane or used against one from the ground.

Eating Horse Meat

The per capita consumption of horse meat in the German city of Nuremberg last year was slightly more than nine-tenths of a pound.

Watertank as Dwelling

In eastern Pennsylvania an old railroad water tank has been converted into a comfortable dwelling for two families.

British Gas Consumers

The number of gas consumers in the United Kingdom increased at a rate of more than 500 a day last year.

New Stockings For Women

Stockings for women with pockets for valuables woven into the tops have been patented by a Pennsylvanian.

First Use of Asbestos

The first use of asbestos was in the manufacture of crematory robes for the ancient Romans.

A Pangolin, ant-eater with a covering like armor-plate, died of gastritis after a few days in the zoological gardens at Regent's Park, London. A peculiarity about the pangolin was that it never drank. It was the first specimen in the gardens since 1877. It was a quaint looking animal, completely armored with hard pointed scales.

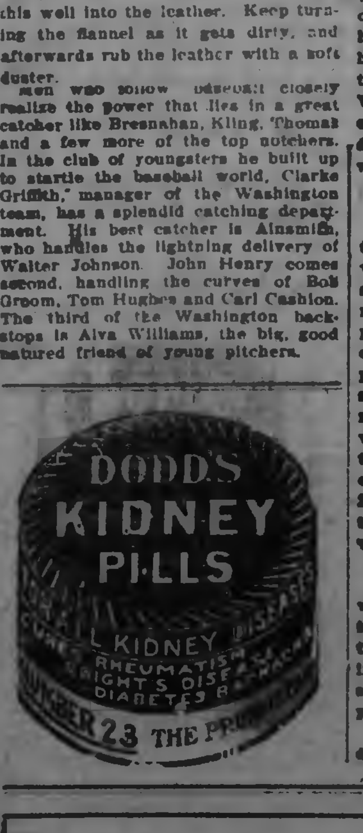
To Clean Matting

Try using bran for cleaning your matting. Tie the bran in a bag, dip the bag into clean, warm water, and rub the matting briskly with this. Then wash it off with a cloth wrung out of warm, salt water. This freshens it up beautifully.

Shabby Leather

Shabby leather chairs are very much improved by the following treatment: Take one pint of boiled linseed oil, stir in one pint of vinegar, and let it settle. When required, shake well and pour a little on a soft cloth. Rub this well into the leather. Keep turning the flannel as it gets dirty, and afterwards rub the leather with a soft duster.

Men who follow baseball closely realize the power that lies in a great catcher like Bresnahan, Kling, Thomas and a few more of the top notchers. In the club of youngsters he built up to startle the baseball world, Clarke Griffith, manager of the Washington team, has a splendid catching department. His best catcher is Ainsmith, who handles the lightning delivery of Walter Johnson. John Henry comes second, handling the curves of Bob Groom, Tom Hughes and Carl Cashion. The third of the Washington backstops is Alva Williams, the big, good natured friend of young pitchers.



Polishing Furniture

Remember that too much furniture polish is just as bad for the furniture as too little. Only just enough is required to cover thinly the surface of the furniture. The real secret of obtaining a high polish is to have a number of clean polishing cloths—old pieces of silk make nice finishing ones—and use plenty of "elbow grease."

Holland Blinds

First of all brush the blinds to free them from dust. Then spread a blind on the table, lengthwise. Sprinkle plentifully with clean sawdust, and go over it gently with the palm of the hand until about half a yard of the holland is covered. Use fresh sawdust to each piece, and rub it well in. When the whole of the blind is covered, brush it off and polish with a clean duster. You will find that the blinds will be as stiff and clean as when new.

Largest Hoist in the World

There is now building at Schenectady the largest electric hoist in the world. This hoist, which is to be installed in the Crown Mines at Johannesburg, is designed to raise 16,000 pounds of ore per trip from a depth of 3,450 feet at a speed of 3,500 feet per minute. The tare weight of the skip is 8,700 pounds, and the winding rope, which is 2 inches in diameter, weighs 614 pounds per 100 feet. The total weight of the winding motors excluding bearings and shafts, will be 284,000 pounds, and the maximum intermittent output from these machines will be 9,000 horsepower.

An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled. Exasperated beyond endurance, he finally put up a sign which read:

"If you must pincha da fruit, pincha da coconnut."

Handsome New Table at Armouries.

Y.M.C.A. Notes.

Considerable enthusiasm was evinced by a large number of young men who attended the meeting at the Y. in connection with the preparations for the four-day financial campaign which commences on the first of June.

Expensive Fireworks.

Havelock Standard: Two local young men found that they had to pay for their whistle, when summoned for exploding firecrackers on the street, and the expenditure of $3.50 each for the noise producers was the sad result. Just think what a lot of real fun they could have had for that $7.00.

A Live Wire Traveller.

Mr. S. F. Spong, of Ottawa, representing the Imperial Tobacco Co., was a guest at the Snowden House yesterday. Mr. Spong is certainly some little traveller. To hear him talk one would think that "Sweet Caporal," "Fatima," and brands he handles are the only thing in cigarettes. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Spong journeyed to the ball grounds to see that the "Sweet Caporal" score board was in proper condition.

Some Fishing.

Hastings Star: Fishing was good on Empire Day. Never was better. Did not hear of any lunge or bass being landed so no prosecutions will likely follow, but Charlie Graham, in rowing down from up the river landed a 25 pound pig which was swimming up the river against wind and current, making for Rice Lake. The little fellow was just at the railway bridge when landed and was pretty well winded. How far he swam is a mystery.

Wolf In Havelock.

Havelock Standard: A most unusual sight was witnessed at the West End on Friday evening of last week, when the spectacle of a huge wolf tearing down Concession street pursued by a pack of dogs caused eye witnesses to wonder if they were not "seeing things." The strange visitor had evidently been fleeing before the bush fires and had been frightened from the swamp near the West End by the dogs. The animal again sought refuge in the woods a short distance away and the dogs returned baffled.

She Fled With Wrong Man.

Lindsay Post: Chief of Police Short gathered in an eloping couple last night at six o'clock, and they are today, spending their honeymoon at the Grand Hotel under conditions vastly different than what they had anticipated. Chief Short received a message from Highland Grove asking him to trest a man named Chard and a woman named Mrs. Hammond who had eloped from that point and were apparently heading for Lindsay. Chief Short, as they alighted from the coach, requested them to accompany him to the police station and after explanations had been given as to why their dream of bliss had come to such an abrupt termination, Chard agreed to put up a sum of money as security rather than have himself and his partner spend the night in jail. Chief Short then sent word to the woman's husband at Highland Grove and he will probably arrive in Lindsay tonight.

Saddest Local Case!

Yesterday morning one of the saddest cases of destitution ever yet seen by Mr. George Cochrane, of the Children's Shelter, was in evidence. At a two story brick house, opposite Dr. Robinson's new theatre on Charlotte Street lives a grasswidow named Guerin. With her, up to yesterday resided her six children, aging from three to the eldest girl who was 16 last November. The house contained a stove, two kitchen chairs, one filthy mattress and a lot of rags. The children slept on a few rags on the floor. On the second story, in a bed room floor lay the family tea about a pound in weight. This was right beside a puddle of water from an overturned jug. The six children were bundled in a hack and taken to the Shelter by Mr. Cochrane and the local detectives. The steps leading to the second floor were decorated (?) by dried human filth. The mother, when the officers arrived was up town. On her arrival home, she did not show any marked symptoms of grief when her children were taken. The oldest girl was employed by the Bonner-Worth Co., but "fired" recently. In the rear is a big window, the glass from which was missing. Neighbors told the Times that drunken men come to the house and that a few nights ago a well dressed drunk fell through the window. The husband is supposed to be in St. Catharines. It seems that the family, in some way procured a key to the house and moved in without notifying its owner.

Montreal, May 28.—While engaging in a wrestling match with a friend last night Albert Houle, 19, of 59 Burnet Lane, became overheated and unconscious and died on the way to the General Hospital.

he Crippled Collier and the Government Boats Were Seen Circling About the Scene of Disaster in Search of Survivors or to Pick Up Bodies

Rimouski, May 29.—The following escription of the arrival here of the rvivors wounded and dead from the mpress of Ireland, is given by J. cWilliams, chief operator of the egraph station at Father Point:

"When daylight broke by the aid our telescopes we saw the Gov- ment steamers picking up the survors from nine lifeboats, while the torstad was also picking up people om the water. The Eureka was the st to arrive here, and she had 32 rvivors and several bodies. It also d a number of wounded. The scene the Eureka was most distressing. r. Walker of Montreal, C.P.R. Pasger Agent, who had only got off e ship a short while, took charge the handling of the survivors and ounded. He at once telephoned for dical assistance and ordered that telegrams and cables to relatives uld be paid for by the C.P.R.

"Among the survivors on the Lady elyn, which came in shortly afterrds, was Captain Kendall, who d been picked up while clinging to e wreckage by a lifeboat. Most the survivors were almost naked, l suffered acutely as there had been frost during the night.

"The Storstad came in after awhile, d disembarked the few passengers e had saved, and also some dead dies."

Sank in Ten Minutes.

Father Point, Que., May 29.—The press sank ten minutes after the llision with the collier Storstad d immediately after she had marnied out the "Save our ship," Mr. ite, the Marconi telegrapher here, tantly notified Government steam in view and the Eureka, Captain anger, was the first to get away, having her steam up. She must have reached the scene about 46 minutes after the disaster. The Lady Evelyn had to get up steam and also rushed to assist.

When daylight broke I saw on the grey horizon with the aid of telescope a collier, the two government steamers and nine lifeboats all around the same spot and shortly after the Eureka came by with 32 survivors and several bodies. Later the Lady Evelyn with Captain Kendall, and an hour later the Storstad with a few more bodies. All were landed at the Rimouski wharf, to where the scene has now shifted.

About 337 saved in all.

J. McWILLIAMS,

Many Died of Exposure.

Rimouski, May 29.—of the 350 survivors of the Empress of Ireland who were landed here this morning, 22 have since died from injuries and shock and exposure.

Of the 350, only 12 were women.

The Storstad is proceeding slowly, moving towards Quebec. She took a pilot on board at Father Point. Her bows are low down in the water and she is in a very damaged condition.

Story of a Survivor.

Rimouski, May 29.—Among the saved brought here are J. T. Black and Mrs. Black of Ottawa. Aroused from their beds by the noise of the collision Mr. and Mrs. Black rushed on deck. Seeing that the ship was sinking fast, Mr. Black did not hesitate, but jumped with his wife into the water, both being picked up later by a boat of the Lady Evelyn.

Another survivor is Mrs. Patton of Sherbrooke.

KING ASKS FULLEST NEWS OF DISASTER

Prince Alexander of Teck Also Shows Anxiety--Excitement in Liverpool.

London, May 29.—The press telegrams regarding the disaster to the Empress of Ireland were received at Buckingham Palace at the earliest possible moment, and the King before leaving for the "Oaks" day at the Epsom, desired that the fullest and latest information should be gathered. Prince Alexander of Teck made eager inquiries also directly the news became known.

In Liverpool sad scenes are taking place around the huge skyscraper where the C.P.R. offices are situated.

SISTERS ILLNESS CAUSES ESCAPE

Adjutant Maisey, of Toronto Broke Her Journey at Ottawa

Ottawa, May 29.—Adjutant Maisey, of Cowan avenue, Toronto, connected with the Toronto Salvation Army came on to Ottawa lately, but on account of a sister here being sick, did not go on to Quebec and sail on the Empress of Ireland yesterday. In this way she missed being with the band of the Salvation Army delegates and to-day talking over the disaster to the Empress expressed her gratitude at being so extremely lucky.

The Toronto lady says she thinks there were about 25 people in the Salvation Army party.

FAMOUS DANCER GIVES COMPLEXION SECRETS

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty...the wonderous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuosity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your drugstores keep these ingredients as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

STRONG MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF CANADIAN NORTHERN BILL

Measure is Given First Reading in the House Last Night --Hon Mr. Charlton Not in His Seat

Ottawa, Ont., May 29.—Three Liberal amendments to the Canadian Northern Railway agreement were passed by the House yesterday. The resolutions were finally passed and the bill, which is founded upon them, was introduced by Premier Borden. The second reading will be proceeded with to-day, and the debate will be over by the end of the week. Mr. W. F. Nickle voted against the Government in all three amendments. Mr. R. B. Bennett was not present in the House, but was paired with Mr. G. H. Burnham. Mr. W. F. Maclean voted with the Government on the amendment calling for equalization of freight rates on the C.N.R.

Majority of Forty.

The Government's majority stood at 44 on the first two divisions and at forty on the third division. Mr. W. F. Nickle, of Kingston, voted with the Liberals on the first two divisions, but was absent from the third. W. F. Maclean of South York voted with the Liberals on the third division. Mr. R. B. Bennett of Calgary, was not present during the day at all.

The burden of the debate from the Government standpoint has fallen thus far upon Mr. Borden and Hon. Arthur Meighen. Mr. Borden in the course of the debate made two exceptionally fine speeches in which he particularly emphasized the varied and contradictory nature of the Liberal policies put forward by different factions of the party opposite. Mr. Borden said he wondered how the leader of the Opposition could keep up with the political gyrations of his followers. He reminded Sir Wilfrid that in 1904 he had scoffed at public fad.

WHAT NEXT?

The speaker of the Senate, from his official chair in that chamber, opened the proceedings the other day by congratulating Canada and thanking the Pope on account of the creation of a Canadian Cardinal. Surely this is deliberately and unwarrantably introducing religion into politics. We all know that the Pope claims supremacy over all earthly powers. We all know that he actually curses the Protestant religion. To assume that such a man is doing honour to all Canada is to insult every Protestant in Canada deliberately. Is there any wonder that ill feeling is growing?

ANTI-TIPPING BILL GOT FINAL READING

Lateness of Season May Prevent Its Passage in the Lower House Now

Ottawa, May 29.—The Anti-Tipping Bill of Senator Davis, received a third reading in the Senate yesterday and will now be sent to the Commons for Consideration. Owing to the lateness of the session, it is doubtful whether the bill will pass the Lower House. The third reading passed the Senate without discussion.

Other bills passed by the Senate yesterday were the bill to increase the pay of several judges in Quebec and to provide for additional judges in Quebec and other Provinces. The Drydocks Subsidy Bill was also given a third reading. The bill to increase the number of members of Quebec Battlefields Commission also got a third reading.

Stratford Liberals last night decided on a candidate for N. Perth, and will make their choice known at Friday's convention.

SEAWEED UTILIZED

A Valuable Commodity Created From a Nuisance

Prince Edward Island, which became famous as a fox farming country, has extended its activities into another field. Business men of the Island were carried away with the phenomenal success of fox farming, which in some cases returned them 900%, while the average dividend reported by thirteen companies was 208%. These large returns from what is a unique and unusual enterprise led some of the more ambitious islanders to go into another untried field—the using of seaweed for commercial purposes. It is well known that seaweed is very largely used in furniture making, the dried product selling around $10 per ton. Companies were formed to put the business on a commercial basis. A gasoline-driven motor mower controlled from a motor boat cuts the seaweed which is then loaded into a scow, brought to the shore and dried in the sun. According to the optimistic promoters, the industry has an almost unlimited future and will be very profitable as they create a valuable commodity out of something which has heretofore been regarded as of no value and rather as a nuisance. It will be somewhat unique if Prince Edward Island makes as great a success out of seaweed as it has out of fox farming.

The Miner's Inch

On the Pacific coast, the unit for measuring water in mining is known as the miner's inch. This varies greatly in different localities, and is now generally defined by legislative enactment. In British Columbia, under the Water Clauses Consolidation Act, a miner's inch is declared to be a flow of water equal to 1.68 cubic feet per minute. Therefore, a miner's inch is equal to .028 cubic feet per second, and 1 cubic foot per second is equal to 35.71 miner's inches, approximately.

Volcano Growing Smaller

Professor Ricco states that the crest of Mt. Etna has lowered sixty-five feet on the south since 1868, and almost twice as much on the north. It is supposed that the top has been slowly blown away by the wind.

Girl barbers are growing in popularity in London and there is an increasing demand for them.

Teachers in Ontario receive a subsidy of $30 per year if they maintain a school garden.

Tropical Steamboats

Steamboats built in England for use on a tropical river are provided with pipes for spraying their cabin roofs with water to cool them by evaporation.

SAFETY IN THE STREETS

Don't hesitate when crossing a street. Keep going.

Don't step from a moving car. Wait until it stops and the motorist will stop.

Don't dodge to and fro if in danger. Stand still and the man in the auto will know which side to take.

Don't allow your children to run wild on the street. A little restraint exercised with children will avoid accidents.

Waste of Lumber

Enormous as is the amount of timber used in British Columbia, it is estimated that the annual growth is five times the annual lumber cut. It is figured also that seven times the amount of timber is going to waste through natural decay, fire and improper lumbering methods that is being used. In one year fire destroyed 160,000 acres, or about 200,000,000 feet of merchantable timber.

Western Hydro-Electric Power

In these days, when hydro-electric power is becoming so important a factor in industry, it is of interest to note that in the Western Provinces there are vast possibilities in this regard. In Manitoba there is water power which could produce 7,000,000 horse-power, and only 78,000 horse-power is being utilized. This is at Winnipeg, which has a municipally-owned hydro-electric plant, supplying light and power to consumers at cost.

THE MAPLE

This Tree is Very Important in Ontario's Industries

Maple is the most important hardwood used by Ontario's industries, over three-quarters of a billion feet [illegible] being used every year. The wood is [illegible] by manufacturers [illegible] soft maple.

Maple is a hard, stiff material, and its value [illegible] It is difficult to [illegible] and shrinks considerably and [illegible] badly; it is [illegible] perishable, but it does not warp or twist after being properly seasoned. The soft maple is slightly tougher but softer and lighter than hard maple, and is not used in very large quantities.

Accidental forms with the grain curled and contorted, known as curly maple and bird's-eye maple, are common and are highly prized for [illegible] work.

Maple does not grow in any quantity north of the [illegible] parallel in Ontario, and is practically confined to the basin of the Great Lakes. It seldom grows in pure stands like pine or spruce, and the quantity still standing would be difficult even to estimate. The material is used by twenty-eight industries, heading the list in six of them. The greatest quantities are used for hardwood flooring, wood distillation and furniture. For these purposes and for all others where strength and stiffness are not of paramount importance, birch could be substituted in many cases, and is being substituted more and more each year, as the [illegible] maple decreases.

The "Prison of Silence"

In this prison, called the "Prison of Silence," in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon, nearly everything that human ingenuity can suggest to terrify the prisoners is done. The corridors, piled tier on tier five storeys high, extend from a common centre like the spokes of a huge wheel.

The cells are narrow and tomb-like, and within each stands a coffin. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The silence is that of the grave. Once a day the cell doors are unlocked and the half a thousand wretches march out clothed in shrouds and with faces covered by masks, for it is part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenance of his fellow-prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than ten years.

Clean [illegible]

A new convenience for housewives is a long handled dust pan with a lid that opens automatically when it is placed on a floor, closing again as the pan is lifted.

Electricity in Foundries

An electric machine has been invented for preparing molding sand in foundries, breaking the lumps, separating the grains and leaving it cool, loose and clean.

Air-filled Clothing

A safety suit for aviators patented in England is covered with parachute like pockets and the entire garment can be inflated to break its wearer's fall.

A Big Ditch

The earth and rock taken out of the Panama canal would fill a tunnel 14 feet in diameter bored through the earth at the equator.

VELVET AND FUR A FAVORITE COMBINATION

Velvet has always been considered to be one of the richest and most becoming of fabrics, but formerly, owing to the fact that it soils easily, was not considered practical for general wear. Evening coats were made of it and once in awhile a suit, but this season it is being used widely. Manufacturers have outdone themselves to produce supple velvets both plain and brocaded, and the colors are entrancing. Of greater and greater importance grow the fur trimmings, the natural skins vieing with the rather fantastic looking dyed pelts. An old rose velvet suit, for instance, is trimmed with bands of old rose caracul, and to add to the effect a huge muff of the dyed fur accompanies the gown. This fad, however, seems to be gradually dying out as it offers such an opportunity for substituting poor skins, and the dyed furs are really not as attractive as the furs with their natural colors.

7166 is smartly fashioned of a brocaded velvet; the huge collar, the muff, also the band around the bottom of the skirt are of black fur. This coat may be made in size 36 with 5 yards of 42 inch velvet or material. A gracefully draped overskirt is a feature of the fascinating frock for afternoon shown in 7935. The wide hip sash of Roman stripes would liven the most somber of materials. One of the most attractive novelties being shown in the shops at the moment is the knitted sash of colored silks. They come in various widths and drape most beautifully.

To copy 7935 in size 36 requires 7½ yards of 36 inch material with ⅝ yard of banding.

The Problem of Cancer

The London Times has recently had a number of articles and letters dealing with various phases of this most pressing and interesting problem in modern medical science. The summing up of the whole discussion seems to be that, up to the present, nothing very definite is known as to the causes. We are assured that cancer is never contagious to any degree or in any way. And the consensus of opinion is that it is not hereditary. But we are told that any form of constant and chronic irritation on any spot tends to favor the onset of the disease, and we are reminded that large moles or warts upon the body often form the starting points of cancer. The early removal of all such growths is strongly advised. As to cure, the early use of the knife is the only satisfactory remedy up to date. Radium has cured cases of rodent ulcer, the least deadly of all cancers, but its power over other forms of the disease has proved very limited indeed. The special point that is emphasized by leading students of the disease is that the use of the knife for cancer must not be looked upon as a last resort. Taken early and operated upon thoroughly, cancer has been proved curable in an ever-growing number of cases, and this is the fact that ought to be brought home to the public as it has not been done before.

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago.

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if you rub on Nerviline. And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the grandest liniment the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

NEW WORDS

The English Language is Enriched Daily

Four new words are added to the English language every day, if we may accept the dictionaries as a standard of measurement. During the last three centuries the rate of growth of the dictionaries has been 1,500 words a year. All tongues have been materially enriched by advances in chemistry, botany, aviation, wireless telegraphy, and other sciences. There are now in fact 600,000 English words, but about one-quarter of this number are rare scientific terms or words that are obsolete or obsolescent. Not more than 25,000 are of Anglo-Saxon origin. An American, Mr. Gifford Pinchot, is a most prolific word inventor. He has introduced some thirty terms, most of them relating to forestry and logging. Mr. Roosevelt has added a number of terms to the vocabulary of natural history, and Sir Ernest Shackleton, the explorer, is another whose word coinage has been approved by the etymologists. English continues to be the most widely used language. There are now 160,000,000 persons who speak the tongue of Shakespeare.

Outdoor Art in Canada

After a sketching trip in Nova Scotia, Archibald Browne, a Canadian artist, said, "I am proud to be a Canadian. There is nothing in Europe that is finer than the Annapolis valley, if there is anything as fine. In fact there is no place in Canada that impressed me so favorably. I feel a touch of romance in that country, while from a craftsman's point of view the motives are varied and the color so charming as to be intoxicating in places. Painters do not need to leave Canada for material."

Telephone Muffler

A telephone muffler has been invented which is small enough to be installed on the ordinary desk telephone and which, it is claimed, affords the user the secrecy of a telephone booth. The telephone is made of aluminum and is therefore extremely light. When speaking into the muffler, the sound waves, together with the air expelled from the lungs go forward, and are carried through a spiral coil of aluminum. This is non-vibrating and effectually prevents a person standing near from overhearing the conversation.

Habits of the Salmon

Students of the habits of the salmon are beginning seriously to doubt the old assumption of a definite migration in the deep sea. It is now held more likely that there is something in the nature of a fallwise dispersal of young from the mouths of their native streams, and a reverse movement as spawning time approaches. It has been discovered that all species of salmon feed off the coast of Vancouver Island upon a small shrimp-like crustacean that floats in incredible numbers on the tides.

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

What the Pantry Held In an Unhygienic Day

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

POOR little Baby Wiley! He's more than 20 months old and he can talk English and Latin, and he's never had a single thing to eat but milk and cooked grains.

Furthermore, he's never going to have anything to eat that isn't in a perfectly good, scientific diet card.

When he's 24 months old he's going to have boiled this; when he's 28 months old he's going to have steamed that, and when he's 36 months old he's going to have stewed the-other-thing.

Never anything that isn't hygienic—not a thing too much or a bite too little, or a cookie, or a doughnut, or a dish of strawberries drowned in rich yellow cream, or a crumbly cake just hot out of the oven—oh, horrors, none of these things at all.

They're all deleterious. How did we ever live through them, you and I?

Do you remember when you used to come home from school a good, brisk day in November and rush into the pantry and grab a handful of doughnuts out of the old gray crock with a blue spreadeagle on the side of it, or a half-dozen cookies from the big yellow bowl with the tin cover on it?

I can smell that cupboard to this day, can't you?

Doughnuts—not the rubbery old raised things they call doughnuts when they try to sell them to you at the bakery—but real doughnuts, little and round and sweet and brown.

What the Pantry Held.

And those cookies, great, big, soft, rich, crumbly fellows, ginger mostly. You take one of those cookies and a bit of good yellow cheese—well, life was worth living in those days.

Gingerbread, too, big, rich, hot squares of it. Beg for a glass of buttermilk and sit down in the kitchen with your feet in the oven—ouch, how that frost did bite along in November—and who so happy as you or me?

There was always pie in the pantry—pumpkin or apple or custard or, oh, joy of joys, mince!

Pickles, too. What's happened to all the pickles? Nobody seems to eat them any more.

Lady cake, made with the whites of eggs—just for lunch—and one, two, three, four cake—pshaw! you needn't think I'm just pretending. I believe I'll step out into the kitchen and stir up a one, two, three, four cake and have it fresh when the children come home from school this very day.

Let's see: One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, three cups of flour and four eggs. Yes, that's the reason they call it one, two, three, four cake.

I don't see why I shouldn't have the fun of making it if I want to; it's lots more exciting than playing bridge.

First, you cream the butter—I don't suppose there's a good, big yellow bowl in this house! You cream that good, yellow butter and the nice, friendly granulated sugar—and you cream them, and cream them, and cream them, and keep on creaming them till they're so good that it's all you can do to keep from eating the cream right then and there.

And then you sift in your flour—oh, yes, there's the baking powder, you want plenty of that, but not too much, or it will make the cake dry—and then you break the eggs.

When the Youngsters Come.

You could always tell when the Marshes were going to have company. Mrs. Marsh always came out on the back porch to beat the eggs, and there was a cake she made with eight eggs in it. Her wrist would be lame all the morning after the cake was in the oven.

No, you don't have to have frosting on a one, two, three, four cake; it's good enough without that.

When those blessed youngsters come skipping home from school, there that cake will be on the kitchen table, with a knife beside it, and three unregenerate, unhygienic, unscientific persons are going to eat it right straight up then and there, with a glass of buttermilk to wash it down.

Spoil our dinner? Don't you worry; our dinner will be all right and so will we.

Poor little Baby Wiley. Some day I suppose he'll grow up and be awfully sorry for us because we're all so far behind him in all the things of life that really count—Latin and Greek and ancient history, and food values and rules of hygiene.

Where's the egg beater? Who hid the big white wooden spoon? There's the yellow bowl, saved over from the flood—hurrah for one, two, three, four cake and an unhygienic spree!

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

A pinch of salt added to mustard helps to prevent it from drying or caking.

To make the gas burn brightly, a little salt should be sprinkled over the top of the mantle. This should be done when the gas is burning.

If your oven will not brown your pastry as well as you would like, put the cakes or tarts on the upper tray, and throw a little sugar on the floor of the oven.

Striped sandwiches are attractive and may be filled with whatever one pleases. White bread and brown bread are cut thin and placed in alternating layers. It is then wrapped in a dampened cloth and placed under a weight over night. Then the pressed layer may be cut in narrow strips.

Saucepans that have been burnt should never be filled with soda water, for although this removes the burnt portion, it also makes the saucepan liable to burn again the next time it is used. Instead of doing this fill it with salt water, and then bring it slowly to the boil. The burnt particles will then come off without any difficulty.

To turn a jelly out of a mould without breaking it, try rubbing a very little of the best olive oil on the shape before pouring in the jelly.

Always put a cauliflower in plain water so as to draw out any insects. If salt is placed in the water it kills the insects, and they are left in the vegetable.

To free the hands from disagreeable odors such as that of onions, cod-liver oil, etc., mix a little ground dry mustard with warm water and wash well with it. The vessels used in cooking can be freed from odors by the same method.

Before frying bacon, it is a good plan to put the rashers into boiling water for two or three minutes. They plump out to twice their ordinary thickness, and all chance is removed of their being too salt.

Teacups, no matter how carefully they are washed and dried, sometimes get dark stains at the bottom. These are caused by the action of the tannin in the tea. Salt, slightly moistened, will remove these stains, but in the case of very fine china, it is wiser to use powdered whiting instead, as salt might scratch the china.

WORDS of WISE MEN

Hail, social life! into thy pleasing bounds I come to pay the common stock, my share of service, and, in glad return, to taste thy comforts, thy protected joys.—Thomson.

He is a great simpleton who imagines that the chief power of wealth is to supply wants. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it creates more wants than it supplies.—Anon.

Think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, what people think of you, and then to you nothing will be pure.—C. Kingsley.

Poverty is very terrible, and sometimes kills the very soul within us; but it is the north wind that lashes men into Vikings; it is the soft, luscious south wind which lulls them to lotus dreams.—Ouida.

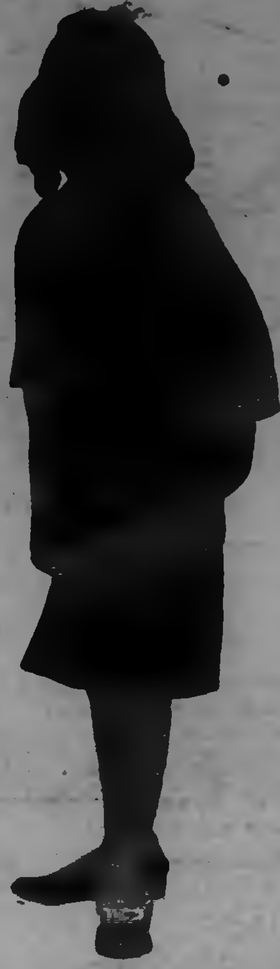
Each man in his sphere, however narrow or extended, will find that his fellow-men weigh his character and his abilities often, and unconsciously stamp him with their estimate; and that the average resultant of these frequent averages is just.—E. Pierrepont.

It may, indeed, be said that sympathy exists in all minds, as Faraday has discovered that magnetism exists in all metals; but a certain temperature is required to develop the hidden property, whether in the metal or the mind.—Bulwer.

One day when D'Alembert and Condorcet were dining with Voltaire, they proposed to converse on atheism; but Voltaire stopped them at once. "Wait," said he, "till my servants have withdrawn; I do not wish to have my throat cut tonight."—G. L. Cheever.

"PLAY TIME" WITH A "STARLET"

What Life Means to a "Child Wonder" Who Still Plays With Dolls.



JOYCE FAIR
Of "The Dummy" Company

By ELEANOR AMES

IT is somewhat disquieting to face an "angel child" of 11 years who is a leading theatrical "starlet," as she is affectionately termed, and hear her expound views on all subjects of the day in which grown-ups are interested in one breath, and tell you about her newest pet doll in the next. Few of us have the lightning change mentality which enables us gracefully to follow the workings of the mind of such a prodigy.

So when I faced Joyce Fair, who has leaped into stardom in one bound, whose acting in "The Dummy" has won her fame in dramatic circles, whose charming face smiles or frowns or weeps in the entire gamut of moods in many film pictures, I felt decidedly ill at ease.

Miss Fair was perfectly poised. Moreover, she was "dreadfully busy." She was putting the finishing touches to a new taffeta frock for Henrietta, her favorite doll, named for her ideal actress, Henrietta Crosman, and it was a problem in her mind whether to have the tunic long and plain or knife pleated.

"You know they are wearing knife pleats if the figure is slender enough to warrant it," she said, as she threaded her needle and stuck it on the side of her dress while she pinned the goods together, "and Henrietta is certainly slender. Still, there is something very graceful about the long plain tunic, don't you think?"

Joyce is as attractive as she is clever. And her cleverness includes proficiency as a pianist, a voice of power and sweetness, dancing grace and agility, which have won her a dozen or more silver trophies, and unquestionable dramatic ability.

"So many of my girl friends don't care for dolls," continued Miss Fair, "and I think they miss so much. Some very noted woman said little girls should not be allowed to play with dolls. She said it was foolish. I disagree with her. I am sure she could not have been a happy child if she didn't care for dolls. It seems so—what is that word I want?—il—il—oh yes, illogical, to have schools to train young women to be mothers and then take dolls away from little girls. Now don't you think so?"

Miss Fair goes to school through Uncle Sam's letter carriers when she is out of New York. Her lessons are sent her from her school, St. Agnes's Chapel, New York city, and her mother hears her recits.

"Education is very necessary for success," she said, "and I am determined to be a lasting success. You see, I have been on the stage for the past three years, and I have only just begun to arrive. It's always playtime with me in the theatre, though.

"Do you like cake? I have a most gorgeous marshmallow cake which was sent me, and I'll give you some. I adore cake. I want to learn to make all kinds. I think cooking is great fun. You ought to eat some of my fudge.

"Did you ever hear that sleeping with your fingers laid straight out would make them grow long and slender? Some one told me so. I am very anxious to have my fingers long and slender. They are so much more artistic. I want to be a real artistic success some time.

"I have always made up my mind to do each thing I do a little better than anything else I have ever done. I like actresses that are perfectly natural on the stage and that speak so one can understand them. Some persons both on the stage and off think it is proper to speak so that no one knows what they are saying. They think that will make them appear very clever and important.

"They are wrong. All the very great persons I have met, and I have known quite a few, are very natural. I am sure Mme. Bernhardt is natural. If you really have genius I don't think you have to put on airs in order to impress people. Do you?"

She held the tunic at arm's length and regarded it with her pretty head on one side and squinted one bright eye at the effect.

"That's a pretty good line," she remarked with grave decision.

"Oh, let me tell you a funny joke. It is an epigram, I think you would call it. 'If the lines of a play and the lines of a gown are good, it is up to the actress to make a hit.' A clever critic told me that. I shall remember it. Everything good I hear I try to remember. You never know when it will be useful. You know, we can't learn too much."

Great Novels in a Nutshell

Sir Walter Scott's
THE BRIDE OF LAMMERMOOR

Condensed by
HELEN S. GRAY

THE scene of this book is laid in southeastern Scotland, near the English border at the close of the 17th and the beginning of the 18th century. In the revolution in England that removed James II. from the throne and made William and Mary sovereigns, Lord Ravenswood espoused the losing side, for which he was deprived of his title. He was much in debt, and became involved in various financial deals with a crafty lawyer, Sir William Ashton, who finally got possession of his estate in the mountains of Lammermoor. He continued to contest the claims of Sir William, who had managed to get himself appointed lord keeper, but one after another they were decided in favor of his enemy, and Lord Ravenswood finally died in a violent fit of fury.

Sir William had a beautiful daughter, Lucy. He was walking with her one day in the woods and was pursued by one of a herd of wild cattle. Lucy fainted. Her father was powerless to defend either her or himself. Just then a shot laid the animal low, and the son of Lord Ravenswood stepped forth and introduced himself.

Not long after this episode a deer hunt was held near young Ravenswood's tower, which was built on crags and almost surrounded by the North sea. This was all that remained to him of his ancestral property.

A thunder storm came up, and Lucy and her father, who were at the hunt, were obliged to seek refuge there and remain over night. This was embarrassing to the owner and to his old family servant, Caleb, as there was very little furniture in the place, and nothing for a company meal. Caleb tried to conceal the poverty to which the family was reduced by telling elaborate lies. To supply the table he stole some game that was roasting in front of a neighbor's fire. The lord keeper welcomed this opportunity to try to conciliate his enemy's son and compromise matters with him, as he dreaded lest a political upheaval should place Ravenswood's friends in power and his claim would be reversed by appeal to the English Parliament.

The Master of Ravenswood, as he was still called by courtesy, fell in love with Lucy, notwithstanding she was the daughter of his father's enemy, and accepted Sir William's invitation to visit him. Caleb was much agitated when he was told, and begged him not to go, as an old prophecy warned against it. While there he and Lucy became secretly engaged.

Meantime Lady Ashton, who was absent on a visit, arranged a match for her daughter that would help her oldest son get a seat in Parliament. When word reached her that Ravenswood was staying in her house and courting Lucy she was furious and returned with all speed. Simultaneously, travelling in great state with a large retinue of liveried servants, arrived the Marquis of A——. He was a relative of Ravenswood whom, as likely soon to rule political ascendancy, the lord keeper was anxious to conciliate, and had invited to his castle. Lady Ashton was a haughty, domineering, implacable woman. She dismissed Ravenswood forthwith.

To the marquis she was a little more polite. He left the next morning and joined Ravenswood, to whom he confided that he wanted him to spend several months on the continent as his envoy on important business. As Wolf's Crag tower was nearby he expressed a desire to visit it. A messenger was dispatched to notify Caleb. Unwilling again to submit to the mortification of entertaining strangers, Caleb built a big bonfire and then met the marquis's party, who, meantime, had seen the flames, with the news that the tower had burned up. Thus he succeeded in getting them to put up at the village.

Ravenswood was detained a year. He and Lucy wrote to each other, but her mother intercepted the letters. Interested friends said they had heard he was about to marry a foreign lady. Lucy's health failed. She finally wrote to her lover demanding to know whether he intended to abide by his engagement or wanted to be released. This she succeeded in sending by a messenger she knew beyond doubt she could trust. When no reply came, she was compelled by her mother to sign a marriage contract with Mr. Hayston. He had no idea how Lucy felt in the matter, as Lady Ashton remained in the room on the few occasions when he saw her. Just as Lucy had affixed her name to the papers Ravenswood arrived. Lady Ashton insisted on remaining in the room during his interview with Lucy.

Lucy was in a state of collapse. Her mother pushed forward the wedding preparation, and Lucy was married to Hayston. That night, while the guests danced in the big hall, Lucy's mind, which had weakened under the severe strain she had been subjected to by her mother, gave way and she stabbed her husband. He recovered, but she never regained her reason and died a week or two later.

Love of Gold.

Gobang—Do you believe that love ever caused any one's death?

Ukerdek—Certainly. Many men have been married for their money.

He—I can't see why you married me.
She—That's what all my friends say.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Dread Camp Diseases Pay War's Heaviest Toll

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

ONCE more into the breach, dear friends, once more. Close the wall up with the dead and wounded. In peace there's nothing so becomes a man as modest stillness and humility.

But when the blast of war blows in your face, you imitate the action of the tiger, you stiffen the sinews and summon up the blood.

To the shame of nations, there is the imminent death of twenty thousand men who, for a trick, a phantasy, a thought, go to their graves like beds. They fight for a contention which they cannot decide, which they cannot try.

The health dangers of war are many more than those of death and bullets. Gaunt disease stalks the land of the conquerors as well as the conquered. Grim fever, wan and wasted frames, dysenteries, tropical maladies, emaciated frames, a large legion of sick, wounded, widowed and orphaned individuals remain as eternal signs of war's curb to efficiency, progress and health.

Nor love, nor honor, wealth nor power,
Can give the heart a cheerful hour
When health is lost. Be timely wise.
With health all taste of pleasure flies.

Health and competency are the handmaids of peace. Disease and incompetency are linked with war. Once Mars lifts his heavy hand over the land it behooves each individual to double all precautions against the terrible distempers of conflicts on sea and land.

War is an artificial plague of man invented to scourge his own iniquities. Not alone the soldier in the field is punished with wounds and the ailments of its kind; but the venomous dangers of foul water, polluted, tropical soils, close contact with bugs, vermin, animals and strange nations, inoculate him with maladies hitherto unheralded and unsung.

Even the crystal-pointed tents, spread so picturesquely from hill to hill, from vale to vale, magical white cities of tents, guidons, bannerols as from an Aladdin's dream, carry a lurking danger of yellow Jack, typhus, tropical dysentery, pernicious malaria, and other infections which maim and halt phalanx on phalanx of those who may even escape a battle.

Each returning officer and private, though he escape death and lockjaw from the cannon's mouth, blood poisoning and fevers from his wounds, may turn out to be a person like Typhoid Mary, Diphtheria Dan or Scarletina John—sources of contagion to some they meet.

What boots the oft repeated tale of strife,
The feast of vultures, and the waste of life!
The varying fortunes of each separate field,
The fierce that vanquish and the faint that yield?
The smoking ruin and the crumbling wall?
In this the struggle is the same with all.

Answers to Health Questions

Miss L. E. C.—Can you give me a cure for sweating under the arms?

Use vinegar and peroxide at night. One and one-half teaspoonfuls of formalin in two glasses of water is a good mixture.

Mrs. M. S. C.—What is a good eye tonic?

Go to an eye dispensary and wear proper glasses.

M. H. W.—Can you tell me some cure for a small goitre.

To ignore it is the best treatment. Goitres rarely cause trouble, and almost one woman in every three has one without knowing it.

P. W. P.—Some days ago I wrote you with stamped envelope enclosed about lactic acid bacilli and calcium lactate and no reply has arrived yet.

The delays are due to the fact that I personally answer each of the thousands of letters that arrive. Please bide a bit.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am only 17 years old and am tormented by an old man who wants to marry me. As he is a friend to my people I don't want to insult him, but I just want to get rid of him in some kind way. I am in a house alone all the evening when he calls.

SEVENTEEN.

DEAR SEVENTEEN, If you don't like the man get rid of him and get rid of him now, today, this very hour.

What is it you are trying to tell me about that old man, little Seventeen. Somehow I seem to read it between the lines of your letter. And I don't like the old man. I don't like him at all.

He's going to make you trouble just as sure as the world, or he wouldn't bother you the way he does.

The first duty that a girl owes to herself is self-protection. A young man may be dangerous to your happiness; an old man is dangerous without any maybe in the sentence at all.

Don't be at home when he calls. Don't answer his letters if he writes. Don't let him get you into his net, little fly.

The Good Night Story

The Rose King's Mistake—By Vernon Merry

THE Rose King called a meeting of all his flower subjects in the Beautiful Garden behind the Stone Walls one morning. Little creepers ran about here and there telling the awakening flowers, so, by the time the Sun was peeping over the tops of the willows, all were dressed up and ready.

"I have been thinking and thinking and thinking a great deal," the Rose King said, when all were gathered about him. "Sometimes at night, when the gardener does not cover us up, we get chilly and cannot sleep well. Sometimes the old Wind is in a bad humor and blows cold. Sometimes it rains big drops that are icy and they hurt us. Why cannot we have sunshine all the time?

"We can. We have been too good to the Sun Beams when they come to play in the garden. Of course, they have been paying us with warmth and light, but is this not the most beautiful garden in the world? And are we not the most beautiful flowers? We are not charging them enough for the privilege of visiting us.

"Now, when they come today each of you pick out a Beam and, just before the Sun goes to bed, close your petals over it so that it cannot get away. When Night comes it will be glad to stay with you, for then it will be too dark for it to find its way home. Perhaps, if you treat it kindly, it will not care to return home any more."

"That is a wonderful idea!" cried all the flowers.

"It cannot be done," whispered a little Zephyr to the Rose King.

"It can," retorted the King, growing very red and angry. "I'll show you who is the boss of this garden."

By and by came the jolly yellow Sun Beams, tumbling over each other down the shafts of light.

"Good morning! Good morning!" they cried to the flowers, alighting and giving each a warm sip from their magic Sun cups. "Is not everything beautiful today? Aren't you just as happy as you can be?"

All day long they romped about the Garden behind the Stone Walls. Then, just before the Sun started to go to bed, each of the flowers suddenly closed its petals over a Beam and held it tight. The Sun sank and old Night came swiftly from the forest.

"We have won," exclaimed the flowers, releasing their petals.

Alas, each little Beam was dead and cold. Life had been taken from them when they were shut off from the sight of their mother, the Sun.

"I told you so," whispered the Zephyr to the Rose King, who hung his head.

"I shall have to punish you," said the Night Wind, severely. "I shall blow clouds across the Moon and tomorrow my cousin, Rain, shall chill you."

The modest Daisies, which grew wild on the outside of the Stone Walls, overheard the Night Wind. But they did not hang their heads or shiver. They had committed no wrong.

And the next day, when the flowers in the Beautiful Garden behind the Stone Walls suffered because of their vanity, the Daisies danced to the music of the rustling corn stalks and looked yellower and brighter and happier than ever.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅜ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

TYPHOID VACCINE

British Army Pathologist Tells Results of Studies

Col. Sir Wm. Leishman, F.R.S., K.H.P., professor of pathology at the Royal Army Medical College, London, England, who is generally recognized as one of the greatest men in the medical profession in Great Britain, told a meeting of the Association of Officers of the Medical Services of Canada at Ottawa many of the results of his experiments with typhoid vaccine, of which he has made a special study. He declared that the success of the vaccine has been demonstrated in a remarkable way, especially in tropical countries where typhoid or enteric fever is more rampant than elsewhere.

Football Enthusiast Robbed

At a football match at Kirkcaldy a West Fife miner returned home the poorer by $50. He had been standing among the crowd. He pulled a bundle of banknotes from his pocket, and, waving them above his head, offered to bet on one of the teams. As no one seemed inclined to respond to his invitation, he restored the notes to his pocket. Shortly afterwards he again placed his hand in his pocket, and discovered that the whole of the money, in $5 notes, had disappeared.

Death Follows a Scratch

A slight scratch on the heel has led to the death of Robert Edward Smith, a six-year-old Grimsby child. While putting on his boots he complained that his heel hurt him, and the mother found a small inflamed wound. He died of blood poisoning.

CZAR'S TEMPERANCE MOVE

Children to be Taught Danger of Excessive Drinking

In the course of the debate on the Anti-Alcohol Bill in the Council of the Empire, a resolution was adopted in favor of instituting hygienic courses in elementary and secondary schools, in which special emphasis will be laid on the dangers arising from alcoholism. Excessive drinking has developed to an alarming degree in Russia during the last few years. The revenue from this source, which is a State monopoly, represents one-third of the total income of the Empire. The Czar has taken the initiative in the reform movement, and has ordered the new Minister of Finance to discover other means of meeting the Budget.

Explosives' Death Roll

In proportion to its population Canada uses perhaps more explosives per capita than any other peaceful country in the world. On railways, in mines and other construction works explosives are very largely employed. In fact, where in Europe, for example, rocks are removed from a road by the picks and shovels of a gang of laborers, in Canada where human labor is so costly and scarce, a hole is drilled in the offending boulder and with a stick of dynamite it is blown to atoms. Almost every month the newspapers contain the account of some fatal disaster connected with explosives.

Death by Poison

To prevent death by poison tablets taken in mistake an inventor has brought out tablets coated with rubber, which is said to resist the stomach acids long enough for a tablet to pass out of the system.

Voices Are Growing Deeper

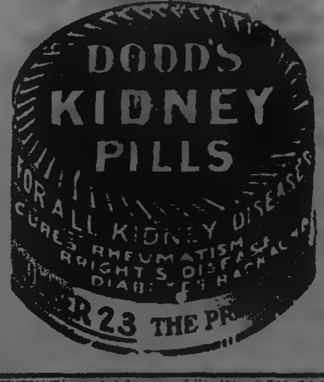
Nowadays there is a noticeable stir in musical centres when a new tenor or soprano is discovered. A baritone or contralto voice, on the other hand, however beautiful may be its quality, attracts but little notice.

All the great masters agree that sopranos are becoming more and more difficult to find, and so rare is a pure tenor that the possession of such a voice has been called a disease.

The reason for this is that with each successive generation the human voice has become a shade deeper. A genuine bass voice was unknown among our more remote ancestors, and most of their caroling was in what would nowadays be called falsetto tones.

Baritone voices are the most common among masculine singers of to-day, and even these are distinctly a shade deeper in tone than the baritones of fifty years ago.

The English opera could never be sustained by the voices of her countrymen, and it is to the southern climes we must look for the slowly but surely dying "flute" voice.



BIRD OF PARADISE LOST

Took a Fall During Honeymoon Trip—Bride's Hat Ruined

A Bird of Paradise which looked as though it had participated in the fall, perched on a straw hat which looked as though it had once crowned a scare-crow, was "exhibit No. 1" in the suit of Mrs. Martha Brown to recover $60 from the G.T.R. The ruins were what was left of the $60 hat, which was part of Mrs. Brown's trousseau, and had been blown from her head while passing between two coaches. "I hope the time will soon come when it will be illegal to put birds in hats," said Judge Morson, as the hat was held up for his examination.

Two wings were gone, the neck of the bird and about 50 of the feathers were broken. The Bird of Paradise seemed to have passed through the claws of the harpies in its descent.

"Do you wear false hair?" the plaintiff was asked by counsel for the railway.

"That is just what I wanted to know," said the judge. "Now, about a third of a woman's hair is her own and the rest comes from Africa or some place else."

"The false hair I wear you could not pull out if you tried," replied the witness.

"I am not going to try," was the answer of the gallant lawyer.

The conductor would not stop the train for the hat, but when he heard of the distress of the bride he made every effort to reassure her and have the hat returned. Up to that time he had paid no particular attention to the couple.

"Did you not notice the hat?" he was asked.

"No, something smaller would suit the wife and me better."

Trouble at Chemong.

A Lindsay Purse Snatcher

Lindsay Warder: It is understood that Mr. James Jackson, who was relieved of $55 by a local man, will be recouped by friends of the party who got away with the money. This will not ameliorate matters for the guilty one as the police are going to follow him and convict if possible. The purse snatcher was seen in town last evening, but made a hurried exit about midnight on a train going west.

A Correction

In our issue of yesterday appeared an article that seems to have given offense to the Lord's Day Alliance. It might be stated that part of the item referred to was accidentally omitted. The article should have appeared as a quotation made by a prominent local citizen to a Times reporter. The Times has the highest respect for the commendable organization and would not within ' breathe a word against their efforts.

When Hubb's Away ?

At 11 o'clock last night a visiting commercial man sped down George street. His collar was wide open, his coat was split down the back and the bay window of another garment showed signs of recent introduction to a No. 11 brogan. A cop meeting him, asked, "What's the matter with you?" The traveller exclaimed, "The liar, the Jezebul, the deceiver ! She told me her husband was visiting in Lindsay!"

Local People Worried.

The home of Bandmaster Peryer of this city is worried in connection with the Empress of Ireland disaster. The local bandmaster's mother was a passenger aboard the sunken ship, she having embarked with the Toronto delegation. Among the list of passengers who sailed on the ill-fated steamer the Empress of Ireland appears the names of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Tylee of Montreal, cousins of Mr. George Hatton, of this city.

Illegal Fishermen Fined.

"It is not sporting instinct to catch fish in a net and I am here to enforce the law, and I find from experience that the best enforcement is to make the punishmens sufficient to deter," said Magistrate Dumble at yesterday morning's session of Police Court in the case of William Clancy and John McWilliams found guilty of illegal fishing. They were each fined $22.60 to be paid in ten days.

Eloping Couple Still Held

Lindsay Warder: No new developments have arisen in the Kinmount elopement case, and the couple are still boarding at the Hotel Grand. Chief Short wired Mr. Hammond, the woman's husband, who resides at Highland Grove, Ont., of their detention on Tuesday night, but through an oversight on the part of the operator the message was let stand to Wednesday morning. This had possibly caused the delay in the husband not being here before this. In the event of him not appearing to claim the adventuress, the authorities will raise the siege and permit both to leave the town, and no proceedings of a legal nature will be taken.

Speed Limit for Steamers

The Government should introduce stringent legislation regulating the speed of Steamers that carry passengers. It is said that last year the Bessie Butler tried to make the five miles between Young's Point and Lakefield in an hour and a half. Of course, in this instance, of defying fate, there were mitigating circumstances. The steamer's corkscrew had been left behind. It is further stated that the dryest passenger aboard sat on the safety valve during the speed test.

Peterborough's Perfumery

People living near the malodorous Incinerator plant have further complaints about this establishment. Dead horses are taken there and burned. This means a stinch that would make in comparison rotten limburger cheese smell like otto of roses. If those in charge of the plant would only baste the meat whilst cooking it might mitigate the perfume. Now people in that vicinity are up in arms because a dead horse was left for two or three days in the blazing sun before being cremated. The stench was so bad that a bottle full of it scattered round the suburbs would keep tramps from visiting the city. The Mayor and several Alderman had a "mauvais quatre d' heure" when called up by protesting citizens.

Montreal Lady Tells How After Four Years' Illness She Found A Complete Cure For All Her Troubles.

Montreal, Que., May 29.—(Special) —Madame J. Baptiste Berube residing at 1393 Logan Avenue, this city, asserts that after four years' suffering from kidney disease she has been completely restored to health by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I had a pain in my left side around the heart," Madame Berube says in her statement. "I suffered constantly with headache and backache, and for seven weeks I was in bed with kidney disease and feebleness. The doctor could not help me, so I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"After the first box I was some better. I continued to use Dodd's Kidney Pills till now the palpitation has left me, and I am a well woman, able to do my work. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me and I recommend them to all persons who suffer as I did."

Notice how many women are rising to tell their suffering sisters the can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason is that nine-tenths of women's ills spring from diseased or disordered kidneys. Every woman whose kidneys show signs of weakness should use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

COLLIER KEPT COMING STRAIGHT ON CAPTAIN SAYS HE COULD NOT AVOID IT

Inquest in Rude Morgue Opens at Rimouski--Commander of Empress Would Have Run for Shore But Engines Went Dead--He Had Lifeboats for 2,000, But Only Four Could be Launched

Rimouski, Que., May 30.—The inquest into the death of the victims of the Empress of Ireland disaster began to-day in a little schoolhouse, which has been hastily turned into a morgue to accommodate the two hundred bodies brought here. Coroner Pinaud conducted the inquest, and all the evidence had to be translated because the jury was French. The centre of attraction was Captain Henry George Kendall, master of the lost liner, who consented to give evidence, though he had to leave a sick bed to do so.

"Will you tell us what happened when you had the accident?" asked the coroner of Captain Kendall.

"The pilot was dropped at Father Point," said Captain Kendall. "We then proceeded full speed. After passing Cockpoint gas buoy I sighted the steamer Storstad, it then being clear.

"The Storstad was then about one point twelve degrees on my starboard bow. At that time I saw a slight fog bank coming gradually from the land and knew it was going to pass between the steamer and myself. The Storstad was about two miles away at that time. Then the fog came and the steamer's lights disappeared.

"I rang full speed astern on my engines and stopped my ship. I took the way of the ship so as to stop her quick. At the time I blew three short blasts on the steamer's whistle, meaning 'I am going full speed astern.' After that he answered me with his whistle, giving me one prolonged blast.

"I then looked over the side of my ship into the water and saw my ship was stopped. I then stopped my engines and blew two long blasts, meaning 'my ship was under way, but stopped, and had no way upon her.' He answered me again with one prolonged blast. The sound was then about four points upon my starboard bow. It was foggy; I looked to where the sound came from. About two minutes after I saw a red light and green lights. He would then be about one ship's length from me.

Came Right Ahead.

"I shouted to him through the megaphone to go full speed astern, as I saw the danger of collision was inevitable. At the same time I put my engines full speed ahead with my helm hard aport with the object of avoiding if possible the shock. Almost at the same time he came and cut me right in and cut me down in a line between the funnels."

Captain Kendall said he asked the steamer to keep full speed ahead so as to fill up the hole made, but she backed away and the Empress began to fill rapidly and sink. He tried to run the ship ashore, but the engines stopped. All were then ordered to the boats and distress signals sent out. The ship, however sank in 15 minutes. He went down and came up clutching a wooden grating on which he was picked up.

BELFAST WELCOMES CARSON

Sir Edward Says That the Time for Speaking Has Passed—Comes to Make Preparations

Belfast, May 30.—Thousands gave Sir Edward Carson a tremendously enthusiastic reception in Belfast this morning. Long before the Liverpool steamer arrived every inch of space on the quays was occupied by an excited throng on both sides of the river.

The shipyards, factories, and mills turned out en masse. In an interview on the steamship, Carson said: "I have only come to complete preparations. The time for speaking is past. I do not think I shall make any speeches except such as are necessary in my interviews with the volunteers."

Carson left for Mount Stewart, Lord Londonderry's residence, the house party including Lord Charles Beresford and F. E. Smith, M.P.

DIED AT RIMOUSKI

Rimouski, May 30.—Cox Edwards, or a man supposed to be him, died here to-day from shock.

The coroner is insisting on haste in identification of the bodies when they arrive at Quebec.

ROWELL NOMINATED BY ACCLAMATION

Woodstock, May 30.—Mr. Newton W. Rowell, K.C., M.L.A., received the nomination of North Oxford Liberals to-day for the provincial house. Mr. Rowell's name was the only one mentioned and he was given an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Rowell addressed the convention on important topics, referring especially to Premier Whitney's manifesto. Mr. Rowell argued that there was no reason for an election at the present time.

PETES AGAIN LOSE TO LONDONERS, 12-8

The Petes went down to defeat on Saturday to London, after getting six runs in the first innings. Tracey did the twirling and the Londoners got 12 hits from him. Peterborough did some slugging also, getting 14 hits from Hammond. It is to be hoped that the jinx will be located soon and the boys get down to business before it is too late.

BLACK DRAPED BUILDING AWAITS ARRIVAL DEATH SHIP LADY GREY

Accomodation Made in Quebec Freight Shed for Three Hundred Bodies---Identification Will be Dificult --No Clothes or Papers to Identify the Victims With

Quebec, June 1.—Waiting for the ship of death, the Lady Grey is the mournful occupation of Quebec to-day. The day broke dark and threatening, followed by rain about ten o'clock. Then the sun shone out again clear and bright. But it could not dispel the gloom of the city or its stricken crowds around the hotels. The Lady Grey with its cargo was expected at noon but at 10.30 the wireless reported her still at Father Point. It is not likely that she will arrive now much before midnight. The C.P.R. is not averse to her arrival at that hour, as it is anticipated that a crowd would be at the pier to await her coming if she reached here in the day time.

The mortuary chamber at Shed No. 27 is ready. Three long rows of platforms, able to accommodate 300 bodies, have been erected. Each is covered with white cloth and edged with black. The sides of the place are draped too, while heavy folds of deepest mourning covered the outside. A special squad of police are guarding the dead room.

Just as they were picked up from the water, they will arrive here. Some are said to be stark naked, while very few have clothes upon them. Identification will be very difficult, as all papers, etc., each victim might have carried, have been lost.

The Lady Grey is said to have three hundred bodies on board now. The Storstad, collier which hit the Empress, sailed for Montreal early this morning. She is badly crushed in at the bow. Twenty feet of her forepart is a tangled mass of steel, twisted in every manner. Her anchors have been driven through her steel sides and her stem twisted far around to the side. She was not making much water, and proceeded under her own steam, although convoyed by the Strathcona.

B. D. Pellon, S. Hughes and John Boigosky are in the Jeffrey Hall Hospital here. They are the only victims of the disaster confined to the hospital. Thirty more however are still at Rimouski, too ill to be removed.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS TO BE HELD ON JUNE TWENTY-NINE

Proclamation Issued Dissolving Legislature and Calling for Nominations for New House on June Twenty-Two

Toronto, June 1.—The Provincial elections will be held on June 29th. The following announcement has been issued by Sir James Whitney:

"A proclamation has been issued dissolving the Legislature. Nominations for a new Legislature will take place on June 22nd, and elections on June 29th. The Government having received information that the voters' lists will be ready, the uncertainty which has delayed action in this matter is removed, and writs will be issued in a day or two in accordance with the proclamation."

Sir James has handed out an address to the electors, in which he reviews the activities of the Government since the last election. Special reference is made to the Workmen's Compensation Act, the legislation providing for municipal construction of electric radials and Hydro-Electric development. The Premier declares that revenues have more than doubled, and calls attention to the extension of the T. & N.O., and the administration of the license laws.

"We believe," says the address, "that a policy which keeps shops open while closing the bars, will have a tendency to encourage and increase the sale of liquor in large quantities and the consumption of it in the home. The policy we leave to our opponents."

THE NEW TRENT CANAL

The Government has evidently decided that this canal shall be as fine a barge canal as there is in the world. It is no longer to be a joke, but will be a real waterway of national importance. The Times learned of these facts on good authority and is pleased to note that its remarks of Thursday have occasioned such general satisfaction. It is more important that the new work should go on to a speedy completion than that it should be delayed by the premature opening for traffic, and it is likely that the grand opening will be postponed until the new really great national waterway is ready. This, however, is a matter of the near future, although an undertaking of great magnitude which will have cost on completion nearly twenty millions of dollars and will be of universal service to Canada. Within twelve months Peterboro' will be a sea-port.

SCORE OF AMERICAN DELEGATES CANCEL THEIR PASSAGES

New York, May 30.—Nearly 700 delegates to the International convention of the Salvation Army, to which more than a hundred of the ill-fated passengers of the Empress of Ireland were bound, sailed to-day for London on the White Star Liner Olympic.

A score or more, it was learned, cancelled their passage at the last moment, after hearing of the steamship disaster, in which so many of their comrades had been drowned.

Commander Eva Booth said before she sailed:

"We grieve less for the dead, who went down with the Empress of Ireland than for the living. The dead are in the hands of God."

She said that in London she would start a campaign for contributions to help the families of those who perished in the disaster.

TRENT CANAL REPORT

The Trent Valley Canal Report will come up for consideration in the House of Commons some day soon. The disastrous effect on this report is fully recognized by the Opposition, which will endeavor to lessen it if possible. It can't be worse, and they hope the way may be improved. The effect has been widespread, and many requests have been made it is understood by prominent Liberals, to have the blame put where it belongs. It will be interesting.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY COMMISSION MAY BE ABOLISHED

Proposal to Place G. T. P. From Winnipeg to Moncton Under Department of Railways and Canals

Ottawa, May 30.—The Canadian Northern Bill, which received its second reading yesterday, will probably be given its third reading and passed on Monday next. This morning's sittings of the Senate was devoted to putting the bill through committee. Notice has not yet been given of the proposed legislation in aid of the G. T.P. Considerable opposition developed in the caucus last night, which was unusually stormy. Several western members are voted as being quite active in opposition, including Messrs. McKay (Prince Albert), Aikens (Brandon), and Sharpe (Lisgar). In connection with the G.T.P. legislation, it is semi-officially announced that the National Transcontinental Railway Commission is to be at once abolished, and the big line between Moncton and Winnipeg placed under the control of the department of railways and canals. Major Leonard, the chairman, is said to be anxious to retire, and Manager Gutelius of the Intercolonial, may assume responsibility for the National Transcontinental. This move is taken by some to indicate that the Intercolonial is to be at once extended via the C.N. R. to Winnipeg.

REV. MR. PEEVER GIVES AN ELOQUENT TEMPERANCE SERMON

Yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Peever, pastor of George street Methodist church, gave an eloquent and impressive sermon on the "Temperance Situation in this Province."

The reverend gentleman said in part, that the goal of prohibition must be attained. The prohibition cause is rapidly advancing. The will of the churches, the public and of science, industrial conditions and economic reasons impel a great change in public opinion. These forces work towards a condemnations of the liquor traffic. The labor unions realize this. Reform councils and Parliaments stand committed to temperance legislation. "This great issue is before our people. Thank God it is here to stay." This subject has broken political parties and may do so again. It must be faced as the great issue before the people to-day. The great political parties first ignored us, then they belied and jollied us. The speaker then paid a strong tribute to the good work done by the Whitney Government in controlling the liquor traffic. He, however, very strongly opposed the three-fifths local option vote. The various governments have all promised to do something "by and bye."

In conclusion the speaker made a few observations. The great issue before the electorate of Ontario to-day and the speaker said he had a "brief" neither from Conservative nor Liberal in the Temperance Cause. He believed in saving the boy. The speaker wound up his peroration by quoting the well known words of President of the U.S., Wilson, used on his inaugural day.

BOTH PARTIES ARE READY FOR FIGHT

announcement of ontario election did not catch people unawares

Toronto, May 30.—The announcement made that the Ontario general election would be held on the 29th June did not come as any surprise to the people.

It is generally thought that too little time has been given for the parties to prepare for so strenuous a fight as is expected. Both the Conservatives and Liberals are, however, organized in a manner which leaves but little to be done. Practically all the conventions are being arranged for a near date.

Registration days have been fixed for June 10, 11, 12 and 13, the hours for registration of voters being from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. In the previous years time was allowed for meals, but this time going away for meals will not be permitted and the agents will have to work 13 hours without a break.

A PRIMITIVE RACE

"North Pole Natives" Really Belong to the Stone Age

The "North Pole natives" were discovered by Captain Amundsen while he was navigating his little craft, the Gjoa, through the North-west Passage in 1903-7.

He christened them "Nechilli," and considered them to be the most primitive race on earth. No white man had ever before invaded their icy fastnesses. Consequently, they were ignorant of the use of iron. Their fishing implements were long spears, fashioned out of reindeer horn. They knew no other method of procuring fire than that of rubbing two pieces of wood together. They were, in short, still in the stage of civilization reached by our ancestors of the Stone Age.

So cut off were they from others of their kind that they imagined their tribe was the only one in the world, and displayed the utmost astonishment when told of populous countries far to the south, where neither ice nor snow was. The Gjoa and her crew they thought to have dropped from the moon, and the first Nechilli to come aboard felt the deck, masts, boats, oars, all the while whispering to one another in amazement: "How much wood there is in the moon—how very much!"

FISHWORMS IN WEST

Not Known For Years But Not Now a Rarity

An old-timer passing along a Regina street noticed an earthworm on the pavement. Proceeding a short distance, it all suddenly dawned on him that it was something out of the ordinary and seized with the happy thought that it might be one of a few of the only survivors of the species in the West he returned and transferred it to a nearby lawn. Passing up the street a little further, however, he noticed several earthworms, and their presence in the district struck him as a very remarkable thing.

This gentleman had been a resident of Saskatchewan for fifteen years or more. During a large part of that time he had been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in all that time he did not remember having seen such a worm in any part of the Province.

Several other residents reported having seen a few fishworms lately, something which they never saw before.

Earthworms inhabit nearly all parts of the earth except the frozen regions of high latitudes and altitudes, dry sandy soils, and portions of the North American prairies. It is recognised by old-timers that up to the present they have been a scarcity in Saskatchewan and why they should be getting common is not known. One reason given is that the climate is becoming milder

Market for Flax Fibre

As a considerable quantity of flax is harvested in Canada every year, the attention of firms interested may be drawn to the market in Leeds, England, for flax fibre. Spinners there have followed with close attention the development of the growth of the flax plant in Western Canada, and are desirous of receiving shipments of the fibre if it can be obtained on competitive terms with supplies from other sources. Some three years ago a few small trial shipments of unretted flax fibre were sent from Canada. Mr. J. M. Mussen, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds says consumers express their readiness to give their consideration to offers that may be received at any time from Canadian firms interested in seeking export markets for this fibre.

Love is always responsive. It is always returned. If a man that is half-way decent, and not too soft, tell a woman, "I love you," and she has not already been told that same thing by some other good man, she will usually return it. And if you will let the neighbors know that you are a lover of folks, they will usually return your love with their love. "We love Him because He first loved us."

O mother, O father, the text gives us a fine assurance. Put up the battlements, and no blood shall be upon your house. You have taken the precautions, and your old age will be free from regret. The children will have answered your prayers. And when they are all about you, in your heavenly home, there will be no need of parapets!

GIANT FLAGSTAFF

Vancouver Has the Tallest Flagstaff in the British Empire

Towering 218 feet in the air and weighing eleven tons, the largest one-piece flagstaff in the British Empire is to be seen in front of the magnificent courthouse at Vancouver. The big stick is a product of the British Columbian forests, and is a flawless example of British Columbian timber. At its base the flagstaff is three feet square, and at the top it is a foot in diameter. The big gilt ball at the top measures twelve feet in circumference, while the big arrow which shows plaintiffs and defendants alike which way the wind is blowing at the courthouse measures fifteen feet from end to end.

The giant flagstaff is held in place by guy cables set in concrete beds at each corner of the courthouse lawn and will stand for many decades as an example of what the forests of British Columbia can produce in the way of tall timber.

Attacked by Timber Wolves

A party of four government surveyors working 85 miles north of Battleford, Sask., were held at bay by timber wolves for three days and later two of the party were drowned in a muskeg. They had fired all their ammunition and were unable to repulse the wolves until relieved by the half-breed who brought in the bodies of the victims to Battleford.

The capital invested in the lumbering industry in Canada amounts to $260,000,000.

HEART SURGERY

Remarkable Operations Are Performed on This Vital Organ

Probably the most daring chapter in modern surgery is that which treats of operations on the heart. "The road to the heart is only two or three inches long, but it has taken surgery nearly 2,000 years to traverse it," was one writer's striking remark. Many shrewd observers in the course of the ages had noted that all heart wounds did not result in instantaneous death. But it was not until 10 or 15 years ago that surgeons began to act upon this knowledge. In exceptional cases death did not result immediately from a heart wound; there were intervals of a few minutes, a few days, or a few weeks. Why not utilize this interval in an attempt to sew up the wound? Medical history of late years reports many successful operations of this kind.

An especially noteworthy one, performed upon an Alabama negro boy in 1902, illustrates the resources of modern heart surgery. This boy had been the victim of an especially nasty stab wound. The knife had penetrated the apex of the heart and passed into the left ventricle, making a wound nearly half an inch long. When the boy was placed on the operating table in a little negro cabin the signs of death had already appeared. His feet were cold, and his face showed signs of the utmost distress.

The surgeons made a little window-like opening just above the heart. Through this they could easily see the injured organ, the blood spurting from the wound at each pulsation. One surgeon put in his hand, pulled the heart upward and held it while another sewed the wound with a catgut. The operation—performed without an anaesthetic—lasted 55 minutes; on the sixteenth day the boy was sitting up; in a short time his health was as good as ever.

THE POPULARITY OF THE SIMPLE ONE-PIECE DRESS STILL GROWING.

The plainness of these little dresses makes them economical as well as becoming. By merely adding one of the new girdles or sashes or an upstanding collar of organdy or net, the frock is perfectly suited to almost any afternoon affair. While the Oriental belt is not as much favored as it was last season, there are still a few very attractive ones being worn, the brightly colored Neapolitan sash, knotted at the side, is wonderfully effective with a dark dress.

No. 8096 is developed in plain terra cotta duvetyn; it closes at the side front, has one of the new yokes, a three-piece skirt.

This dress may be copied in size 36, with 4¾ yards of 42 inch material. Cotton duvetyn may be purchased from $1.25 a yard and up.

No. 8098 is a dress that is perfectly suited to the street, shopping trips or for a business dress; it is developed in dark brown serge with a skirt of fine check in brown and white. The blouse has a tuck over either shoulder, a full length sleeve and a small sailor collar. The skirt has a shaped yoke, the lower section being fitted in with several dart tucks.

Regular Medical Examinations

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, Commissioner of Health of New York City, in a recent newspaper article, advocates strongly regular medical examination of all citizens. The idea is not a new one, and it is one that many refuse to entertain, and yet it is one that is more and more commending itself to thoughtful men. Men are willing enough to go to a physician when they are sick, but it would be a much wiser thing to go to the physicians to avoid sickness. There can be no doubt that if many of our business men, and of our hardest workers would take time to get a physical examination by a competent medical man every little while their working life might be prolonged for years. In New York the Health Department has now adopted a plan of annual physical examination of all its own employees, and in so doing it is simply following the example of the Metropolitan Life, the Stock Exchange, Public Library and other public and corporate bodies in the city. Such examinations often reveal the fact that a person is suffering from a disease which they do not suspect, and it enables the physician to prescribe before the case has become hopeless. There seems a great many reasons for such a scheme of preventive medicine, and few reasons against it, and we can easily imagine that the custom will spread gradually, until the greater part of society is protected in this way.

Rodents Prove Dread Disease Caused by Irritation

Speaking of his observations at the Medical Congress at London and the International Cancer Conference at Brussels, Belgium, Dr. J. George Adami, of McGill University, Montreal, said:

"The most significant advancement in medical research which I noted was at the Cancer Conference with regard to the announcement of experiments made upon rats as to the cause of cancer.

"The cockroach had been found to be infested with small worms which when permitted to work caused irritation and cancer. The cockroaches containing these worms were fed to rats, and the rats became infested with cancer. Although this is only one step towards ascertaining the cause of cancer in human beings, yet it proved the theory that cancer is caused by irritation."

PLEURISY PAINS VANISH CHEST COLDS CURED!

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE.

Don't suffer!

Nerviline is your relief.

Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time.

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning as fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my travelling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

NEED OF POLITENESS

Time to Revive Usages of Chivalry, Young Germans Think

A number of young men of good standing in the German capital, displeased by the growing lack of chivalry to be seen in men's treatment of women, formed a league pledged to practice and encourage politeness in public places.

Members of the league obligate themselves, for instance, to surrender their seats in street cars to women and the aged; to offer assistance to women at street crossings and in other places of peril; and to revive so far as possible, all the little niceties of deportment which went into eclipse about the time that women began to compete largely with men as wage-earners.

The objection to chivalry is that it is only skin deep; that along with extreme politeness may go the most substantial injustice. That, of course, is true. But isn't it better to have the injustice with politeness than to have neither justice nor courtesy? Courtesy costs so very little, and it is so nice!

The Boy Scout movement has elements of usefulness in this direction; but a courtesy league for elders, as in Berlin, might also serve a good purpose in our careless age.

Uses of Seaweed

Not useless when cast upon the strand are the dark masses of seaweed which you may survey at low tide at the seashore. On the contrary, these flowers of the waves have many uses. The broad, thick stem and flat leaves of the oarweed, when thoroughly dried, are used for making knife handles. The green and purple layers, better known as sea lettuce, are in parts used for food after being boiled down to a jelly. So is, too, another sea plant of a deep, dark, reddish hue, called the dulse.

From another, known as carrageen moss, size is obtained, which is used in the process of calico-making. Farmers also use it for fattening calves and thickening meal and potatoes for pig feeding. The long narrow leaves of the grass wrack, after being dried, form excellent packing material, as well as being used for bedding purposes for stock.

Criminology and Feet

Dr. Charles Perrier, police surgeon at Nimes, France, concludes from experiments lasting ten years that thieves and incendiaries have the longest feet; coiners come next; these being followed in regular order of succession by dynamitards, tramps, swindlers, and poisoners.

BEECHER'S FARM CREED

We believe that our soil loves to eat, as well as its owner, and ought therefore to be liberally fed.

We believe in large crops which leave the land better than they found it—making the farmer and the farm both glad at once.

We believe in going to the bottom of things, and, therefore, in deep ploughing and enough of it. All the better with a subsoil plough.

We believe that every farm should own a good farmer.

We believe that the best fertilizer for any soil is spirit of industry.

ABUSE OF SOFT DRINKS

Health Departments Can Regulate Soda Fountains

Have you the habit of quenching your thirst frequently at the soda fountain?

Has your child learned the "soft drink" habit and commenced to load its stomach with the fancy concoctions of the confectioner's shop?

Thirst must be quenched you say. True. But have a care with what sort of drink you quench it. You should take steps to find out whether the soft drinks sold to you and your children are adulterated or pure. Many health departments of large cities have taken up this matter and set down rules prohibiting the use of certain adulterations, which they have proved, by test, to exist in some of the most popular soft drinks.

Your health department can do the same thing. You will be the gainer. Your child will be the gainer.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Historic House Destroyed

A house with many historic memories—No. 35 St. Martin street, Leicester Square, where once Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Burney dwelt—is now being demolished. Newton lived here from 1720 to 1725, and used to say that the happiest years of his life were spent in an observatory on the roof. Dr. Burney, the musician, friend of Dr. Johnson, afterwards lived in the house, and here was born his daughter Fanny, afterwards Mme. D'Arblay, who wrote her first novel, "Evelina," in the house.

A Chafing Dish Supper

Into a chafing dish put half a cup of milk—add to this half an onion chopped fine—a red and a green pepper seeded and cut in small pieces, a large juicy tomato, skinned and cut in small pieces, together with a teaspoonful of salt and three lumps of sugar. Let these boil slowly for ten minutes. Add to this a cupful of cheese and when it is thoroughly melted pour in a well beaten egg—beating all the time until the mixture is smooth. Have ready sufficient toast beautifully browned and serve a large spoonful on each square of toast. Five people can be served with this quantity. It makes an appetizing supper dish, and one which will often be called for by those who care for cheese.

Airiness Is the Style Note in Summer Gowns

By Madge Marvel

AIRINESS is the keynote of the summer frocks. To the sober-minded it seems as if any more transparency would mean the omission of absolute necessities, but the mid-summer gowns have apparently solved the problem with remarkable skill. They have the gossamer effect on a foundation which is genuinely substantial, and, though not apparent, still combines to give the wearer the satisfaction of knowing her gown is not the perishable thing it appears.

The net linings upon which nearly all bodices are made is quite as lasting as the firmer and clumsier cambric of other days. Then, too, ruffles which always seem so delightfully airy are really the most lasting trimming one can employ on thin dresses.

In addition to their airiness there is a certain simplicity about the summer frocks which is attractive. It is partly a reaction, partly a result of the trend toward youthfulness which is still the strong motif in the style world.

Laces for Service.

The shops are filled with dimities, crepes, batistes, dotted Swiss, organdies and those various fabrics which, for want of better identification, are grouped under the name of muslins.

Even the laces, which are offered in wonderful variety and at prices in range of the average purse, are intended to give service.

The three-flounce skirt is much seen. With it goes the kimono blouse with a little vestee of white and a fichu or flare collar of the same. Then there is the tri-ruffle group that is much liked for skirt trimming. These ruffles are narrower than flounces, and are applied at a point that approximates the knees. They may be edged with lace or have the hem corded with a roll of cord. Sometimes they are dipped down in front and reach nearly to the waist line in the back, where they take the form of a modification of the bustle. Again, they are tipped up in the front and slope a bit lower in the back, in which case they follow the silhouette, which we have become accustomed to during the past winter. Also one deep, shaped ruffle may be applied in such manner that it forms an apron drapery.

Simple Lines Popular.

It is perfectly possible to remodel some of last season's or season before last's frocks by the addition of ruffles if the skirt is not gored. The gored skirt is one of the things both dressmakers and tailors shake their heads over, and if they are really sincere in their wish to have their patrons look well dressed will refuse to undertake. So the woman who has some excellent material made in a gored skirt would better put it away in moth balls and forget it until such time as the wheel of fashion stops at gores again.

It is significant that the shops that make a specialty of hand-made frocks of the most exquisite and expensive variety cling persistently to the simple lines and trimming. They put so much daintiness into the making that the little frocks gain a distinction which no amount of trimming could give them.

There is a charming pulled skirt that has great popularity in summer models. It seems to be most effective when it is made in figured voile or some fabric and pattern which suggests the Dolly Varden era. It has a pulled portion that extends to below the hip line and from there the skirt is plain. Another version of the puff has the fulness on the sides of the skirt caught at the knees or just below with ribbon bows, and if the lower portion is left a tiny bit higher on each side of the hem the effect is much smarter. Uneven foot hems are frequently used in the summer gowns.

The two points to remember are the girdle and the collar. They must be right or the entire style of the gown is lost.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

HERE are a few hints which should be of interest to the mistress of a summer country home.

In each room place a well equipped writing table, with pen and ink and paper and pencils, calendar, time table. Place some books where they will tempt the visitor to seek an hour of solitude now and then.

Also in the visitor's room leave a sewing basket. This may be made of a common berry basket painted white and lined with muslin, which ends at the edge or is drawn up in the form of a bag, or there may be a little sewing bag of linen or silk, or some of the cotton fabrics hung in a convenient place. A celluloid thimble, black and white thread, black and white silk, some darning silk in white and staple colors, blue, black, brown and gray, assorted needles, a pair of scissors, black and white assorted pins, assorted safety pins, brown and black and white shoe buttons, plain white pearl buttons, a bit of tape, a tape bodkin. All these will be found of use. On the dressing table there should be a paper of hairpins, matches, buttonhook, soap, powder and a small jar of cold cream. A pack of cards is also a welcome addition, and a game of solitaire may give you the opportunity for a moment of rest.

It is not expensive to furnish these little comforts, and the saving in nervous energy will be considerable. Besides, it will add materially to the comfort of the guest. Don't work too hard to be entertaining. Let your visitors say when the visit is over, they are thoroughly rested.

In planning the meals, have them simple and appropriate to the summer time. Let fruit take the place of heavy desserts. Make your crisp vegetable salads play a prominent part in the menu. For the average household, where there is only one maid kept and more than enough work to keep her busy, there is good excuse for using the charming flowered crepe paper tablecloths and napkins for the informal luncheon or tea.

Make the table service dainty instead of ornate. Make the meals dainty and unusual instead of elaborate.

And, above all, keep an atmosphere of harmony and good cheer pervading the house. Let the guest feel that she is welcome instead of upsetting, and give her the chance to enjoy a real rest under your rooftree.

TWO VACATIONS

By Michelson

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

OH, YES! they are very different. Look at the two pictures. One girl has a solicitous maid who is trying to get the last of the long list of fluffy luxuries of clothes into the last of the trunks. Men will carry the trunks away. A chauffeur will see that Miss Rich is taken to her seat in the Pullman.

The other girl has just that one suitcase. No one to help her pack—it isn't necessary. She will carry the suitcase herself. And she will find her own seat in the day coach. But the greatest difference in these vacations doesn't show in the pictures. One girl is going on a four months' round of the "summer places." The other is going away for a week. One doesn't have to think about what it costs. The other has to count every cent.

Yet you can't be sure which will have the BEST TIME. In this funny world it sometimes happens that the Cinderella meets the Prince. And there are better things than princes—or money.

Words of Wise Men

We enjoy ourselves only in our work—in our doing; and our best doing is our best enjoyment.—Jacobi.

The quarter of an hour before dinner is the worst suitors can choose.—Zimmerman.

There is nothing that a man can less afford to leave at home than his conscience or his good habits.—Packe.

What is strength without a double share of wisdom? Vast, unwieldy, burthensome, proudly secure, yet liable to fall by weakest subtleties; strength's not made to rule, but to subserve, where wisdom bears command.—Milton.

It is to be feared that the patriotism of this day has but little regard for such common things as individual economy and providence, although it is by the practice of such virtues only that the genuine independence of the industrial classes is to be secured.—Samuel Smiles.

Science is nothing but trained and organised common sense, differing from the latter only as a veteran may from a raw recruit, and its methods differ from those of common sense only as the guardsman's cut and thrust differ from the manner in which a savage wields his club.—Huxley.

There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving the divine right of woman.

[illegible]

IN an American home where I was a recent guest I was delighted by the charming simplicity of existence. My host was a very rich man. His beautiful wife is one of the most popular matrons in what is known as "society." Their home is spacious and furnished with most exquisite taste. But it is delightfully simple. There is nothing in it which has not a good reason for being.

But all this is incidental to the simplicity of the routine of the daily life of its handsome mistress. It was so refreshing to find the absence of all the pomp and ceremony with which some persons choose to surround themselves, that I remarked it. I was told that they had always lived without outward show because they preferred such life. "But," said my hostess, "a great many other friends are following the same plan.

"There is great simplicity among the majority of our acquaintances whenever the opportunity comes for them to live as they like. The men find that they cannot live at too rapid a pace and attend to business, and idleness is not considered good form. As for the women, their interest in suffrage and feminism and athletics and the various things of the day which occupy feminine attention has made this manner of living a natural consequence.

"We are so anxious to keep our youth and our figures that we cannot be too indulgent in the way of eating or drinking or dissipation. Why, if many of the average girls who think we live in luxurious ease knew how hard we work to keep in thorough condition they would be amazed."

This woman, I am told, is typical of many of her rank and station all over the country. The matrons of today are superbly healthy and handsome and delightfully fascinating. They have learned how to live. I asked this woman for beauty secrets. She gave me it. I will give them to you, for I am sure she would be willing for me to pass them along.

Eat plain food moderately. Heavy pastries, rich confections are not in good standing in the diet of these women who care for their appearance.

Drink a lot of PURE COLD WATER. Water, she said, was one of the most indispensable of beautifiers. Also, she said, that drinking stronger beverages, habitually, is out of favor. Even at the most elaborate dinners more and more guests are drinking only table waters, and no comment is made. It is not considered eccentric to refuse wine.

Exercise mentally and physically, and do it at the same time. She explained that the mind should be centred on the bodily exercise in order to make it effective. It is good form to be tremendously interested in whatever one is doing. It is "so vital!"

Sleep enough to rest the mind and body and nerves and no more. When you awaken arise and start the day with enthusiasm. Keep enthusiastic. All youth has enthusiasm. Cultivate it to ward off age.

Keep your temper. Loss of it signifies lack of poise. Poise is an essential. Bury the hatchet. By this she explained that the new beauty culturists do not allow those who would be beautiful to cherish resentment.

Keep out of doors all you can.

Have a hobby—but be merciful to it.

Believe in yourself, your neighbor and your work.

And when I asked her about what to do for the complexion she laughed carelessly and said: "Why, really, I have so few secrets of that kind. I simply use some good, pure cream and powder, a little rouge if I need it in the evening and once in awhile I have some electric treatment. My maid brushes my hair a great deal, and I brush it, too. There is nothing in the world so good for the hair as brushing.

"As for your figure, you won't have to do anything for it if you live right."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am working in a store, and one of the men who is married insists upon showing a preference to me. Today, unawares, he kissed me, and, of course, on account of my work I have got to be friendly with him. Do you think I should leave my position?

Also, Miss Laurie, I was engaged to a young man who went away to the East. We corresponded every day, but it is two weeks since I have heard from him. Do you think I should write him? I love him very much. "DOUBTFUL."

WHAT shall you do, Doubtful, when the married man insists upon showing a preference for you?

There's just one thing to do and to do quick.

Talk plain English to him. Tell him you have no use for a married man and be done with it once and for all. It will come to that anyway, and when you notice how quickly he consoles himself for your indifference by "showing a preference" for the first silly girl who comes handy, you'll be glad you did it.

Don't wait till he gets to telling you how sad and lonely he is at home.

No, don't leave your position; stick to it and mind your own affairs. Nobody is going to take your job away from you just because you show some common sense. The girl who lets the married man make love to her is the one who will lose her job—not you.

As to the young man who has been writing to you every day I'd write him a couple of letters as usual and wait to see what he does. He's probably ill or something; don't worry, it will all turn out all right.

Secrets of Health

How Wrinkles on Your Face Can Be Erased

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

NOTWITHSTANDING the well-nigh universal objection to crow's feet and frowns, wrinkles are by no means the upshot of age, passing years and premature senility. On the contrary, there are more persons who die above middle life, free of these fleshy rivulets, gullies, brooklets, ravines and bridle paths than with them.

However, no pill or powder within, no plaster, salve or liniment on the outside will ever be able to remove wrinkles. Just as all the king's horses and all the king's men could not put Humpty Dumpty together again, so all medicaments and herbs are powerless to fill up the fleshy, aching voids.

Yet much may be done to eliminate these dots and dashes, radiations and star-like lines from the forehead, eyes, cheeks, chin and face. Like all deformities and physical disorders, a morsel of prevention is worth a cartload of cure.

Defects of vision, cross eyes, short-sightedness, farsightedness, eye strain, muscular tension are a few of the sources of the fleshy flounces of the forehead and cheeks.

Plainly, many of the dermal fluting near the optical orbits can be avoided by the proper use of correct lenses.

Squirming up the brows in the fallacious notion that thought is thus enchanted and called into action, is a folly exceeded only by summoning spirits from the deep. You may call them, but they will not come. This method, like tight and knotted thoughts themselves, produces an unpleasant harvest of corrugations in the face.

Tucks, hems and ingatherings of the flesh are literally sewed into it, not by the flight of time, but by virtue of worry, careless living, evil habits, lack of bathing, dietetic errors and bitter imaginings.

Moreover, illnesses of one sort and another, a fat face gone thin, boils, scars, pimples, large pores, blackheads and swellings of the flesh are all causes of flexures and creases.

The phrase, "Here's another new wrinkle," has its origin in the ancient ejaculation which shows that wrinkles were never a popular blemish. Clean habits, pure thoughts, lots of rest, plentiful food, fresh air, moderate activity in the open, bathing, sunlight and massage—which may be done with the bare fingers, olive oil, vaseline, or any lubricant—to fatten up the underlying muscles, all tend to postpone the day as well as to reduce the number of these facial ruts and grooves.

Answers to Health Questions

G. E. R. S.—Am troubled with red, burning face at all times, blotches on same. Also get large pimples on face and over shoulders which look like boils. They sometimes stay for a week and then disappear without any discharge. Am a young man of 20, work outside, get plenty of exercise and good food. I feel ashamed every place I go on account of this trouble, as I am a person of good habits.

Eschew all hot food. Keep in the air, massage the red spots with ammoniated mercury ointment at night. Also take a tablespoonful in wineglass of water.

Points on Palmistry

Smooth, conical fingers are a sign of talkativeness and levity.

Strong, knotted fingers show prudence and capacity.

A palm too slim, narrow, and feeble indicates instinct without capacity.

If the palm is too large, the person is coarse and animal-like.

If the outer joint of the fingers forms a knot, the person has well-arranged ideas.

The individual who has knots at the middle joints of the fingers always has a place for everything and everything in its place.

Intellect belongs to knotted fingers, grace to smooth ones.

The person whose fingers are smooth and pointed is guided wholly by inspiration, and never has a reason for what he does.

The Good Night Story

The Wise Farmer's Master—By Vernon Merry

ONCE upon a time, in a far distant land, there lived a farmer who had a beautiful daughter. All the young men in the countryside were in love with her, but none seemed to be able to satisfy her father.

Now the farmer was cruel and stingy. Whenever a young man came to ask his permission to call upon his daughter he would say:

"You work for me until the robins sing. If you are not satisfied I shall cut off the tip of your ear. If I am not satisfied you can cut off the tip of mine. If we are both satisfied you can wed my daughter."

Many young men agreed to this, but each, after a short time, left the farm with the tip of his ear cut off.

One day there appeared a young man by the name of Orlando. The bargain made, he went to work in the fields.

When he was not invited to dinner he said nothing, but helped himself to a ham. The farmer's wife told her husband, who began to scold Orlando.

"Are you not satisfied?" asked the young man. The farmer felt of his ear and replied that he was. After that Orlando was always asked to meals.

A few days later the farmer and his wife went to market. Orlando was ordered to stay at home and "do exactly as he saw others do."

Carpenters were tearing off the roof of an old shed, so Orlando climbed to the roof of the house and tore off shingles, tiles, everything.

When the farmer returned he cried: "Villain, what have you done?"

"Obeyed you," answered the young man, taking out his knife. "Are you not satisfied?"

"Yes," sighed the farmer, who went to seek his daughter's advice about getting rid of this terrible servant.

"I'll hide in a bush and imitate a robin," she said; "then you can tell him the contract is ended."

This she did, but Orlando refused to believe his ears, and, looking in the bushes, saw the daughter.

"Oh, I am furious!" cried the farmer.

"Then I shall cut off your ear," said Orlando.

"Will you take my hand instead of my father's ear?" asked the daughter.

"Yes," said the young man, and he and the farmer shook hands.

There was a fine wedding soon, and the young people lived together happily for many years.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

White Pearl Divers

The statement of Captain Talboys, a pearler, of Broome, Western Australia, that the experiment of working luggers with white divers had been a failure, and that the majority of the divers brought out from England were either dead or paralyzed, has been contradicted flatly by divers. With the exception of two, all were, they said, very much alive, and were at present at work in different ports of the State.

Wholesale Smuggling

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Man., near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the border between St. Vincent and Warroal, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

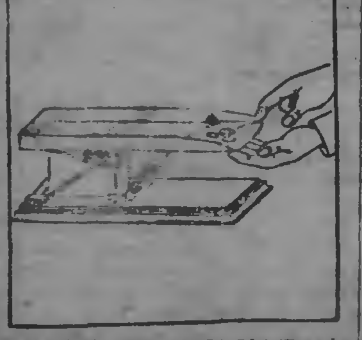
CASH DELIVERER

Coins Laid on Chute and Tilted Into Customer's Hand

It is rather surprising the number of devices patented for the purpose of delivering change into a person's hand. And in view of their number it is still more surprising that so few are in use, for it is often extremely annoying to have to pick up money from a glass showcase, or some other smooth surface. A man has designed a little chute for this purpose. A chute is mounted on movable links, rising from a comparatively heavy base. When the coins are placed in this chute it is tilted forward and the change is slid neatly into the customer's hand, no clawing of the counter is necessary. After this operation is performed the chute automatically flies back into place, owing to a spring attachment, and is ready for the next visitor.



FLIES BACK INTO PLACE

MEXICAN FRUITS

Many Fruits Unknown to Most of Us Grow Wild There

Mexico is the fruit paradise. Fruits never heard of by the hundreds of millions who live in the temperate zones grow there in profusion and Acapulco, on the Pacific slope, is perhaps the garden spot of it all. It is noted for the great quantity of indigneous varieties which grow spontaneously. No effort has been made towards extensive cultivation by the natives, much to the surprise of visitors from the North. With the exception of some indifferent cultivation of cocoanuts and bananas everything else grows wild and in luxuriance.

Of the fruits known in the United States this district alone produces bananas, oranges, pineapples, mangoes, limes and lemons. And here are a few more of other varieties never seen above the border line: toronjas, a species of grapefruit, the aguacate, papaya, guayabo, chico, zapote, mamey, llama, anona, granada, calmits, cartajena, meson, wamuche, jicame, tamarindo, nanche, huicon, leacos, almendra (almond), ciruela (plum), and undoubtedly many others.

But so indifferent are the natives to their possibilities that nothing is exported except the lime and its products.

An Ancient Epitaph

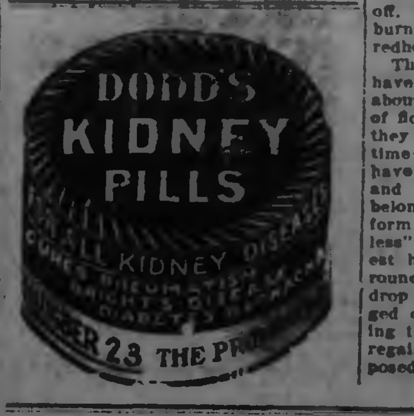
To a Western art museum an Egyptologist presented the mummy, 3,000 years old, of a man who dwelt in Thebes in the time of Rameses II. and III. and held the official post of keeper of the scales. The epitaph reads:

"I have done good upon earth. I honored my mother. I loved my father. I was loved by my brothers and sisters. I was a friend to the weak. I collected corn for the poor. I gave clothes to the naked. I have not harbored prejudice nor cruelty to those over whom I was master. I have not said an evil word against anyone. I made sacrifices for others."

In an age whose materialistic ideals were set by cruel and rapacious rulers, each bent upon aggrandizement of fame, no matter what the toll in human lives, it is something to find this simple-minded Theban merchant of the eighteenth dynasty upholding the principles of kindliness and benevolence in his personal example. Could modern man desire or deserve a nobler record than that of Ankan Pets Iitep's sarcophagus?

Poorly Paid Farm Labor

During the three summer months the farm laborer in Sweden works on an average of 10½ hours a day. For this he receives pay at the rate of 56 cents a day, providing he pays for his board and room in addition.



What Day Were You Born?

Among the innumerable superstitions about babies is the old saw about the day of birth:

Monday's child is fair of face.
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is sour and sad,
Thursday's child is merry and glad,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child must work for a living.
But the child that is born on the Sabbath Day
Is blithe and bonny, and good and gay.

Only Sardine Fishery in Canada

The province of New Brunswick has this distinction: it possesses the only sardine fishery in Canada. The fishing is carried on in the waters of Passamaquoddy Bay and the waters around the islands of Grand Manan and Campobello, and the West Isles, in the Bay of Fundy. Of such importance is this fishery, and in such masses do the fish appear that the fishermen who prosecute their calling amongst those islands depend largely upon it for their livelihood.

Ordeal to Regain Caste

It is astonishing the belief natives of southern India have in their "caste," and what they will do to regain it if lost. A certain day in the year is set aside for the ceremony of regaining "caste." An enclosure about twenty feet square is fenced off, and in this logs of wood are burned, the ashes of which are kept redhot by continual fanning.

Those going through the ceremony have to wash themselves in the river about a mile away; then, with strings of flowers hanging round their necks, they run to the enclosure. By the time they reach it the redhot ashes have been raked all over the floor and the idol of whatever caste they belong to has been placed on a platform at one end. In rush the "casteless" barefooted, without the slightest hesitation, and dance round and round on the redhot ashes until they drop from exhaustion and are dragged out by their friends. Before going through this painful ceremony of regaining "caste" a man is first supposed to fast for at least three days.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

A Swift Craft.

A local man, will this week, launch a new motor boat. He claims that its speed will be so great that it will boil the water it passes through and that farmer's wives along the river will watch his coming on wash days.

A Diversity of Jobs.

Messrs. Epgrave and Barrett, the well known local contractors have now, among their present contracts, reconstruction work on a hotel, the National, a church, All Saints', and a theatre, the Royal. This is "going some" in varied employment by one firm.

Local Jews Celebrate

Retail Merchants to Meet.

A general meeting of all the Retail Merchants is called tonight at the Y.M.C.A. at 8.15. There are a number of very important questions to be dealt with and most likely there will be a deputation appointed to wait on the city council.

Brandon Delegation Here

Mr. Read of Toronto the man who built the Incinerator plant, arrived in the city on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock by motor. On Saturday he took a deputation from Brandon, Man., to see the Incinerator plant. The party included Brandon's Medical Health Officer, Dr. Stickard. As no night soil or horses were, at the time of their visit, being cremated the visitors were favorably impressed.

A Death at Lakefield.

Lakefield News: There passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. John Hayes, Lakefield, on Thursday, May 28th, Mrs. Hugh James Montgomery, at the age of 64 years, after an illness of six weeks duration. The deceased was born in Peterborough county, her maiden name being Mary Jane Armstrong.

Lindsay's Dog By-law

Lindsay Warder: That this town must get rid of the useless curs that perambulate the streets and aggravate the citizens is a foregone conclusion. When Chief of Police Short once throws the lever which operates the great municipal machine into gear it will be good-bye Fido, or pay the penalty, which the following clause in the town by-law explicitly state and is worthy of perusal by every owner of man's faithful friend, which should not be permitted to become a vagrant.

Hard Potatoes To Cook.

On Saturday a local contractor was cutting down a maple tree preparatory to building operations. On the tree trunk were two lumps. He cut them off and, on removal of the bark, found the lumps were Knots exactly like potatoes in appearance. He took them home, and handing them to his wife, remarked "My dear, there are two specimens of a new brand of potato. Please boil them for supper." His wife boiled them. After testing them for over an hour with a fork, she at last said: "I can't get those potatoes soft." The contractor then gave her the laugh.

Old Lady's Narrow Escape.

An old lady in Ashburnham has been ill in bed for several weeks. A few days ago she complained of severe pain. Her doctor left a box of tablets, telling when to take one when required, but not stating what the pills were composed of. The old lady took several and realized she had taken morphine. Emetics were employed which saved her life. She has not yet fully recovered from the effects of the morphia.

A Very Bad Sidewalk.

Yesterday while an old gentleman and a companion were strolling out to the Oval, on the street running south from that place, the old man tripped on a loose plank in the board walk, and was thrown heavily to the ground, receiving several bad bruises about the hip and knee. It is about time that the city replaced this old worn out walk with concrete and probably save themselves from damage.

A Sportsmanlike Game.

T.C.S. Port Hope and the Peterborough Cricket Club had a game of cricket at Nicholls Oval on Saturday. T.C.S. in the first innings made 54 runs to 34 of the Petes. In the second innings, Peterborough had 51 for four wickets down. Capt. Whitehouse of the local team, could have made the game a draw as the Port Hope bunch had to leave in half an hour. However he let the Porters go to bat and make the 24 runs necessary to win.

Memorial Service at St. Johns.

A memorial service was held at St. John's last night. The rector spoke as to the lesson such sad occurrences brings to each one of us, and urged that God did not send them, but allowed them to take place. The music was specially appropriate—Barnby's requiem, Bridge's "Crossing the Bar," Hymns, "God Moves in a Mysterious Way," "Eternal Father," "Nearer My God," "When on My Day of Life," being solemnly sung. The service concluded with Chopin's "Funeral," played by Mr. R. J. Devey.

North Huron Conservatives nominated A. H. Musgrove, M. P. P., for the Provincial House.

TELL US PLEASE

Why Peterborough ratepayers are soaked for 26 mills on the dollar?

Why the Sanitary Inspector does not strain the stench of our incinerator plant through a sieve?

Why, when local pavement improvements are contemplated, those interested in underground conditions are not compelled to do one job at the time?

Is a local cop ever awake?

Why more people do not chip in to help the Children's Aid Society?

Is there a city of similar population where the liquor license act is so rigidly carried out as in Peterborough?

When will the street paving operations in Peterborough be completed?

Why did an E.E.C. put out a bulletin saying that all aboard the lost steamer had been saved?

Does it not pay merchants to advertize? Is not the Times a good method of displaying your various propositions to the public?

Does it pay to run a garden whilst caterpillars falling from the trees nestle on your neck and your spine gets kinks in it from digging, to raise vegetables at four times the market price?

Why not write and ask in this series of questions something that may be of immediate personal interest to yourself?

WATCHING WESTERN GROWTH.

There are many most interesting facts about Western Canada of which the average Canadian knows nothing. This is, perhaps, necessarily true in a country the growth of which is so rapid. It is always interesting to come upon a compilation of such facts, and for that reason the May issue of "Canada Life Echoes" which comes out in the form of a special Northwestern number will be welcomed by its many readers. It contains a short article on each of the four western provinces accompanied by a tabulation of interesting statistics of crop yields and general information and it is designed to be a booklet of handy reference for those interested. The number is liberally illustrated throughout with unusually good photographs of western life and scenes, and it includes a most readable description of the C.P.R. irrigation project in Alberta. This interesting little periodical is published by the Canada Life Assurance Company, and, while they last, a copy will be sent on request to W.R. Scadding, District Agent, Canada Life Assurance Company, Peterborough.

WEDDING-BELLS

Custance—Kay.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. James' Church on Saturday at one o'clock by the Rev. J. N. Clarry, when Mr. Robert C. Custance of this city, formerly of Nottingham, Eng., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Dinah Kay, of Lancashire, Eng. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. F. Howarth.

A number of friends and acquaintances of the couple were present. Mrs. (Rev.) Clarry officiated at the piano. Mr. and Mrs. Custance will reside at 276½ Wolfe street.

There would seem to be competition for the endorsement of Conservative representative for the west riding. Several names have been mentioned. E. A. Peck, M.L.A., will submit his name to the convention and it is confidently expected that he will receive the nomination, but there is likely to be an upset as Mayor Buller, R. J. Soden and ex-Mayor Bradburn also intend to submit their names. The convention will be held in the Conservatory of Music hall this evening.

HUGE ANCHOR OF STORSTADT TORE LINER LIKE IRON CLAW

ows of Collier Smeared With Blood Where Massive Steel Prong Ripped Open the Side of the Empress

Montreal, June 1.—Marine authori- es were busy this morning digesting e statements of Captain Kendall f the lost liner Empress of Ireland d Capt. Andersen of the Collier torstad, which rammed her. In rief the contentions of the two are s follows:

Captain Kendall: The Empress as stationary when the Storstad ammed her, the Storstad steaming head; the Storstad then backed a- ay, though requested to force ahead nd block the hole in the Empress' ide. After the collision when asked o come alongside, the Storstad kept oving away. The passengers rescued or the most part, by the Empress' wn boats, after clinging to the reckage. I saw two of the Storstad's boats, but they had only two r three survivors in each. As a eaman, the Storstad's captain hould not have needed to be told hat to do in such an emergency af- er the collision had torn open the Empress' side.

Captain Andersen: "The vessels ere in full view when a great dis- ance from each other; Storstad had he right of way. When the collision ame the Storstad's engines were re- ersed—after the collision the Storstad did not back away; it forged a- ead to keep the gap closed and keep ut the water; it was the Empress hat changed positions; the Storstad id its utmost to save all, giving up ll its boats when in a crippled con- ition itself. When the vessels first ave in view of each other, it was lear; fog settled and the Empress hanged her position. After the col- ision it was the Empress which mov- d away, drawn by its headway."

Most of the shipping fraternity in his city are respecting the request f the owners of the Storstad that o blame be visited upon the com- manders of the two vessels until an mpartial tribunal has heard the evi- dence of both sides. Survivors, how- ver, are severely criticising the Stor- tad."

IS THIS TRUE?

A Papal paper in discussing the formation of "Papal parties" in various countries looking to an increase in the personal political dominance of the Pope, says such a party is unnecessary in Canada, where candidates can be found sufficiently agreeable to the wishes of all good Catholics.

Wreck Inquiry.

Preparations were begun here to-day for the wreck inquiry, which is to be conducted by a joint commission, composed of Canadian and British shipping experts. The arrangements were in the hands of Captain Lindsay Dominion Wreck Commissioner, who will decide whether the session will be held in Montreal or Quebec.

Probably most of the damage done to the side of the Empress of Ireland was done by the anchor of the Storstad. This anchor, judging by its position in the twisted steel of her prow, was forced back when the collision took place. One of its points sticks out like a great tooth, which could be capable of ripping the liner like a battering ram.

It was not until he had landed from the storstad that pilot Nault, the man who navigated the vessel up the St. Lawrence from Quebec, would make any statement. Then he paused on the wharf long enough to accept a cigar and tell a few things about the trip up. Captain Andersen, his wife—who was aboard at the time of the collision—and the members of the crew were feeling extremely sorry about the accident the pilot explained.

"He said they were lies," finished Nault.

A mute momento of the tragedy is to be found in the blood smeared on the bows of the Storstad. It evidently came from passengers who were crushed to death in their berths.

THINGS WORTH WHILE

In the Circus Realm—Robinson's Great Shows in Peterborough.

The Robinson's Famous Shows have spread a dragnet over the amusement and zoological universe, and hauled in the ropes; have made a scientific assortment of the great catch, retained all that was wonderfully striking or sensational and cast the refuse to other shows.

If there is anything really worth while in the circus realm to-day which has been overlooked, the newspapers in the large cities have missed it, for they have pronounced the Robinson's Famous Shows as the world's perfect show. Every field of possible innovation has been invaded, and every feature which would bring delight to young and old is seen with these shows.

Doctor Tells How To Shed Bad Complexion.

We cannot restore degenerated facial tissue any more than we can restore a lost limb. It is useless to attempt to convert a worn-out complexion into a new one. The rational procedure is to remove the complexion instead — remove the devitalized cuticle. Not by surgical means, however, as the underlying cutis is too thin, too tender to withstand immediate exposure. Applying ordinary mercolized wax will gradually absorb the offending cuticle. By degrees, a new, youthful skin appears; a skin soft and delicately tinted as a rose petal.

No lady need hesitate to try this. Procure an ounce of mercolized wax of the druggist. Spread on a thin layer before retiring, removing this in the morning with soap and water. In from one to two weeks the complexion is completely transformed.

An approved treatment for wrinkles is provided by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings prompt and remarkable results.—Dr. R. Mackenzie in Popular Medicine.

MILL BLOWN UP

Second Outrage of Similar Kind at Kingston.

Kingston, June 1.—Some time during the night Foxton's sawmill, located on the Perth Road, was blown up by dynamite. No reason can be given for the outrage. The mill is almost a total wreck. Quite a charge of dynamite was used to fire the building, and people in this vicinity were given quite a shock. This is the second dynamite outrage in this section, a mill dam at Millburn being blown up by dynamite two weeks ago.

PROROGATION THIS WEEK

Parliament May Get Through This Week or Next.

Ottawa, June 1.—There is talk of winding up the business of the House by Saturday, with prorogation on Monday. At the outside the House will adjourn a week from Wednesday. The Grand Trunk Pacific legislation will probably be introduced in the House to-day. To-morrow the Farmers' Bank legislation will come up. Militia estimates will consume most of the time of this afternoon and to-night.

MR. R. J. SOWDEN IS THE ONTARIO GOVT. NOMINEE HERE

Last night the Liberal Conservative Association of West Peterborough held a largely attended meeting in the big hall of the Conservatory of Music.

Mr. Jas. Kendry, President occupied the chair and asked the different wards to gather and also the representatives from the townships.

Chairman Kendry opened the meeting by explaining that those present gathered to nominate a candidate for the local Legislature.

The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read.

Mr. Ruddy read a letter from members of the Dominion Alliance, giving particulars of the platform of the Alliance. The letter was received.

Some resolutions were read endorsing first the Government of Hon. R. L. Borden. This was enthusiastically received, and then the Government of Hon. Jas. P. Whitney, the latter received hearty applause.

Moved by Mr. Harry Garbutt, seconded by Mr. Louis Fisher, that the present local member Mr. E. A. Peck has made a good and conscientious member—Carried. This is only a synopsis, as was a similar motion advocating the course pursued by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

OFFICERS.

President Moved by Mr. Sowden, that Mr. Jas. Kendry was unanimously elected.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mayor Buller.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. Milburn, re-elected.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Mr. Sheehy, re-elected

Secretary—Mr. Adams, re-elected.

Asst.-Secy—Mr. Ruddy, re-elected.

Treas.—Mr. Howden, re-elected

CHAIRMEN OF WARDS.

1st Ward—John Edgar.
2nd Ward—Mr. W. Fisher
3rd Ward—Jos. Mills.
4th Ward—Mr. Manning.
5th Ward—Mr. Craig.
North Monaghan—W. G. Howden.
Smith—C. E. Moore.
Harvey—Mr. Harvey.
Harvey S.—Mr. Elliott.
Ennismore—Mr. Scollard.
Galway—Mr. Dudman.
Cavendish—Mr. Simpson

NOMINATIONS.

Messrs. Fairm Nelson and Modd were appointed scrutineers.

The chairman here called for nominations for the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. E. Bradburn, amid applause, nominated Mr. E. A. Peck, M.L.A.

Mr. Joe. Batten nominated Mr. Sowden

Here some technical details as to representation at the meeting were aired.

Mr. P. Webb made a motion, seconded by Mr. Pogue, but as neither were accredited delegates, the motion was not considered.

THE RESULT.

After a long delay, owing to a count of the many ballots, the result was declared.

Mr. Thompson, M.L.A., for East Peterborough spoke as the ballots were being counted. The speaker said the Liberal Government found fault with bringing on an Ontario Election. The month of June is the proper month for an election as regards the farmers' work. Even the most ardent Liberal has no hope of seeing the Liberal Government returned. Those who are worrying about Whitney's successor don't seem to think about Sir Wilfrid Laurier's successor. Sir James Whitney is carrying on the Ontario Government. The Liberal party has no special policy except "abolish the bar." The temperance cry is an important one. Gen. Booth whilst in Toronto said, "Ontario leads the world in its control of the liquor traffic." The Whitney Government is enforcing temperance as quickly as public opinion demands it. Many municipalities voted out local option. The speaker had possibly as deep an interest in true temperance as any man in Canada. The Whitney Government cut out the bottle trade in hotels. Referring to the bi-lingual question the Liberal leader will touch as lightly as possible. This subject must be settled within a year.

Mayor Buller said he was proud yesterday to be riding with a son of the best Queen that ever ruled the British Empire. Cheers! Our visitors were strictly democratic. The Duke said Peterborough's reception was one of the best they had ever received.

Mr. R. Winch said he was proud the way Mayor Buller acquitted himself yesterday. He then gave a recitation.

THE RESULT.

Sowden	86
Peck	79

Mr. Sowden then gave a snappy speech that was loudly applauded.

A SEARCHING INVESTIGATION

Dominion Government Pushing Through a Special Bill for the Purpose

Ottawa, June 1.—Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, introduced a bill in the House to-day which will be rushed through Parliament with the greatest possible despatch, and which is designed to provide under the Canada Shipping Act for a sweeping and thorough investigation under a competent and highly efficient board into the Empress disaster, and of shipping casualties of like gravity which may occur in Canadian waters in the future.

Under the Act, as it at present stands, the Government has power in case of shipping casualties to appoint one commissioner only, who must be either an official of the Government, a Superior or County court judge, or a judge of Admiralty. The bill provides for the appointment of two or more commissioners, who are not limited to any class of persons, and who may include a member nominated by the British Government. The amendment went to the committee to-day and will be passed to-morrow with the present method of procedure superseded.

EVILS OF PERIPATETRECVENDORS

Today a young man of this city is regretting that he bought, some two months ago, a corn cure from a peripatic vendor on the local market. The young man, in consequence of his purchase, for the past 2 months, has been out of his former job with a local coal company. On the Market Square two months ago, he listened to "the voice of the charmer" on the Square. He had a corn that recalled visions of "Dante's Inferno. He bought. The medicine was applied. In a few days the application to his little toe caused a hole resembling a mining prospector's tunnel to appear. He had to have the toe amputated which involved also an amputation of two months pay.

London, June 1.—A Times editorial completely answers Mrs. Besant's plea for Indian emigration to Canada. It says:

"It is not a fact that India is over populated. Many parts of Asia are available for Indian settlements. The correct remedy is not immigration to Canada, but the spreading of people in more equal proportion over cultivible lands of Asia, and still more attracting them to manufacturing industrie now forming up in India.

The Times adds:

"We do not admit that British sovereignty over India implies unrestricted right of the people of India to flood Western Canada with their overspill."

FIGURING ON PLANS TO RAISE THE LINER

Wreck is a Menace to Navigation and Must be Floated or

Quebec, June 1.—It is probable that the Empress of Ireland will be raised, that the bodies now held in her cabins may be given a decent burial and the million dollars worth of Cobalt silver recovered. It is said that New York Experts have already been despatched to Rimouski, and communications are going on between the C. P.R. and salvage people. It is said here that the Lady Evelyn found that at low tide the highest parts of the Empress lies only 11 fathoms from the top of the water about two miles from shore. In this position and depth she is a menace to all big steamers, particularly if a heavy sea were running.

ONTARIO MAN'S GRAVE CHARGE AGAINST STORSTAD CONDUCT

Says They Launched No Boats Till Daylight--Collier, After Striking, Went Around the Bows of the Doomed Vessel and Lay There Ignoring Appeals

Montreal, June 1.—Lionel Kent, manager of the [illegible] Explosive Co., of Wicklifield, Ont., says that many of the women were assured after the collision that there was no danger. Discussing the part the Storstad played in the tragedy, Mr. Kent said:

"When I first went out the Storstad was less than fifty feet away from us. Then they went up around our bow, and eventually came to about a quarter of a mile away on the port side. I cannot understand their attitude in this case. When their lights first came there, people thought it was a vessel coming to rescue them and exclamations and expressions of relief came from all sides. Some said: "God bless you" as though they could hear. But not a single boat was put out until about daylight, when two little white boats put out. They may have had their own troubles, about which we knew nothing but to the most of us it seemed curious. "I was picked up and taken to the Storstad. Captain Andersen, who is a big man, stood stolid and silent at the top of the gangway as we came up. He may have been feeling very deeply indeed, but he did not betray any of his feelings to us. In fact, the whole crew, standing in knots about the deck and those seemed to treat the whole thing as a matter of course.

"The men all had a cabin, about twelve feet by fifteen feet long, and the women were the same. Men and women had scarcely a bit of clothing among them and women distraught with anxiety for husbands or brothers or others dear to them came running around among the men to search the new arrivals utterly unconscious of their attire. The men were just the same way the horror of the night seemed to wipe away all thought of anything of that sort, but the men did what they could to help them. People with only one or two garments would give them to others who needed them more, and there was a spirit of helpfulness and gallantry. After about an hour the captain came down and took out about six bottles of whiskey. He left onebottle for us, andtook another bottle forward to Dr. Grant, I think for other survivors."

WILL MIGRATE TO ULSTER IS CRY

Protestants Propose to Strengthen Their Position in North of Ireland

London June 2.— A movement is being quietly organized here and in other parts of the south of Ireland for an extensive migration into Ulster in case that province or any part of it is excluded from the rule of the coming Dublin Parliament. Letters from residents of Wexford have been printed in a number of newspapers advocating such a movement by Protestants. The start toward organization was effected late in April, when it seemed to be fairly certain that a part of Ulster was likely to be excluded from the provisions of the Home Rule billl founded on a firm belief that Protes-

This strange and startling step is tants in certain parts of the south of Ireland are sure to be discriminated against as soon as the Dublin Parliament convenes. Whether the residents having that view are right or wrong is not the question. So far as this movement is concerned those that believe they will be boycotted are so completely alarmed that numbers are contemplating a migration either to Ulster, England or America. Some predict that from 5,000 to 15,000 or 20,000 may emigrate in the course of a year or two.

Protestants Losing Trade.

According to one authority here much of the Catholic trade has been taken quietly from the Protestants in the last three months. This is believed by them to be due largely to the influence of the Gaelic League and the United States Irish League. The business men injured fear that the shift will become much larger just as soon as the bill passes its third reading.

A New Yorker who was recently in Belfast, and talked with a number of business men there, says that several houses report their sales in the south as good, but that the houses ordering are nervous, especially those whose heads are Protestants. Sales to Catholic houses in the south are larger than ordinarily.

A correspondent writes:

"In the south and west of Ireland numbers of exiled Americans are already making arrangements to arm the Fenian element, who uphold the view that John Redmond has betrayed the country and that they must take the matter in hand and assert Ireland's claim to complete independence. . . . This explains the growth of the Irish (Nationalist) Volunteers movement.

Fenians Threaten.

According to information which is supposed to be inspired, Redmond and several of his associates are seriously disturbed by the Fenians, who are unwilling to await what Redmond considers is the right moment to act. That the Fenians and other Nationalists will make things unpleasant for Unionists and Protestants who are not Nationalists is a firm conviction among numbers of the Protestants in the south, and so it is that a movement to emigrate receives support.

A queer political development of the feeling is found in an incipient movement that calls for the division of Ireland into counties by religious faith, as Switzerland is divided into cantons on a similar basis. To practical politicians this seems to be a most impractical proposition. It is advanced as an inducement for emigrating Protestants from the south to settle in Ulster counties rather than in England or America. The Rev. Horton is a warm advocate of this modern "Ulster Plantation."

LOTS O' ADVENTURE

Harrow Graduate as Coal Heaver, Landed in Police Court

His face begrimed with soot and his clothing in a dilapidated condition, Arthur Thomas Perch, 19 years of age, a graduate of the famous Harrow School, of England, appeared in the Montreal police court charged with deserting the steamer "Sargasso" at Quebec.

The appearance of Perch in court terminated a worldwide search, extending over several months conducted by his parents, resulting in finding the boy working as a fireman in the coal bunkers of the steamer Wabana. The young man's ambition was the navy but he finally signed for three years' apprenticeship on the merchant vessel Sargasso, but after six months sailing found the life very irksome. He wanted adventure so when the steamer was lying at Quebec he determined to get away from the binding discipline and see some of the world.

His sight seeing, however, did not go much farther than the few dollars he had in his pocket, and he was soon glad to get a job as coal heaver, at which he worked till discovered by the legal firm retained by his parents. The case against Perch was dismissed.

When making lemonade dissolve the sugar in a little hot water. This prevents the sugar from sinking to the bottom of the pitcher, while the small quantity of hot water used will not affect the temperature of the lemon-

Oil Piped For Navigation

The construction of a pipe line 220 miles long has enabled oil to replace wood for fuel for navigation and other purposes in the interior of Kongo.

Woman's Patent

Five separate articles can be cooked over a single gas burner at once without interference by the use of a utensil that an Ohio woman has patented.

To find whether hooks and eyes will wash without leaving rust marks, test them with a magnet. If they can be drawn by the magnet they contain steel and should not be put upon wash dresses.

For refracting either sunlight or artificial light for use as a curative agent, a Philadelphian invented a lens shaped glass vessel that can be filled with liquids of any desired color.

To Whiten a Table

If the kitchen table becomes stained and blackened, try cleaning it with bathbrick. Crush the bathbrick—taking care not to make it too small—damp the table with hot water, and sprinkle with the bathbrick. Now make some soapsuds and scrub the table in the ordinary way, using a fresh supply of water for rinsing. The table will look beautifully white after this treatment.

Skins Improve Flavor

New Zealand cattle raisers have found that the meat of dressed calves retains its flavor better when exported long distances if the skins be left on until ready for market.

Sugar For Wounds

Sugar has been added to the list of antiseptic and aseptic dressings, and we are told it not merely preserves the cells, but furnishes a nutrient element for them.

WE MUST NOW THINK OF FROCKS FOR THE SOUTHLAND

While still wrapped warmly in our furs we must begin to think of light, filmy frocks for warmer climes.

There is a tweeded duvetyn which promises to be a strong favorite for tailored suits and frocks and various new crepe weaves, to say nothing of the plaids, figured silks and cotton velvets in soft, attractive colorings that are being put forth for early spring and the southern resorts. Lace promises to be even more favored than it has been the past season, especially the finer meshes. Manufacturers have almost succeeded in imitating the spider's web. Bohemian and Cluny lace will be as popular as ever for trimming linen frocks and suits, for there is nothing to take their place in suitability and smartness.

No. 8106 shows an over blouse and tunic of chiffon over charmeuse. The shade is raspberry, and the marabout edging the wide armholes and the tunic is dyed to match. The underbodice is of net over tulle, and the girdle is of black velvet.

This design may be copied in size 36 with 4⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

Ruffles, shaped and gathered, will be equally modish with the tunics, draperies and "poufs" which have been so much in favor now for some time. In this little frock for the girl of 16 two shaped flounces are arranged to give a double tunic effect. The material is "Mystere" taffeta in a soft, pretty blue. The underblouse is of cream colored lace, and an effective touch of contrast is given by the girdle, which is of green satin.

No. 8106—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8110—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

Our Point of View

Suffragette proof glass will soon have to take the place of the staple article.

The accident to Sarah Bernhardt will probably retard her next "farewell" tour of this country.

President Wilson, of the U. S., says the trouble with business is "psychological." Just the reason for saving the business mind for more bewilderment.

Why was it necessary for a collier steamer to push ahead in a fog in which a passenger steamer stood still? The human element again.

* * *

And for such rescues as they were the wireless deserves the larger part of the credit.

Blame, in the latest ocean disaster, seems to lie all on one side.

When Winston Churchill becomes a full-fledged aviator he will be able to "go up in the air" in more ways than one at the approach of a militant suffragette.

A Letter From Carranza.

Dictator Huerta has posed both as soldier and statesman with no convincing proof of proficiency in either role. The last few days he seems to have devoted chiefly to efforts for keeping information of the fall of Torreon from the residents of the capital and vicinity. Francisco Villa has proved the real soldier of the war. Whether he is intellectually equipped for being of any large value to the country were it in peace is a matter for speculation. General Carranza, acknowledged by Villa as at least nominally the supreme leader of the constitutionalists, is probably the ablest statesman at present conspicuous in Mexican affairs.

A communication Carranza has written at the request of Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, tendered through Dr. H. A. Tupper of the International Peace Forum, is highly diplomatic in tone and very courteous. The gist of it is that he is at all times disposed to give attention to foreign representations brought through the agency of American officials, but he emphasizes the point that he should be notified that such mediation is at the request of the foreign power concerned. Carranza is politely positive in this matter.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps Ends Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, and you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the outside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid, truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T.P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps—just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache, or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

A WHEAT RECORD

An English Stack Went Unthrashed for Forty Years

The longest authentic period for which a wheat stack has been kept unthrashed is forty years. The story of this forty-year-old stack is briefly as follows: The crop of which the stack was built was grown in 1855. This stack and another belonged to two brothers, both farmers, who lived in the neighborhood of Harrogate, England. In March of the preceding year the Crimean War broke out, and the price of wheat rose by leaps and bounds. Shortly after the stacks were built the price of wheat rose to $23.25 per quarter, and at this price one of the brothers sold out. The other, however, determined not to sell until the price rose to $25.00.

In March, 1856, the war terminated, and the price of wheat fell. The farmer, however, stuck to his resolution and refused to sell. He kept his stack until 1895, when the farm passed into the hands of a younger brother, who then thrashed it out.

During the whole forty years of its existence it had enjoyed perfect immunity from rats, but was the abode of thousands of spiders. It yielded eighteen quarters of wheat, but the quality of the grain rendered it fit only for chicken feed.

DEATH'S AWFUL SWEEP.

Written for The Times by Rev. F. A. Conners.

A half a millions souls each day,
Death brings to early graves—
By gun and knife and alcohol,
Earthquake and tidal wave.

Hot lava bursting from the hills,
Explosions in the mines,
Auto smash-ups on the road
And train wrecks on the lines.

Fire, too, its victims claim,
A thousand in a day;
Rivers, lakes and ocean waves,
Make men their constant prey.

Lightning flashes east and west,
Hail-stone, snow and rain;
Cyclones in their fury sweep
Buildings, stock and grain.

War is raging everywhere,
On land and on the sea;
Cannon roar and bugle call,
Make dreadful melody.

From whence, Lord, have these evils come,
Or where did they begin?
We trace them to the fall of man,
They are the fruits of sin.

And whence, Lord, will these evils cease,
Or whence shall we be free?
Not till we pass the veil of death
And rest in peace with Thee.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 86.

A Minister's Plaint.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

A PHYSICIAN may have a pretty hard time of it with neighborhood gossip always ready to couple his name with some one of his women patients but I've decided that any man whose business is wholly dependent upon the favor of women can never be quite sure what happens to him. Therefore the minister's path is never a thornless one. With his Ladies' Aid Society and the various pink teas in which he is the sole representative of the male sex he must walk with exceeding care or there is a deal of fussing. And most congregations, I notice, are composed largely of women. The men find the weather too bad in winter and when the weather's nice they play golf. I do myself.

The minister of our church is departing. I nearly said "again." He is not departing "again"—he is merely the third to depart for one reason or another in the past 18 months. Mary and I entertained him at dinner just before he left, for he was something of a favorite with both of us.

"Are you sorry to go?" I asked him.

"Well, yes, Peter," he admitted. "I think I am. I'm like a bit of ivy—just beginning to take root and love the soil when I find I'd better tear up the roots and transplant them, or some vandal hand will do it for me. That's just about what is due to happen to me. You see, there is one very estimable lady with a tart tongue who has told me repeatedly that I can't preach. There's another who insists that I don't call on the parishioners enough, and there's still another who doesn't care much for my delivery. It isn't easy to be a minister, Peter."

I quickly reviewed the history of our little suburban church.

"What was the trouble with Mr. Ames?" I asked, naming his immediate predecessor.

"Well," said our minister, slowly, "he was a bit too old, they said. He lacked snap and intimate touch with the world. They thought he ought to travel and broaden his mind—on six hundred a year."

"Before that," I suggested acridly, for I remembered the kindly, white-haired old man who lacked snap, "they declared Mr. Martin was too young—and that his salary ought to be cut because he didn't have a family depending on him for support. A minister, of course, ought not be mercenary. They swore, too, that he flirted wildly with the girls in the congregation, though in reality he preserved an exceedingly sane balance on the subject."

"I suppose," said Mr. Dalton slowly, "that if he was merely civil to a pretty girl, Peter, the tongues would wag."

"They would and did," said I. "Then there was Smith—he was a tremendously nice fellow."

"Smith," said the minister reflectively, "had a number of children and the salary didn't pay all of his bills. Therefore Mrs. Smith began to substitute in the public schools to earn a little extra money and there was a scandal immediately. Some one of the trustees told them that the dignity of the church was grievously imperilled by Mrs. Smith's unparalleled conduct—and that they had too many children anyway."

"Great heavens!" I exclaimed. "What phenomenal nerve!"

"Then," added Mr. Dalton with a slight gleam of humor in his eyes, "he didn't attend the Ladies' Aid meetings regularly. That's been a failing of mine, I fear—"

"Yes?"

"I'm superintendent of the Sunday school," he explained, "and leader of the choir, preach two sermons every Sunday; attend all the church meetings through the week and review books for the local paper; but there seems to be a general feeling that I have too much time on my hands and that I ought to utilize it in making a systematic series of calls."

"Well," said I, "a man once told me that if the Angel Gabriel was sent to preach to an average congregation they'd find some fault with him. I believe it."

"Women," said the minister with a sigh, "are hard to suit."

Great Novels in a Nutshell

LORNA DOONE : : Condensed by Augusta Shelby

BLACKMORE'S novel, "Lorna Doone," has surrounded Devonshire with the glamour of romance and thousands have been induced to visit the fair land by reading the book. Here is the story in brief:

John Ridd, a young farmer, climbs to the top of a cliff in the vicinity of his home and falls exhausted. When he regains his senses a young, beautiful girl is bathing his head. She tells him her name is Lorna Doone, and at this he is dismayed, for the Doones are the outlaws of the countryside. Almost immediately there appear several of this terrible clan and John is forced to hide between two large rocks in the water to escape them.

For six years the young farmer is haunted with the memory of this beautiful girl. Then, one day, now grown to sturdy manhood, he climbs the cliff again and finds her, more beautiful even than he has remembered her. Again and again he braves death to meet her, and one day, in her bower, she tells him the story of the Doones; how her grandfather, Sir Ensor Doone, had been driven from his northern lands, only to take ruthless possession of this neighborhood; of his tyranny; of her cousin's, Carver Doone's, infatuation for her.

Three times after that the farmer makes the trip and no Lorna awaits him. Then by accident he learns of her grandfather's serious illness and that she is a prisoner in his house. Through countless dangers he makes his way to her. She gives him this warning: "You must watch this house day and night if you wish to save me. You see that tree with seven rooks' nests. If you see only six, I am in peril and want you. If you see but five, I am carried away by Carver."

The signal, only six nests, is not long in coming, and John hastens to Lorna's side. She takes him into the presence of the dying chieftain, who, being defied by the lovers, cries: "Fools ye are; be fools forever. Boy and girl, be boy and girl—until you have grandchildren."

Evil days follow for the lovers. A terrible winter comes on and there is much suffering. Lorna is imprisoned by the new chief of the Doones until, taking his life in his hands, John enters the stronghold with a sled and carries her away to his mother's cottage in the valley.

The outlaws quickly follow him and make a desperate attack upon the farm, but are finally repulsed. Then John, leading a band of outraged farmers, makes a counter attack upon the Doones, but this comes to naught.

By order of the court of chancery, Lorna is at last remanded to the custody of her guardian, Earl Brandir, in London, and is forced to leave the cottage—much to the lovers' grief. There it is found that she is really Lady Lorna Dugal, a great heiress. The breach between the farmer and his sweetheart seems greater than ever.

But John must see her again and so travels to London, where he wins the favor of her uncle by saving his life, and, in honor of this gallantry and for the sake of his lady, the King makes him a knight.

The happy twain, accompanied by a noble throng, are before the altar to be united when a shot is heard and the bride falls into her lover's arms. He, like a madman, runs from the church, springs upon a horse and pursues a fleeing rider, Carver Doone. How they fight and Carver finally sinks in a bog forms one of the most thrilling chapters of the novel.

John himself is seriously injured and it is many days before his eyes open to see bending over him his adored Lorna. By a miracle almost she has escaped death from the bullet of her cousin.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

CHAMPAGNE RHUBARB COMPOTE.

Wipe, but do not peel, the rhubarb, cut it into three-inch lengths, lay it in a wide saucepan, barely cover with water, and add a little sugar. Simmer over a gentle fire until the rhubarb is tender, but not broken. Remove, draining well from the juice. Lay the pieces in a glass dish, sweeten the juice to taste, add a few drops of cochineal if the color is not very bright, and boil it rapidly for 10 minutes. When this has somewhat cooled off, pour over the pieces of rhubarb.

RHUBARB TARTLETS.

Make some tartlet cases of good short crust, and bake them in a quick oven. They must be well cooked, but not of too dark a color. Let them become quite cold. Stew some rhubarb with sugar to sweeten, but only just enough water at the bottom of the pan to prevent the contents from burning. Ginger or lemon flavoring to taste can be added if desired. When quite cold put a few spoonfuls in each tartlet and serve. With a little whipped cream piled up in the centre of each this makes an attractive sweet.

RHUBARB AND ORANGE JAM.

This jam although very nice, does not keep long, and therefore it is not advisable to make too large a quantity at a time. Clean half a dozen sweet oranges, remove the rind, scrape off as much of the white pith as possible, and boil in water for about two hours. Drain and shred finely as though for marmalade. Remove the pith and pips from the pulp, and place it in a preserving pan with two pounds of rhubarb cut into small pieces, and three pounds and a half of preserving sugar. Boil slowly until the jam sets when tested on a cold plate.

PLANNING A GRADUATE'S FUTURE

Grace La Rue

"Choose Practical Work," Advises Grace La Rue

By ELEANOR AMES

EVERY June an army of young girls is graduated from the various schools of the land. The majority of these girls face the question of what to do to earn a livelihood. More of them have won their diplomas through sacrifice than by the easy path of financial plenty. They struggled to get an education that they might the better get a living.

Once there was not much of a problem ahead of the girl graduate. She was graduated that she might teach school. She worked single-minded along that line. She expected before long to resign the school teacher's job and "get married." Then her wage-earning days were over.

But that was the day before yesterday. Today she knows she has to make her own way; she glories in the independence, and marriage as a final solution is the last thing in her alert and active mind.

She also knows that all avenues are more or less crowded, and she must be among the fittest to survive. Meanwhile, unless she has some decided talent, she is more or less at sea as to what line of endeavor to follow.

Grace La Rue talked to me the other day about the "sweet girl graduate." She said she wished every girl might get the right start in business life and not have to make the struggle so many know.

"I am heartily in favor of the vocational expert," said she. "So few of us know best exactly what we are best fitted for. We know what we like, but we don't always know what we can do best. And some study and expert advice at the right moment will make such a tremendous difference later. My advice to the girl starting in business is to choose some profession where her services will always be in demand, and where she will have a chance to rise.

"For example, we will always wear clothes, eat food, have homes, need expert care when we are ill, and demand amusement. Each and every one of those lines has some branch which needs women workers and offers opportunities for advancement.

"The bright girl who has the desire to succeed will develop as she has experience. She will keep her eyes open, and be willing to give full service for value received. And she will also be shrewd enough, I hope, to see that she receives full value for her services. Let her avoid the rut. Let her try to broaden along the way of practical individuality.

"This is the age of specialization. It is also the age of novelty and originality. The girl who can hit a new angle in her work, which shall be popular to her patrons or valuable to her employer is making strides toward success. If she is an artist in any way let her see that her art is either so practical that folks must have it, or so novel and so alluring that the rich will be willing to pay for it.

"Good health, fearlessness, earnestness, the willingness to work and belief in her right to succeed will give a girl a big start on the success avenue. Fearlessness does not mean boldness or aggressiveness. Belief in herself does not mean conceit.

"I shall be glad if the day comes that there will be so many vocational centres that the girl seeking facts about her own capabilities may have the same opportunity for advice that she has in case of illness. Doctors of careers are quite as important, to my mind, as doctors of health. But if the girl has to take the plunge for herself let her do something that the world needs, that it just can't get along without. Let her be practical. The world can do without art, but it must have bread."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I read your advice to young girls and thought I would ask you about my love affair. First, I am 24 years old.

Six years ago I met a young man that I promised to marry after a courtship of several months. I didn't feel as though I had the right love for him, but thought perhaps it was love since he admired me so much.

No definite arrangements were made for a wedding, as we were both young.

Then I met the real one. A dashing blonde soldier of fortune, well educated and a world-wide traveller. After knowing him a week he asked me to marry him. I explained everything to him, but he was so infatuated with me and I with him that within a month we were married. Did I love him? Ah; you cannot imagine how I loved him. I told him my every thought. I worshipped him! We were so happy until he learned I was to be a mother. Then he left me with the intention of going South and me joining him for the winter. He left me five times in this way, always to do better.

Each time I waited and longed for his return. He loved me at times, and then he would mistrust me and accuse me wrongly. He had no reason to do so, only that he had seen so much of bad women that he judged all that way.

I did everything in my power to make him happy. He seemed to love me, in fact, as much as I him, but he wanted to be always on the go. I returned to him every time after a separation of several months.

My people are in good circumstances, but they refused to help me if I went back to him after our third separation.

My husband's people know I have done right, so they are keeping the little girl for me and I am working. They refused my husband a place at his father's house, and he left town for parts unknown.

Affairs became so bad that I was compelled to leave him the last time. He mistreated me, and wanted me to let his people keep her (the baby). I have been away from him a year. He was back here looking for me, but I compelled myself to stay out of his sight.

I admit I nearly went insane from grief, and I don't feel as though I can ever kill the love for him.

I feel as though I want a home with my baby. My former sweetheart offers us a home. Do you think I could learn to forget?

I haven't as yet procured a divorce. It would be easy to do, but I cannot endure the thought of the tie being severed.

My people are very anxious for me to marry the one I met first, but I love him as a brother, but that is all.

"LOUISE."

WHAT a sad story, and what a true one.

I knew how it was going to end before I'd got through with the very first page of your letter, poor, foolish, headstrong, selfish, warm-hearted "Louise."

You had a pearl in the hollow of your hand—a beautiful, pure, perfect pearl—and you threw it away for a piece of colored glass that sparkled when you looked at it.

And now the glass has turned out to be what it was. And it has cut your finger, and you are hurt, and you are sorry, and you wish you had never seen the poor cheap bit of broken glass, and that you had never thrown the beautiful pearl away.

What are you going to do about it? That's something that no one in the world can tell but you and the man who truly loves you.

If you were tired of the man who has so ill treated you; if you had waked up from the hideous nightmare your life with him must have been, it would be one thing—but you haven't.

You're still asleep, poor woman, still dreaming.

This man who is so constant, so faithful, so true, how can you for a moment compare him to a selfish brute like the one you seem to prefer?

"A dashing blonde soldier of fortune," that's what he calls himself, I suppose, this romantic being who has wrecked your life and broken your heart.

He'll call himself that when he's a sudden beggar going in to some midnight mission to get a hot cup of coffee and a place to sleep a few minutes. He'll call himself that when he's in jail as a vagrant, and when he dies somewhere in some charity hospital his eyes will be full of tears; no, they won't be tears for you or his little child, bless you; there'll be a dozen yous by that time. There always are, you know, with that sort of man.

The tears won't be for any of the women in this man's life, nor any of the men either, but for himself.

He'll cry to think what a pity it is that people should call such a handsome, blonde, dashing soldier of fortune a bum, for that is what they will call him, and that is what he will be, my dear, and not all the dreams you can dream from now till the great day of the great awakening will ever make him anything different.

So long as the world is full of women like you—poor, sentimental, self-deceiving soul that you are—men will wonder and say that they will never understand, and they never will.

Take a clean broom, my dear, and sweep all the rubbishy sentimentality out of your poor broken life.

Put this "soldier of fortune" out of your heart once and forever. When you have done that it will be time for you to decide about the rest of your life.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How "Misplaced" Sympathy Weakens the Will-Power

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE word "misplaced" is often used as an adjective to modify sympathy. Almost, as a universal proposition, it may be said that sympathy, except in actually demonstrable and evident physical distress, is misplaced.

That is to say, proffered acts and words which pamper and spoil and coddle another, because they are expected, or even at times deserved, like almsgiving, often do more harm than good.

If you are no stranger to suffering, you will, now that you are out of such bondage, realise that sympathy plays havoc with self-help. It, in short, does injury and is far from beneficent.

Grateful tears, or tears that reach forth from the heart for another's woes, real or imaginary, "butter no parsnips." To weep for the ills that are narrated and unseen is impossible.

A brother's distresses claim, perchance, the soft intercourse from heart to heart, which wafts many a sigh from Indus to the pole. But even inter-family sympathy is challenged, if not repelled, when not tangible to the five Gargantuan senses.

To each his sufferings. All are men
Condemned alike to groan;
The tender for another's pain,
The unfeeling for his own.

Let it be said for the nonce, with a thrown gauntlet of defiance which brooks no opposition, that the unfeeling individual—selfish though he oft-times is—becomes an unwitting benefactor to the one crying peccavi, to the morbid, bethoughted one who craves your tender mercies.

The weak soul within itself unblessed, which leans for all hope and pleasure on another's breast, is a sorry figure.

Sympathy thus craved is rarely, if ever, bestowed. It is worse, if possible, than fishing for flattery. Most besought sympathy meets a poor shift and a cold reception.

And justly so. The person who is polluted with the obsession that his troubles, trials and tribulations are to be assuaged by adding them to another's burdens—the unwilling recipient of which has no doubt successfully hidden his—will be nine times in ten a sadder, if no wiser, person after his lamentations.

Shall you weep if a Napoleon fails? Shall you shriek if the palladium of Bulgaria's liberties is crushed to earth? Are you in high dudgeon if the Sultan of Morocco is slain by some mad Mullah of the desert?

Just so much feeling will be shown you when your aches and pains, miseries and murmurings are poured into the ears of Tom, Dick and Harry.

There are, true enough, moments even in a Stoic's life when the heart is so full of emotion that, if, by chance, some trifle shakes it as a grain of sand does a mighty, becalmed pond, it vibrates into overflowing eddies and spills across the enslaving banks, never again to drop back.

In misery's darkest cavern known,
His useful care was ever nigh,
Where hopeless anguish poured his groan
And lonely want retired to die.

Answers to Health Questions

A SUFFERER—(1), what is migrim or migraine? (2), what are the causes? (3), is there a permanent remedy? (4), is it true that migraine leaves the patient at middle age or later? My habits of life are good, and still my headaches, which are very severe and completely prostrating at times, appear in spite of all my efforts to eradicate this trouble. My only hope is that I will be freed from this affliction in later life.

1—This is a type of headache which is limited to one side and accompanied with nausea.

2—They are too many to name.

3—Experiment with diets, Seltzer water and alkalis.

4—It often stops of its own accord. It is better to continue your attempts to find causes and cures. Starvation diets do much good.

Mrs. F.—(1), what will cure ozaena? (2) also palpitation of heart caused by "indigestion"?

1—Hot douches of the alkaline antiseptic fluid, diluted three times and used often will help. A nasal surgeon should be seen.

2—Eat less and more simply. Eschew all heavy diet, peppers, mustards, salt, soups and hot victuals.

J. A. C.—When hair is falling out would it be advisable to shave the head? Is there any danger of the hair not growing afterward?

Shaving is not necessary, although the hair will return if you do it. Electricity, massage, green vegetables and lots of rest are helpful.

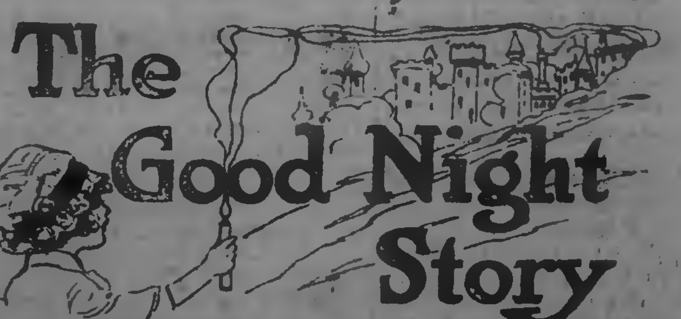
What Queens Spend for Dress

WHO is the most extravagant Queen in Europe in regard to dress? Judging from inquiries it would appear that Queen Victoria of Spain easily takes the first place as the best dressed royal lady. She obtains all her dresses from Paris, and has to pay over to the great firms of the Rue de la Paix a sum of no less than £8000 a year.

The German Empress has all her dresses made in Berlin, at a cost of not far from £4000. An equal sum is expended by the Czarina, who dresses in private very simply and only goes in for expensive robes on state and festival occasions, which, however, are not frequent in view of the retired life of the Russian imperial family.

The same sum represents the cost of dresses to the wife of M. Poincare. Queen Elena of Italy spends only about £200 a year, while the dress budget of Queen Elizabeth of Belgium does not exceed £2000. Her neighbor, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, dresses still more modestly and spends on her toilette only a few hundred pounds.

But the palm of simplicity belongs to Queen Mary of England, who has all her dresses, with the exception of those for state occasions, made at home under her own supervision, and with her own co-operation, so that her budget is the lowest of all.



The Good Night Story

Little Rooster's Punishment—By Vernon Merry

ONCE upon a time a proud, wilful, young rooster, who had lost a leg, a wing and one eye in quarrels with the other fowls of the farm yard, said to his mother that he was tired of the company of his brothers and sisters and cousins, and was going out into the world to seek his fortune.

She, who loved her poor, little, crippled son in spite of his faults, pleaded with him to stay with her. He only laughed.

"You are a simple woman, good mother," he said. "I have wit and talent. My place is not among common country fowl. Good-by."

As he half-flew, half-hopped over the fields he came to a tiny streamlet almost dried up by the sun.

"My friend," cried the streamlet, "I am so weak I cannot carry away these leaves which obstruct my passage. With a stroke of your beak you can restore me to life. I shall surely reward you."

"Do I look like one whose business it is to sweep brooks?" asked the rooster, continuing on his way.

A little farther on he saw the wind lying breathless on the ground.

"Come to my aid," it cried. "I am reduced by the heat of the day. I allowed myself to be lulled to sleep by the perfume of the roses, and, lo, here I am almost lifeless. If you will fan me a little with your wing I shall gain strength enough to rise."

"You have often played tricks with me," replied the rooster, "and now I shall not help you."

Then the traveller came to a field where some weeds were burning. A feeble little flame called out:

"Ho, friend, I am dying for want of air. Please bring me a few straws and I shall be thankful."

"I will serve you as you deserve," exclaimed the rooster, leaping upon the weeds and quickly smothering the flame.

Crowing loudly and strutting proudly he came at last to a village. He had hardly entered the street when a porter saw him and carried him home to roast for dinner.

"Give me some boiling water," he said to his wife.

"Oh, good water," begged the rooster, "do not scald me."

"Did you have pity on me?" answered the water, boiling with indignation.

"Oh, fire, do not burn me," cried the rooster when he was laid upon the stove.

"Did you have pity on me?" asked the fire, blazing fiercely in anger.

The porter, seeing his dinner charred to a coal, threw it out the window, where the wind caught it up and carried it to the top of the church steeple. There the proud, naughty rooster may be seen today. Black, dried up, stripped of all his feathers, he is now known as Weathercock, and is pointed out to little chickens as an example of what end bad, little roosters always come to.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

WAR WITH INSECTS

Campaign is Carried on in a Number of Countries

The greatest war that is going on at the present time is not a war in which both sides are men. It is not a war in which rifles or cannon play a part. The biggest battles of today are with a much smaller foe than man. They are battles with insects.

Although unknown to many people, these battles in which men and insects are the combatants are adding a new chapter to the history of the world.

South Africa is one of the greatest of these battlegrounds. There hostilities are being carried on relentlessly. Locusts are one of the enemies in South Africa. As soon as there is a swarm of locusts, news is flashed to the Department of Agriculture at Pretoria. As a result a battle ensues with sprays of arsenic instead of rifles. The locusts, due to these battles, are being rapidly exterminated.

On the west coast of Africa a great campaign is taking place against a close relative of one of our own foes, the mosquito. In Africa it has been definitely established that the mosquito is the transmitter of three most terrible diseases—malaria, elephantiasis and yellow fever. If a man is bitten only once by a mosquito there may develop any one of these horrible diseases. The same methods are being used against the African mosquito as they are using in the United States in a civil war against the mosquito. Hundred of ponds are being drained of water are being covered by a thick oil.

A little fish known as the "million" is the weapon used in the great battle against the mosquito in West India and the Hawaiian Islands. This little fish is a natural enemy of the mosquito. The beneficial work of the "million" was first noticed at Barbados, whose lakes and streams were full of this small fish. Barbados did not suffer from the scourges brought by mosquitoes, but the adjacent islands, where the "million" did not live, suffered greatly. This suffering is diminishing since the introduction of the "million" into all ponds and streams that cannot be drained or covered with oil.

In the Panama Canal Zone the conflict between man and insect has been remarkable. Man has won all of the battle. Yellow fever in all of its horror, a direct result of germs carried by the mosquito, has been driven away from Panama by a successful war on the pest.

Another pest on which a great onslaught is being made is the tsetse fly. The record of this insect is but little less terrible than that of the mosquito, for among the diseases it carries is the sleeping sickness, for which there is no cure and which has swept away whole communities. The tsetse has killed more than 200,000 in the Uganda protectorate alone. The tsetse fly is being fought by burning bushes around the margins of rivers and ponds and around cities and encampments. The men of Africa are wearing a sort of a sticky flypaper on their backs in the lands where the tsetse fly swarms, and millions are being attracted and killed by this method.

The United States and Canada have already made great progress against the fly and the mosquito, whose dangers have just been recently realized.

The war against these terrible tiny foes will not only make civilized countries more healthful, but will vastly improve life and conditions and open up to civilization part of the tropical and semi-tropical countries.

Tools for the Farm

1 10-tooth crosscut handsaw.
1 4½ tooth rip-saw.
1 set firmer chisels, ¼-inch to 1½- by eighths.
1 set bits, ¼-inch to 1-inch by sixteenths.
1 Jack plane.
1 Fore plane.
1 Smooth plane.
1 Draw knife.
1 Hammer.
1 Nail set.
1 Carpenter's square.
1 Try square.
1 Two-foot folding rule.
1 Tool grinder.

There are many other tools, not included in this list, that are very handy and useful, but with those given all ordinary repairs to buildings may be made.

The cost of these tools is not great, and will soon be saved over the cost of repairing by a carpenter.

Repairs to buildings should be made just as soon as the necessity for them is discovered. If a repair is postponed for a more convenient time, in a great many cases that time never comes, and in other cases the cost will be greatly increased. Repairing increases both the appearance of buildings and their life.

Keeping everything in good repair, such as buildings, fences, machinery, ditches, etc., is the work of a prosperous farmer. With the tools listed here, at hand, a farmer can make repairs quickly at a very little cost.

MODERN TRAVEL

The railway locomotive is just over one hundred years old, and at first it exercised but a small part of its present tremendous influence on the business of the world. We get some idea of the comparatively recent advent of the railway when we remember that Queen Victoria was the first British monarch to use the railway as a means of travel. This was in 1842. "We arrived here yesterday morning," she wrote from Buckingham Palace to the King of the Belgians, "having come from Windsor in half an hour, free from dust and crowd and heat, and I am quite charmed with it." It was the Prince Consort who had persuaded the Queen to make the venture by rail, to which she was adverse. He had already made frequent trips by rail, but, as a writer in the London Chronicle says, he was not quite hardened to it, as he had been heard to say, on alighting from the train, "Not quite so fast, next time, Mr. Conductor, if you please."

That was not very long ago, and already railways girdle the world and trains travel at three or four times the speed that alarmed the Prince Consort. Everything has been revolutionised by the railways. In an Ontario town there is a business man who, although he has lived beside a railway all his life, never boarded a train. It appears that he dreads the velocity of so much weight. So far as he is concerned, he feels that to travel in a train would be unsafe. Occasionally similar cases of people entirely unused to railway travel are found in progressive Canadian communities.

DOMINION JOTTINGS

It is said that eighty per cent. of the population of Saskatchewan is engaged in agriculture.

Out of 85 samples of maple sugar examined in the laboratory of the Inland Revenue, only 43 were the genuine article. The other samples were adulterated with other sweetening materials. Out of 128 samples of maple syrup, only 86 were pure.

Seldom has a man broken more Statutes, acts or by-laws by a single act than Bernard Wright of Saskatoon, who shot a duck on Sunday. He broke the Sunday law in that he was shooting on Sunday, he broke the city by-law, in that he discharged a firearm inside the city limits, he broke the game act, in that he was shooting out of season, and he broke another section of the same act, in that he shot game without a license. His duck might have cost him $102.75, but he got off with $12.75, and a warning.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

No Substance, No Shadow

Yesterday afternoon a very slightly built lady walked down George Street wearing a tight fitting hobble skirt. A bystander remarked to the Times, "Coming events cast their shadows before, but that girl ought to realize that lack of substance casts no shadow behind."

Rifle Ranges Opened.

The Rifle Ranges were formally opened yesterday afternoon by Lt.-Col. Clegg, Commanding Officer of the 57th Peterborough Rangers. Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, was to have officiated at the ceremonies but was unavoidably detained.

Child Dies in Accident.

Cricket Place, Ashburnham, was the scene of a fatality on Sunday evening, when the fourteen months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen, 24 Cricket Place, was fatally injured. The little one had been put to bed about 8 o'clock. The child got up and fell out of the window. It was rushed to the hospital but died three hours later.

Well Known Local Cricketer hurt.

Thomas Shore, of Graham's Pool Room on Hunter street, had the misfortune to fracture his leg at the ankle yesterday morning while placing a chair at the side of a trap door to guard customers from falling. Mr. Shore is official scorer for the local cricket club.

Schoolboy Friend of Duke.

Mr. Thos. Q. Quartermaine of the City Engineer's staff, knew our Royal visitor of yesterday in his or their younger days. Mr. Quartermaine often played polo and football with the Duke at Blackheath. Mr. Quartermaine describes the Duke in his younger days, as now, as a wholesouled and democratically impelled member of the aristocracy.

New Magistrate for Kirkfield.

Lindsay Post: Mr. H.D. McInnis, one of Kirkfield's most prominent citizen and merchants, was in town Wednesday to be sworn in as a justice of the peace for that progressive village. Formerly all the duties of this office at Kirkfield had to be taken by an official living some four or five miles away, but things will now be much more convenient for the residents of Kirkfield.

Local Man Drowned.

Wesley Hicks, an employee of the Peterboro Lumber Company, was drowned on Friday morning at seven o'clock while endeavoring to loosen a log jam on the Mississagua River, about eight miles above Gull Lake. When the jam broke he rode one of the logs but when it collided with another he was knocked off and the velociey of the current swept him under. The unfortunate man was unmarried and resident about a mile North of the Burleigh.

A Tribute to The Duke.

Possibly the strongest tribute payable to so important a personage was that paid yesterday by a member of the Veteran's Association to the Duke of Connaught. This veteran said: "The Duke, although an Aristocrat, is a plain man among plain people. If I were in trouble I would first choose the Duke as a Juror." The Duke shook hands with Capt. Langford, Mr. John Kylie and others.

The False Advertising Bill.

Under the new "False Advertising" Bill local merchants may say that their goods are "the best in the city." That is a matter of opinion. They must not, for instance, say that dress goods are "All wool, a yard wide, and guaranteed not to rip, ravel or change color in the wash unless such statements are absolutely true. There is a very heavy penalty for misrepresentation.

Victorial Candidate Withdraws.

Lindsay Post: Mr. A. J. Varcoe, Reeve of Mariposa, who accepted the Liberal nomination for South Victoria Riding, has withdrawn from the field. He placed his resignation in the hands of the executive of the Liberal Association on Friday, and at a meeting held last night it was accepted. A convention will be called for Saturday next in the Academy, for the purpose of nominating another candidate.

The West Didn't Appeal to Him.

Yesterday a young man, who until a few weeks ago, was employed in a local factory, remembered Horac Greenley's advice "Go West young man." The young man referred to resides once more in Ashburnham. He went to Fort William. There getting thirsty, he went into a bar and ordered, possibiy, a glass of sarsaprilla. He saw hungry faces watching as his hand went into his pant's pocket for the price. He was afraid to 'Flash his roll." and returned home, and now without employment here and wishes he had stayed East. There are others."

VOL. XLI, NO. 128. WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 3, 1914. PRICE TWO CENTS

CANADIAN PACIFIC OFFICIALS RESIST RELEASE OF STORSTADT

Claim That Nothing Short of Two Millions Will Suifice ---Offer Bond of $234,000

Montreal, June 2.—Supporting their argument that the Storstadt was not to blame for the collision in the St. Lawrence, which sank the Empress of Ireland, the owners of the collier were to-day, through their lawyer here, C. A. Duclos, K.C. preparing an application to Hon. Justice Dunlop in the Admiralty Court, demanding the release of the collier from the arrest under which the C.P.R. has placed her. They state that they deny all liability for the accident, and argue that the collier should be released by the putting up of a bond of $234,000.

This application will come up before Judge Dunlop on Thursday morning. The owners of the Storstadt are given as the Actieselskabet maritime of Norway.

Not Responsible.

Mr. A. R. Holden, counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an interview to-day, stated that the railway company contends that no amount of bail under $2,000,000 is sufficient to allow of the release of the steamship Storstadt from its present confinement. Mr. Duclos, on the other hand asserts that the $234,600 to be offered in bail by the Norwegian Company is quite adequate in view of the fact (as alleged by the owners of the Storstadt) that the Captain and crew of the big collier were not responsible for the collision.

It is the intention of the owners of the Storstadt, should the release from arrest be granted, to take the ship into drydock, not in New York, as had been rumored, but either in Montreal or Quebec. The condition of the Storstadt, it is stated, is too precarious to allow of its trip around the gulf and down to New York harbor.

The question as to whether it will be feasible to raise the foundered Empress of Ireland will have to be settled by Lloyds, the insurance underwriters. When the vessel went to the bottom the C.P.R. automatically relinquished all claim to her, so it was argued by the marine experts of the company to-day.

THE AGRESSIVE FRENCH

In the Senate a few days ago Senator Choquette moved that "no person shall be employed in the Post Office Department in either Ontario or Quebec, unless he or she speak both English and French," and he announced also that he would move that this apply to all departments of the Government. Evidently our French fellow citizens are determined to make French an official language in Ontario as well as in Quebec. But this can never be. These French agitators should be made to realize that they are living in a British and not in a French country.

SALVATION ARMY BUSINESS PRACTICALLY AT A STANDSTILL

No Officers Who Can Sign Checks--Council is Now Without Quorum

Toronto, June 2.—Through the loss of Commissioner Rees, Colonel Maidment and Brigadier Potter, the Governing Council of the Salvation Army in Canada is without a quorum. The Council consisted of five members, the other two being Colonels Gaskin and Turner. Business is practically at a standstill. Cheques cannot be signed owing to the death of Commissioner Rees and Chief Secretary and the Financial Secretary.

Funeral Time Changed.

Colonel Gaskin has changed the time of the funeral service on Saturday from 2 p.m. to 2.30 p.m.

The bodies will be on view in the Arena from 10 a.m. on Saturday to 2 p.m.

Commissioner McKie, who will arrive from England this week to take the place of the late Commissioner Rees, will preach at the memorial service to be held in the Arena on Sunday.

Colonel Gaskin has received a telegram from Montreal to the effect that the following comrades have been identified among the dead:

Wife and two children of Brother Burrows, Galt.

Miss Dunn.

Child of Mr. Ernest Ford, Staff Bandsman, one of the unidentified.

Quiet at Headquarters.

Quietness reigned at the Salvation Army Headquarters today. Restless anxious crowds watching the bulletin boards and clamoring for information at the offices of the army were conspicuous by their absence. The splendid organizing qualities of the officers had borne fruit in the allaying of anxieties and the confirmation of bad news.

A serene resignation had at length set its seal upon the Army.

NO QUORUM

Last night the Board of Education was to have held a meeting. However, only four members showed up, viz., Messrs. Hill, Ackerman, Miller and Smith. The matter of ventilation of the Institute was to have been considered.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fine and moderately warm

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IS EMINENTLY QUALIFIED

Mr. R. J. Soden, the chosen candidate of the Liberal Conservatives of West Peterborough for the Ontario Legislature, was born at Mohill, Ireland. Mr. Soden is no novice in politics having taken great and practical interest in the science of Government. Mr. Soden has been many years in the city and is known, not only as an eloquent speaker but as a successful business man, well qualified to sustain Peterborough's interests in Toronto.

MERCHANTS' BANK HAD A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The fifty-first annual meeting of the Merchants' Bank of Canada amply demonstrates the fact that this bulwark of Canadian finance, last year not only equalled but excelled all past records of that bank.

The meeting was held in the Board Room, the chair being ably filled by Sir Montague Allan, the President.

On its average capital and rest of $13,348,100 the bank earned 9.13 p.c. which is a trifle lower than the preceding year.

The capital stock has been further augmented by the disposal of unsold shares, making the dividend disbursements somewhat greater.

The assets of the bank are of high grade and the bank is operated on progressive principles with a due conservative regard to shareholders and depositors. In this issue is a full report of the annual meeting which is most interesting and instructive reading.

His Majesty King George is 49 years of age to-day. A few church bells will peal, no doubt, in honor of the occasion. It being a statutory holiday, the banks will be closed.

RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSN' ASK COUNCIL FOR A NEW MARKET

Characterised Vendors of Butter as Perfectly Honest---Does Butter Shrink in Weight by Process of Evaparation? Suggestion that Present Market Arcade be converted into Stores for Rent.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night, his worship Mayor Buller presiding. There were also present Aldermen Anderson, Green, Duffus, Dobbin, Stratton, Geo. Duncan, Saunders, Johnston and Langford.

A batch of communications went to their respective committees.

Committee Reports.

The standing committee reported their monthly business, as reported in these columns from time to time. The reports were adopted.

Hydro-Radial Railways.

The Mayor and Chairman Ald. Johnston were authorized to arrange for a public meeting regarding Hydro-Radial Railways, and for having Hon. Adam Beck address the meeting.

New Market Wanted.

A deputation from the Retail Merchants' Association waited upon Council and reported in favor of changes in the market regulations. They asked for covers on the market square for vendors and buyers; in fact a pavilion and downstairs market. That the selling of fowl by weight be not compulsory. Their report characterized vendors of butter as perfectly honest as to weight; the weight of butter sometimes sinks below the standard owing to evaporation before sold; it was suggested that so long as a batch of butter averaged up to 16 ounces a pound no prosecution be made. The deputation also suggested that only farmers be permitted to sell fresh meat on the market, and that only farmers, producers and gardeners be allowed vending privileges of the market. The petitioners went further, and advised that the Arcade in the market building be converted into stores in which event the increased revenue therefrom would more than compensate for any outlay on a new ground floor market.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Dobbin the questions advanced together with the scheme suggested for a new ground floor market, be referred to the Property Committee to act in conjunction with a committee from the Retail Merchants' Association to report back to Council.

While nothing definitely can be accomplished this year, Council was in sympathy with the deputation's desire to advance the general interests of all concerned in their suggestions; and the joint committee will report on available sites for a new Market.

Removal of Bell Poles.

A by-law authorizing an agreement with the Bell Telephone Co. for the removal of their distributing poles from Charlotte street to the rear of properties, passed its several readings.

Bathing Place.

Ald. Johnston and Stratton reported in favor of a public bathing place at the foot of Lake street, and erect a proper building 14 x 16 at an estimated cost of $200 together with $100 for maintenance.

Ald. Johnston and Dobbin moved the adoption of this report.

Ald. Duncan and Saunders moved that the baths be provided in the north ward at the old Martin property west side the river, north of Nicholls Park.

Both resolutions were lost, and the matter was shelved.

Railway Turn-Out.

The Street Railway Co. was voted permission to construct a 350 ft turn-out on Charlotte street between Park and Reid.

Preference to Ratepayers.

Discussion elicited the information that wherever possible ratepayers will be employed on city work in preference to foreigners and floating applicants.

Resolution of Sympathy.

On motion of Ald. Stratton and Dobbin, a resolution of sympathy with all who are bereaved through the "Empress of Ireland" disaster will be drafted and forwarded to the proper authorities.

The Northern Navigation Co's Floating Palace, Steamship "Noronic."

STEAMSHIP 'NORONIC' A MARVEL OF MARINE ARCHITECTURE

Peer of All Boats and Practically Unsinkable---Inaugural Trip Pleasingly Demonstrated Advantages of G.T.R. and Northern Navigation Co. Service from Coast to Coast. Railway Travel and Connections Par Excellence---A Panoramic Route of Varied Interest.

To stirring strains from Sarnia's band, congratulatory salutations from scores of steam-craft whistles, and in the presence of a multitude of keenly interested spectators, the Northern Navigation Company's magnificent new steamer, "Noronic" pulled out from Sarnia, (Ont.), wharf at one p.m., Saturday, May 30th, on her inaugural trip to Cleveland and back to Windsor, Ont. This event marked the ever-growing popularity of the Grand Trunk and Northern Navigation Company's unexcelled route from the Atlantic to the Pacific, necessitating increased facilities for public enjoyment, now that the Grand Trunk Pacific is in operation, of the 3,200 miles of delightful panoramic transportation via rail and lake.

Hosts and Guests.

The inaugural trip of the 'Noronic,' unquestionably the finest passenger steamship on the Canadian upper lakes, was an auspicious one inasmuch as she carried on board the Vice-Presidents of the Grand Trunk System, the President and Directors of the Northern Navigation Company Limited and other general officers, of both companies together with ladies, besides some 375 invited guests.

Most of the prominent newspapers in Canada and the United States sent special representatives on the trip, including F. H. Yokome, editor Peterborough Examiner; Chas. H. J. Mitchell, of the Peterborough Times, and Miss Flossie Mitchell. Among the large number of representative people present were: Prince Alfred Hohenlhoe Schillingsfurst, of the Australian Consulate, Montreal; Mr. Hugh Calderwood, Naval Architect, Barrie, Ont., and wife; Mr. J. B. Dagan, Mayor of Sarnia, and wife; Mr. J. Milton Dyer, Naval Architect, Cleveland, and Miss Dyer; Mr. J. Dodds, Inspector of Steamboats, Toronto; Mr. J. S. Giles, Montreal, and wife; Mrs. W. J. A. Ritchie, District Superintendent, Pullman Company, Montreal, and wife; Mr. W. H. Smith, Manager, Canada Atlantic Transit Co., and wife; Mr. C. O. Stillman, Sarnia, and wife; Mr. John R. Shaw, Woodstock, Ont., and wife; Mr. George W. Parker, D.U.R., Detroit, and wife.

The guests included ladies and gentlemen from Ontario, Quebec, Maritime Provinces, and from many distant points in the States.

The Railway Journey.

The Grand Trunk Railway, which operates in conjunction with the Northern Navigation Co., transported their guests from all points in Canada to Sarnia, for embarkation. Every known convenience in modern railway travel was at the disposal of the party, including handsome and commodious sleepers, the acme of dining car service, courteous and delightfully pleasant attention and entertainment. All of which, combined with speedy and easy travel over an evenly constructed road-bed made the journey, no matter what the distance, quite enjoyable. These same conditions prevail on this seaboard to seaboard route at all times.

The Boat Journey

On reaching Sarnia, the inaugural sail of the "Noronic" was made down the beautiful St. Clair river, through Lake St. Clair, and onward to Detroit, Michigan, where an auto drive around the city was provided. Thence the inland sea leviathan steamed down the Detroit River, and out on Lake Erie, as far as just outside Cleveland, where she arrived at five o'clock Sunday morning. She then about ship for Windsor, Ont., reaching that city at 4 p.m., when the party boarded the waiting Grand Trunk special and were conveyed to their respective homes with speed and in gratifying comfort.

The 28 hours' journey on this splendid new boat was one of pure unalloyed enjoyment, every minute proving one of ease, comfort or pleasure amid luxurious appointments and conditions. On Saturday night an informal dance was held, together with "bridge," and other recreations. Thoughtful arrangements had furnished pastimes for all tastes, including concerts. A seven-piece orchestra was to hand, while male quartette and elocutionary numbers delighted the happy voyagers. In the meantime the big vessel steamed on and proved to the Company's directors that their huge capital had been well spent, and in the absence of any vibration whatever lulled her delighted passengers into the belief that they were luxuriating in a mammoth hotel of exceptional elegance.

Two Days' Unqualified Pleasure.

The Inaugural trip of the "Noronic" was one which will remain a long time green in the memory of all who were present, and the directors and officials responsible for the pleasure and comfort of the guests played mine hosts in a right royal manner. Nothing could exceed the hospitality, courtesies and kindnesses in evidence on every hand.

The foregoing is a brief itinerary of what this Grand Trunk route to and from the West really means to tourists. This inaugural trip, in its details, was a demonstration of the splendid service both on rail and boat now in effect. The Noronic and her sister ships form safe and enjoyable connecting links between the G. T. R. and the Grand Trunk Pacific. The Noronic takes up this week what will be her regular run between Sarnia Sault Ste Marie, Port Arthur, Fort William and Duluth, connecting at Port Arthur and Fort William with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for all points in Western Canada. Her appearance in regular service places The Northern Navigation Company in the possession of a fleet of steamers that has never been approached in the history of the lake marine and offers the tourist an opportunity of taking a "fresh water sea voyage" in the midst of luxury and comfort. She makes the return trip from Saturday to Saturday.

A Floating Palace

The "Noronic" may be justly termed a floating palace, and the new Leviathan of the Great Lakes. She is so steady in her movements that it is difficult to believe one is really sailing on the waters. No vibration whatever from her monster revolving propellers is perceptible, thus this objectionable feature in steamship travel, so discomforting to most passengers, is entirely eliminated. She is unquestionably the finest steamship that has ever ploughed the broad waters of Lake Superior or Lake Huron. She is indeed the finest vessel afloat on inland seas to-day. The greyhounds of the Atlantic surpass her in size, but in the elegance and comfort of her passenger quarters, in the stoutness of her build, she is their peer.

The Empress of the Lakes.

The "Noronic" is appropriately called "The Empress of the Lakes," and the main features in her huge construction are as follows:

Length 385 feet, beam 52 feet; Six all steel decks; Speed 19 miles per hour; First-class passenger accommodations: 10 parlor rooms with bath, 118 grand salon rooms, 60 outside rooms, 60 centre rooms, 31 inside rooms: Total 558 berths. Second-class accommodations for 100 persons. First-class dining room—largest on Great Lakes—seats 280 passengers. Running hot and cold drinking water; Electric reading lamp in every berth; Promenade deck around ship—6¼ laps to the mile; Ball Room and Observation—140 x 38 feet or 5300 square feet. Four thousand electric lights; Four crank, triple expansion engines; 5600 horse power; Gross tonnage 6905 Tons; Cargo, 3500 tons.

Princely Appointments and Service

The fittings, appointments and service of and on the "Noronic" are of a princely nature, offering a dream of comfort, ease, pleasure and security, from which one awakens with regret on leaving the ship. Say it is luncheon time, and the fresh, cool breeze blowing over the lake, as Sarnia is left behind, adds a zest to the appetite and makes the sound of the bugle call to the dining room very welcome. The passenger does not lose sight of the beautiful scenery by leaving the decks, as the dining room extends from side to side of the vessel and, with its large, plate glass windows, affords an unobstructed view of the points of interest and the passing ships bedecked with flags to greet the new leviathan of the lakes.

The dining room is in many respects the most delightful of all the pleasing spaces upon the ship. The ceiling is finished in very pale greens and whites, wedgwood in effect, the low relief being beautifully handled. The walls and the columns are of mahogany, rosewood and marquetry, inlaid. The windows are tastefully draped with simple hangings colored in harmony with the general scheme of the room. The dining tables and chairs are of mahogany and bronze, the chairs being upholstered with tapestry of the same soft green used throughout. This dining room is one hundred and eighty feet long by fifty feet wide and has a seating capacity of two hundred and eighty-six. The electric lighting is indirect, large bowl fixtures being fitted over each table.

The observation room is divided from the dining room by folding glass partitions. An orchestra stand is built at this point so that the music can be used for dancing or the glass doors can be folded back for the dining room. Above the deck, where the dining room and observation rooms are situated is the boat deck. Here are the writing rooms with card-playing space, etc. The walls are panelled in brown English oak with ceiling of highly ornamental design. At each end, above the wainscotting, are placed panel decorations. One of these depicts nymphs sporting in the sea, while in the foreground is arranged a flight of gulls. In the centre of this panel is placed a clock, and one is reminded that while there is time to play, time is always in flight. The other panel is of fanciful design. The figures are mermaids in conjunction with fish. The composition of both decorations is similar, one an effect of "Over the Sea," and the other "Beneath the Sea." The carpets throughout the apartments on this deck are of black, blue and bronze tone Wilton. The furniture is a combination of oak and reed, upholstered in English tapestry.

The passenger is already impressed by the beauty of finish, the harmony of design and the careful working out of details shown in the construction of the vessel, but below are three decks which have not yet been inspected. The Lobby on the main deck makes a good starting point for this further examination. The walls here are panelled with quartered oak, with beautifully carved ornaments, while the ceiling is also of carved wood, softly but generously gilded. A staircase leads from this lobby to the spar deck and social hall where the office is situated, fitted like that of a large hotel with clerks on duty to provide all information. On the starboard side of the social hall are elaborate lounge seating arrangements, luxuriously upholstered in Spanish leather, and so worked into the general design that they become part of the decorative scheme. The ceiling is beamed in brown oak with panels of painted canvas. The lighting arrangement is by extremely soft shaded ceiling lights, so subdued that one is almost unconscious of their presence. Passing forward, leaving the social hall, the passenger enters what is really another spacious hall with passages at right angles to the different staterooms. This portion of the boat, both fore and aft, is carpeted with beautiful Wilton carpet in greens, greys, and soft toned browns. The walls and ceiling of the hall and passage ways are enamelled in soft warm greys, it having been the object of the architect to do away with the cold white or cold grey prevalent on most Lake boats. On examination of the different staterooms one is struck with the unusual features provided by the company for the comfort of its passengers. Each stateroom has an individual radiator, hot and cold running water, and berth reading lights. All staterooms are carpeted to correspond with the general carpets used throughout the spar deck. The furniture is English or Queen Anne style in oak and leather. Further aft will be found barber shop, bath rooms lavatories, etc.

Up the grand staircase the grand salon is located amidships on the promenade Deck. The beauty of the carpets and general spaciousness are striking. Four large carved panels in bas relief depict the passing of the water from the mountain to the sea, with water sprites dolphins, cherubs, and allegorical figures, beautifully portrayed by the artist. Here again is noticed the quiet dignity of the mahogany and the rich blues and browns of the tapestry in the finish of the seats. For color effect the windows are draped or hung with straight lines of antique velvet. In addition to the lounging seats there are provided for this deck throughout a number of English fireside chairs in mahogany upholstered in English blue and brown tapestry.

At the extreme forward end is the drawing room, furnished in perfect taste and semi-circular in form, being a miniature effect of the large observation room on the deck above.

On the Promenade Deck is also located the smoking room, ceiled and walled in grey oak, furnished with large lounging seats, tables and easy chairs, upholstered in warm Spanish leather. Ascending the stairway to the observation room deck the passenger re-enters the large observation room that impresses one as being all glass, so far as the walls are concerned, and the dining room.

"Safety First"

"Safety First" is the slogan of the Grand Trunk—Northern Navigation Co. route, and the "Noronic" is the peer of all steamers in this respect. A double bottom is fitted four feet nine inches deep, extending the full length of the vessel, and the hull is divided by eight watertight transverse bulkheads into nine compart-

Valuable Fisheries

With respect to the fisheries of Canada, it may be surprising to some to be told that since 1870, the first year for which figures are available, Canadian fishermen have taken from the seas, rivers and inland waters of this country, fish valued at nearly a billion dollars, the exact figures being $829,810,756.

TRUTH ABOUT CANADA

No Trouble Finding a Job "When Y' Ken Y'r Business"

"I am going to close this letter with an example worth while," wrote an Englishman to his cousin in Canada. "I met a young Scotsman named Wilkie, hailing from Glasgow, the other day. Wilkie heard a lecture on Canada at the C.P.R. moving-picture show at the Glasgow Exhibition and became fired with Western fever. He landed in Winnipeg without a friend and with very little money. He had been in a piano house at home. Arrived, he applied at the McLean Rand Company on Portage Avenue. "What salary do you want?" said the manager. "It's work I'm thinking aboot, mainst!" says the Scot. Within an hour he was ripping up an old tin-pan piano which had lost most of its heart and most of its tone as well. But Wilkie went at the old rattle-bang-thing in a way that showed he knew his business, and to be brief he stayed with McLean and Company one year. Then he saw that the mechanical piano was coming to the fore, but knowing nothing of the "innards" of the machine, he took some of the money he had saved, went to Toronto, was engaged by a piano machine factory, worked there six months, went back to Winnipeg, found his place filled at Mac's, walked into Lindsay's piano house, and was taken on at an advance of five dollars per week over and above what he had been getting. In Wilkie's own words: 'My sister came out then, she got work at the big Massey-Harris house, office work, with good pay. We took a comfortable flat, we live there happy and contentedly; we have a fine piano and we'll be glad to have ye' call on us.'

"How does the pay for work compare with the Glasgow pay, Wilkie?" I asked.

"'It's juist double,'" he says.

"And how do you compare living?" says I.

"'You pay more for luxuries!'" says Wilkie, 'but otherwise I am thinking it's juist as cheap livin' in Canawda, as anywhere else, an',' said he meaningly, 'there's no trouble aboot findin' a job when y' ken y'r business!'

"Wilkie," says I, "can I tell your story to a newspaper?"

"'Aye,' he said, 'some of the Glasgow folk'll know me fine.'"

Novel Street Lighting

Handy Shipping Box

For shipping poultry, fruit and vegetables an inventor has patented a crate that folds completely for shipping when empty.

Uses Lots of Leather

Although the United States has more cattle than any other country except India it is the world's greatest importer of hides and skins.

ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiasm tramples over prejudice and opposition, spurns inaction, storms the citadel of its object, and like an avalanche, overwhelms and engulfs all obstacles. It is nothing more nor less than faith in action. Faith and initiative rightly combined remove mountainous barriers and achieve the unheard of and miraculous. Set the germ of enthusiasm afloat in your plant, in your office, or on your farm; carry it in your attitude and manner; it spreads like contagion and influences every fiber of your industry before you realize it; it begets and inspires effects you did not dream of; it means increase in production and decrease in costs; it means joy and pleasure and satisfaction to your workers; it means life, real and virile; it means spontaneous bed-rock results—the vital things that pay dividends.—Henry Chester.

TWO DISTINCTIVE GARMENTS FOR THE BOUDOIR

The negligee is quite as important to the wardrobe as the street frock or evening gown and as much attention is being given it this season. The richest of silks and chiffons are used in its making, and the modish trimmings include fur, marabout and the metal laces. Lace and marabout are especially smart. The brightest and most extravagant of silk patterns are appropriate and pleasing for these garments, providing they are becoming. Boudoir caps are fashioned in many quaint designs, the butterfly and peasant cap in lace or chiffon daintily trimmed with a rose wreath or a band of fur. No. 8008 is a quaint, smart matinee developed in pale yellow chiffon cloth, collared and banded in a figured silk in which there are minglings of several pastel shades.

This matinee may be made in size 36 with 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material. The petticoat requires 2½ yards of 36 inch material for size 24.

One of these richly colored broché silks is used for 8013 with trimmings of plain satin and frills of metal lace finishing neck and sleeves.

A pretty fad for the boudoir is to have stockings and cothurnes match the robe or matinee or contrast effectively with them. Often if the garment is fur trimmed a bit of the fur bands the slipper or trims the satin garter.

This design (8013) may be made in size 36 with 5¼ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8008—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7740—sizes 22 to 34.
No. 8013—sizes 32 to 44.
Each pattern 15 cents.

Our Point of View

We are constrained to believe that the new army of 50,000men which Huerta has mobilized is for the purpose of publication only.

The Globe asks: "What is a politician?" This great family journal might say in reply that the best answer can's be printed.

The Liberals are still busy discussing the Ontario election, and our sympathy is aroused when we hear them speak sadly of the many unhappy returns of the d[illegible].

A despatch from Saskatchewan says that the farmers are importing 100 wind mills a month in the West. It is to be hoped that the next shipment will contain Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Dr. Clarke and a number of others now working at Ottawa.

Trent Canal Investigation

It is said that the action of local parties in Peterborough in calling for debate in Parliament of the Trent Valley Canal investigation report will compel a publication of matters which would not have been otherwise referred to publicly on account of the death or serious illness of some of the parties involved. It might have been better to leave bad enough alone.

The Drain on Scotland

Nearly 300,000 Scottish persons emigrated from Scotland during the past four years. This number is equal to two-thirds of the population of Edinburgh, or nearly to the combined population of Grimsby, Ipswich and Reading.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughinb with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

CAREFUL AUTHORS

Great Writers Who Were Very Particular About Details

It is surprising how punctilious some authors have been with respect even to the smallest detail of the manuscripts. Dickens was a perfect terror and would make enough fuss over an error of punctuation to drive a poor "comp" out of his wits.

Tennyson, too, was most particular that not a comma should be omitted or misplaced, while his revisions were never finished. Perhaps the great terror of the compositor was Thomas Carlyle, for he would cover every square inch of vacant space, both the margin and between the lines with minute additions and emendations, and not once, but a dozen times.

Victor Hugo was equally difficult to please and satisfy. Of one of his famous works he made the printer supply no fewer than eleven successive revised proofs, and the last half dozen were furnished in order to make quite sure that the commas were in their right places.

But perhaps Thomas Campbell, the famous poet who wrote such stirring masterpieces as Hohenlinden, The Battle of the Baltic, and Ye Mariners of England, takes the lead in this respect. He was fastidious to a degree, which fact probably accounts for the small quantity and perfect quality of his literary output. It is said that he once walked six miles to his printers and six miles back in order to have a comma changed into a semicolon.

But an equally careful and fastidious literary workman owed a great improvement in the opening line of his most famous poem to a printer. This was Thomas Grey, whose Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard is probably the best known poem in the English language. Its first line reads "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day," but when Grey sent it to the press the manuscript read, "The curfew tolls, the knell of parting day." The thoughtful compositor did not understand the word "tolls" as an intransitive verb, so dropped the comma, thinking that the poet had put it in by mistake, and when Gray read the line his sensitive ear at once caught its new, sustained melody, and he adopted the compositor's correction.

Canada Attracts Investors

A leading Canadian financial publication estimates that there is now at least $599,000,000 of United States capital invested in Canada. Over $150,000,000 is in the shape of branch factories and warehouses of United States manufacturers, while nearly $124,000,000 is invested by residents of the United States in Canadian government, municipal and industrial bonds. United States life and fire insurance companies have $67,000,000 invested in the Dominion, while over $130,000,000 is invested in British Columbia mills, timber and mines.

American Sponge Fisheries

While sponge fishing in the Americas is rather a modern industry, it produces more than two-thirds of the world's supply in weight. The fisheries of the Mediterranean now produce about one-half of the world's supply in value. Sponge fishing is believed to be most highly developed at Tarpon Springs, Florida, and Batabano Cuba. As early as 1822 the inhabitants of Key West, Florida, learned from specimens thrown up on the beaches of the presence of several species of useful sponges. For some time they were limited to domestic use among the inhabitants, but not until 1849 was a cargo sent to New York.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is enticely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, [illegible] nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

History of False Teeth

Until little more than a century ago humanity had to rub along without false teeth, of which nowadays one firm alone claims to sell more than 12,000,000 a year. The first successful maker was Giussepangelo Fonzi, an Italian dentist, who started practice in Paris in 1798, and, thanks to his skillful treatment of Lucien Bonaparte, soon made his way. After years of experiment he discovered the substance from which artificial teeth are made, and received the gold medal of the French Academy of Science. One of the earliest persons fitted with false teeth was the Empress of Russia. After Waterloo Fonzi migrated to London, and then to Madrid, where Ferdinand VII. rewarded him with a yearly pension of a thousand ducats for a set of false teeth.

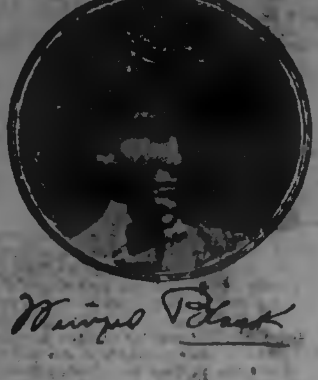
When the Iceman Played Host to the Guests of the Banker

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

YESTERDAY was Sunday.

And we had dinner with the iceman.

I wasn't invited to the iceman's house to dinner, but I went anyway, and I never had a better time nor a better dinner in all my life. This is the way it happened:

We were all going to dinner at the banker's, all four of us, two men and two women, and we hated it and hated it.

Nobody ever hated anything as we four hated going to the banker's to dinner—except probably the banker having us to come to dine with him.

On Wednesday I met one of the men. "It will be fair Sunday," he said, "how about a walk down the beach and a luncheon at the Log Cabin."

I gazed at him with horror and reproof.

"On Sunday," said I, "we dine with the banker at 1 o'clock, a family dinner, and we have to go across the bay to do it."

The man groaned and fled.

The other woman called me up on the 'phone about it.

She said she was awfully sorry and she hated the disappointment, but she had neuralgia—no, it was an ulcerated tooth—and by Sunday she knew it was going to be worse, and so——

"No, you don't," said I. "There are four of us, and if we die we die together."

On Thursday night at the little restaurant the other woman said she was going to get revenge, and she proceeded to do it.

At the Iceman's Home.

"Do you know my iceman?" said she. "... the tall one with the white teeth and the black eyes—well, I did something for the baby when he was ill last winter, and the iceman can never stop talking about it; and yesterday he said his grandmother had come from Italy and they were having a grand festa dinner, and wouldn't I come on Sunday.

"And I told him that I was going with friends to dine with the banker.

"And the iceman said 'Bring your friends.'

"And I said, 'Oh, if I only could.'

"And the iceman said: 'Why not,' only he said it this way," and the other woman raised her shoulders in a delicious shrug and sparkled her eyes and showed every tooth in her head, and put an A on the end of the "not," so that it sounded as if she was singing grand opera.

And so we all sat and stared at each other and were very miserable.

On Saturday one of the men called us.

He began to sing over the 'phone.

"We're free," he carolled, "free as a mountain bird."

And then he said that we weren't going to the banker's at all; we were going to the iceman's, for the banker had had more sense than any of us, and had been called to Portland for a conference.

So on Sunday we went to the iceman's.

The iceman lives in the most delicious house you ever saw—four rooms of it squatted down in a little hollow with vines all over the place.

We sat on the porch till dinner was ready, and the children played over us as if we were so many shoot the chutes.

Angelo could sing. Angelo was 4, and he was dimpled and rosy and his eyes were pools of black glory.

Maria could sew. Maria is 8.

Teresa is 10. Teresa helped her mother set the table.

And the twins rolled over and over everywhere; whenever you looked there was a twin rolling [illegible].

A Merry Feast.

And the iceman got out his accordion and played "Oh Marie"—and we all laughed and laughed and some of us sang and some quoted poetry and some just grinned amiably.

And the dinner. You never ate such a dinner.

A kid seethed in milk, chickens broiled brown and flakey—every vegetable that ever grew, two kinds of spaghetti, ravioli enough—for once—oh, well, what's the use!

We were at the table for hours. Nobody ever thought of going away while there was a thing left to eat; and we toasted the iceman and every pound of the ice he ever carried; and we toasted the iceman's pretty wife, and every baby she'd ever held in her dimpled arms; and we toasted the iceman's grandmother and every white hair in her mass of tangled silver; and we toasted the iceman's uncle, who was there with his family, and when the in-laws began to arrive, with their accordions and their mouth harps, we toasted them. It was 1 o'clock in the morning when we left.

We had been there since 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and nobody was bored, and nobody was politic, and nobody was tactful—and we walked down to the little garden gate in a procession, with the iceman and the twins at the head of it, and the iceman's wife was crowned with roses at the gate, and the twins rolled along just as if it was 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

When we were alone in the starlight, one of the men said in a hushed voice of awe:

"What do you suppose the banker did with the things he'd ordered for our dinner?"

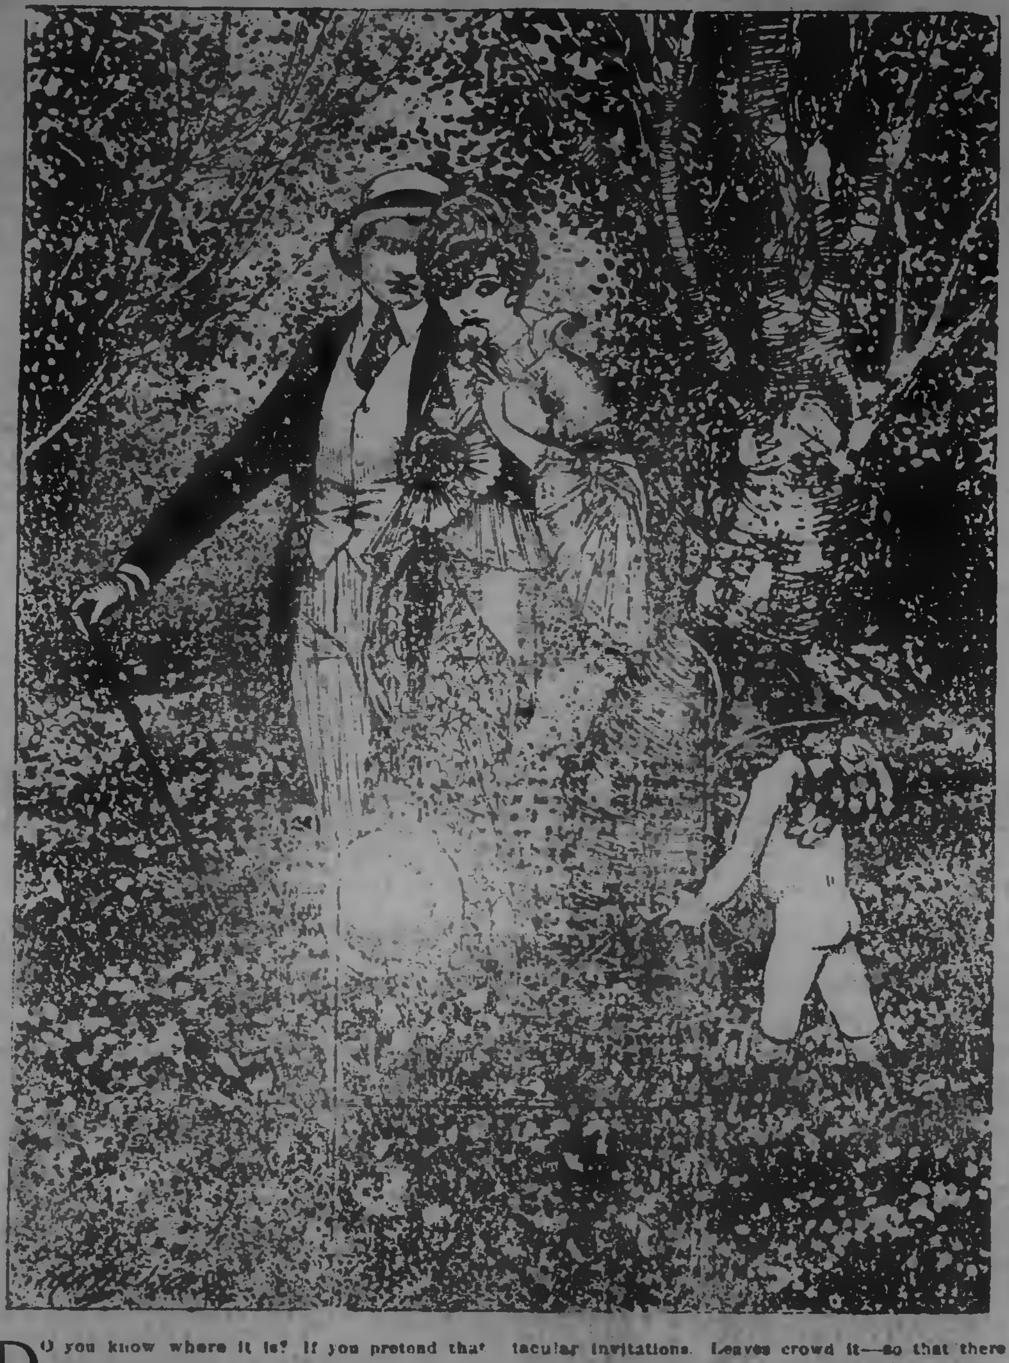
And we were very sad, for waste is a terrible thing.

I kept wondering whether the banker really was called to Portland for a conference, or whether——

But why peer into the kindly mysteries of a benign Providence?

What a lot of worrying we do—over the things that never happen, and that never were really going to happen at all.

IN LOVERS' LANE :: By Michelson



DO you know where it is? If you pretend that you don't, you're a gross deceiver. Everybody knows a lovers' lane, either as a spectator or as—an explorer. Lucky people count it on the rosary of their sweetest memories.

All through the stingy winter it is barren. It is chilly in early spring. Then June decks it with spectacular invitations. Leaves crowd it—so that there won't be TOO MUCH light. Because it is dimly beautiful it is always possible to notice the little HIGHWAYMAN who lurks even in the best ordered places.

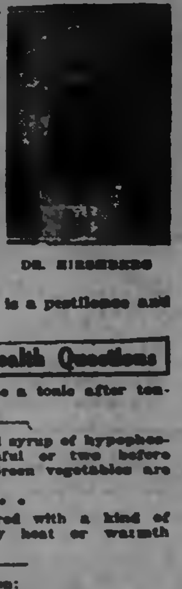
This chap is deadly on a hold-up. His marksmanship is simply appalling. Most of the people who have these aforesaid memories have been HIT.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Hurried, Heavy Breakfasts Reduce Your Efficiency

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

OF the many modern follies, that of eating yourself hastily each morning out of house and home, with a hop, skip and a jump, is the worst.

Unquiet meals make ill digestions, but a gulped-down breakfast of red-hot rolls and steam-heated coffee, of pork-chops and rich meat, is an abomination to man and beast.

Famished people must be both slowly and wisely nursed and fed upon spoonfuls else they're apt to burst. Furthermore, to throw a lot of heavy fodder into an empty stomach and then to jingle it in a demoniacal rush to be on time is more than mortal man may stand.

The morning incense, like the evening meal, must not be made of "the roast beef of England, the merry roast beef."

The American breakfast is a hoodoo and a jonah. It is a pestilence and a thorn in the digestive side of most persons.

In lieu of a little water and fruit, rice and milk, even the poorest of households exhibits meats and molasses, hot breads and sausages, eggs and chocolate for the morning meal.

The breakfast food habit has really been a saving grace with respect to the abridgment of gluttony after a night's fast.

Cereals, such as rice and the multitude of advertised substitutes, are not alone nutritious and easily garnered by the inactive, nocturnal stomach but even with the modicum of cream and sugar added they are more economical, as well as better tissue builders, than meats, eggs, hot breads, and greasy gravis.

Who lives without folly is not so wise as he thinks, and the dull boy who packs in legions of victuals as he worries over and catapults himself upon his day's work is as poor in wit as he will be in digestion.

Too much breakfast is almost as wicked as too little. There is a limit at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue. Just as the first years of life are used physically, thoughtfully and morally to make provision for the last, so a sane, but not too solemn, breakfast prepares for the day's duties.

The breakfast is the heyday and springtime of the day. If you suffer the weeds to grow then, before many digestive hours have passed they will overgrow the garden and choke the tissue soil, despite firm husbandry.

Shallow draughts, such as a mere cup of coffee and bite of bread, intoxicate the brain as venomously as does a superfluity of food and drink.

Therefore, in the matter of breakfasts, avoid extremes, and shun the fault of such, who still are pleased too little or too much. Be the gastrically efficient and contented man who said:

I neither want, nor yet abound,
Enough's a feast, content is crowned.
I fain not friendship where I hate;
I fawn not on the great in show,
I prize, I praise a mean estate,
Neither too lofty nor too low;
This, this is all my choice, my cheer,
A fast content, a conscience clear.

Answers to Health Questions

G. R. M.—Give me a tonic after tonsilitis.

Try the compound syrup of hypophosphites, a teaspoonful or two before meals in water. Green vegetables are particularly good.

A. B. G.—A friend of mine has a cancer of her internal textiles. She has been advised against an operation.

If she has been thus advised, it is murderous advice, for an operation complete and promptly done is the only hope for cancerous invasions.

S. K.—My hair falls out very rapidly.

Try massage with the fingers and the use of an electric brush. Tincture of pepper two drams, resorcin half a dram, sulphur half an ounce, castor oil three ounces is useful in preventing loss.

ODD and INTERESTING FACTS

The curious case of the New Jersey boy who sees upside down has been paralleled by a freak of nature in a dachshund puppy owned in San Diego. The dog's sense of distance is reversed. When called he will back away from his master, although obviously desirous of coming to him. A scientist became interested, and discovered that the canine was suffering from astigmatic myopia. A special pair of spectacles was made for it. After becoming accustomed to the glasses the dog became normal, though its unusual appearance causes much comment.

The smuggler's ingenuity is inexhaustible, as M. Gernez, a customs inspector at the frontier station of Feignies, has recently discovered. He was inspecting a goods train, one of the wagons of which was filled with sacks of potatoes. When his suspicions were aroused, and on taking out some of the supposed tubers he found that they were packets of tobacco cleverly done up in wrappers closely imitating potato skins.

A new woman's club, the idea of which probably originated in America, has just be founded in Paris. Divorce is a necessary qualification for membership. The club, which calls itself the "Club des Delaissees," or the Club of the Disencumbered, meets at a monthly dinner in a famous boulevard cafe, for the purpose, according to the by-laws, of "confiding past experiences and laughing over them together."

Three-Minute Journeys

A Land of Reformed Cattle Thieves—By TEMPLE MANNING

LESS than a quarter of a century ago, in the heart of the Punjab, one of the most productive provinces of India, there lay an immense wilderness of sand covering several millions of acres. Nothing that would sustain life in man or beast grew there. Seldom was any living thing seen on the waste, no human being, not even a skulking beast, nothing but drifting sand, furnace-hot under the blazing Indian sun, was visible.

Around the edge of this desert thousands of nomads, half-nude, half-barbaric, struggled hard to keep body and soul together by breeding cattle and bartering them for food and grain. So hard did these miserable creatures find the struggle for existence that they grew, in a short time, to be out and out cattle thieves. They made no pretences of respectability, fighting successfully with many expeditions sent against them to protect their stolen herds and their avenues of trade.

The British government finally decided to try irrigation, cut many canals from the Chenab river, and sent agricultural experts to the district. I saw a veritable garden of grain and fruits and flowers when I visited there last year. There remains no vestige of the burning desert sands. Everywhere about prosperous towns there are flourishing farms. Here now is the center of the grain and cotton production of India. From this spot we in America are shipped every year tons and tons of cotton and oil seeds.

But even a more radical difference is to be seen in the people, the war-like barbarians who spent their days and nights in thieving forays and bloody combats. Today the former nomad is clothed in civilized garb. His savage tendencies, in less than a generation, have been tamed; he is a respectable, responsible citizen, distinguishing himself as a breeder of fine camels, horses, bullocks and milch cows, and, as a husbandman, growing bumper crops.

He has changed in other ways, too. Once of a morose, stolid, bellicose character, he is now full of life, bright-eyed, ambitious and happy. The men affect vivid-colored turbans, white muslin shirts with the tails worn on the outside, waistcoats of brilliant-hued silk or velvet and red shoes. The women also dress most picturesquely. Silks and satins of gay colors are used for their garments, and they are bedecked with jewels from head to toe.

Most of them, or at least their parents, but a few years ago were content with ragged loin cloths. And now, instead of spears, they carry staffs, emblems of their freedom and respectability.

There are few more interesting, more Americanized places, I may say, in India than here. The garden spot of the Punjab is well worth a visit.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Dear Annie Laurie.

Where I work there is a woman employe and I quit speaking to her. After this she said she didn't want to talk to me except on business. Shall I insist on an apology for things she said or did some time ago in case she tries to talk again, or let the thing go without an apology? Or just ignore her as I am doing?

How should a man act with such a woman? GEO. M.

THERE'S just one thing for you to do, Geo. M., and that is to pass that woman by on a very cool side of the room.

I wouldn't refuse to speak with her—that is childish as well as unmannerly. A man must speak when a woman speaks to him, but I wouldn't say one word more than I had to.

No, you can't insist upon an apology. A man cannot make a woman apologize, any more than he can force her to take her hat off to him when she meets him in the street.

If she's sorry for what she has said or done she'll say so and be done with it. If she isn't sorry, why, let the matter go.

Don't think about the woman at all, or whether she speaks or doesn't speak. She is nothing to you, and you are nothing to her; she's just a wheel in the great machine of business and you are just another.

Go wheeling along about your own business and forget the woman.

She'll soon forget you.

HOW to Grow Hardy ORCHIDS

THERE is so much of the aristocratic in the word "orchid" that all plants answering to the name are popularly thought to be only suited for culture in specially constructed hot-houses, and to be the monopoly of those with big balances at the bank. This is not so. While many gorgeous species and varieties need skilled care and commit their owner to much expense, there are dozens of beautiful types amenable to ordinary treatment in ordinary greenhouses, while a number of pleasing species are quite hardy and can be grown out of doors or in pots and pans in a frame.

All the hardy orchids are what are known as "terrestrial" species—that is, they grow in the earth in the ordinary way, and have no thickened stems or pseudo-bulbs, as have the epiphytal kinds. What tubers the former possess are produced below ground.

In order to grow them in a garden a site should be chosen screened from the sun during the hotter hours—say, from 10 A. M. till 3 P. M. The soil should be taken out where the bed is to be to a depth of two feet, and then a six-inch layer of broken bricks thrown in for drainings. Over this lay some grass turfs—grass downwards—finally filling up with the soil best suited to the needs of the kind to be planted.

When planting spread the roots out evenly and cover with soil pressed gently over them. Some two inches deep is about right. In dry weather the beds must be kept well watered, even though the plants may have died down. Rain or river water is best, if procurable.

A mulching of coconut fibre will help to conserve moisture. In winter a thick covering of fibre, tree leaves, or pieces of board will help to keep the soil in an even state as to wetness and temperature. Severe cold is not harmful; it is a quick-change climate that troubles them.

If grown in pans or pots, in a frame, it will be found the former give the best results, allowing a bigger group of plants. If only one or two tubers of a kind are on hand pots can be used. Drain well, cover the drainage with rough turfy soil, and then fill up with the special mixture for each. The pans should be of the deep variety, not shallow ones. Watering must be carefully attended to, and it will be found helpful during the growing season to plunge the pots and pans in sifted coal ashes. Free ventilation should always be given; in fact, the light will be best removed during the greater part of the year.

By Ann Marie Lloyd

TIME in cooking is a problem which puzzles many inexperienced housekeepers who have dinners in which the roast is overdone and the vegetables underdone, and only the salad redeems the meal from total failure.

The first and best investment the young housekeeper can make is an up-to-date cook book by some culinary authority. I would like to give one as a wedding gift to every bride. The next thing is to have a kitchen scrap book in which she may jot down recipes, or household hints which will save her no end of trouble at some particular time. Also there are constantly printed articles that are full of help and information, and there should be some definite way of preserving them and having them on call when needed. Memory plays the funniest tricks when one tries to cook by it.

Here is a hint. All meats should be seared over to keep in the juice, whatever the manner of cooking, with the exception of meat intended for soups or beef tea, where the object is to draw out the juices.

Tough meat should be treated with patience in cooking. It will usually yield to slow, long cooking.

Roast beef, if desired to be done moderately well, needs from 12 to 15 minutes a pound in a hot oven, and should be frequently basted.

Broiled beefsteak takes about 12 minutes over a very hot fire, and should be turned frequently.

For veal allow 20 minutes to the pound in a hot oven and baste every 10 minutes. Of all meats veal must be well cooked to have it palatable or digestible.

Give boiled mutton at least 15 minutes to the pound after it is placed in the kettle of boiling water.

From 15 to 18 minutes a pound is required for roast mutton, and the pink outside skin should always be removed before cooking, as that contains the strong odor.

If you are going to try your fortunes with a chicken no longer young there is but one rule which is absolute—cook slowly just below the boiling point until the fowl is done. It may average 25 minutes to the pound and more, but there is no time limit to set on the making tender of an ancient bit of poultry.

It will take 25 minutes to broil a chicken.

If the oven is very hot and one is reasonably sure of the age and condition of the chicken to be roasted 18 minutes a pound will do.

Capon will require less time, say 12 or 15 minutes a pound.

The same time is allowed for young turkey, but for a proud and generous bird it is better to count on 20 minutes for each pound of his flesh.

Venison will require 12 minutes for each pound.

All roasted meats should be frequently basted. All boiled meats should not really be boiled at all. That toughens them. They should be kept at a gentle simmer just below the boiling point.

Intended for Mates.

"Why did she finally conclude to marry him?"

"She discovered that they agreed on a plan to end the war quickly."

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of these are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4820, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A PERILOUS JOURNEY

Missionaries Make a Dangerous Trip in Northern Canada

Bishop Stringer of the Yukon once had quite a perilous journey from the mouth of the Mackenzie River to Dawson City. He was accompanied by another missionary and an Indian guide, who fell sick. Eventually they were obliged to bring the Indian back to the camp of his people, and set out alone.

Winter came on two weeks earlier than usual that year, and the two missionaries were frozen in some distance to the west of the divide. They decided to go across the mountains by a pass and proceed overland to the Peel River, so they set out with four days' provisions, a pair of light blankets [illegible] spare in one skin [illegible] up their canoe out of the damp. [illegible] enveloped the [illegible], and they [illegible] sed the pass. Consequently they [illegible] four distinct ranges to climb in [illegible] wind and fog, with the thermometer at times down to zero and below.

They traveled by compass, corrected by the North Star, the variation being the enormous difference of 45 degrees. Often they were forced to camp above the tree line on the slopes in the fog, cold, and wind, without fire and with but a light pair of blankets.

They eked out their food supplies by ptarmigan and rabbits supplied by the shotgun. The snow became so deep they were forced to stop and make snowshoes. They cut spruce saplings down into wands and steamed them into shape in their kettle. For webbing they filled them with an old fishnet, strings cut out from the uppers of their worn out moose moccasins and strips of blanket.

Twenty-eight days they were on that awful journey. Before they finished they had boiled and eaten their Eskimo sealskin boots. They struck the Peel River, fell in with a camp of Indians, and were saved. Bishop Stringer had lost fifty pounds on that trip. He rested at the fort for a little while, and then started home across country by dog-sled with an Indian. This time there were no mishaps.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

Teacher Must be a Psychologist to Know When to Apply It

Corporal punishment in schools is a subject which is brought into the public eye every so often. It is a topic with painful memories for most people and one which is heatedly discussed among the parents of school children, but the average grown-up still believes that corporal punishment is a good thing. Discretion should be used in the application of the rod, however, and it is in the lack of discretion among some school teachers where the system of corporal punishment is weak. There are children who can understand nothing quite so well as a "licking," but there are also children to whom a blow is a serious nervous shock. It is more or less a matter of temperament, which, despite the protests of the press agent, is not the exclusive possession of theatrical stars. The best school teacher must be more or less of a student of psychology and must be able to distinguish between "bad boys" and thoughtless ones.

It must be admitted that there are "bad boys." True, they generally turn out to be the best of men, but they are boys who need an occasional and sometimes frequent applications of the cane or strap whichever happens to be the favorite weapon of the teacher. To them it is an honor to be "licked," and they display their bruised hands with considerable pride. But to the nervous, sensitive child corporal punishment does more harm than either the teacher or parent may imagine. It bruises the spirit more severely than the flesh. Such a child grows up timid and fearful, shrinking from expected blows before they are threatened.

It is rather a pity that school teachers are not better paid. If they are worth anything at all, they are worth at least double what they receive at the present time. They hold almost supreme power over the children in their classes; it is to them that the rising generation looks for guidance and knowledge, yet they receive what is badly better than a pittance.—Vancouver Sunset.

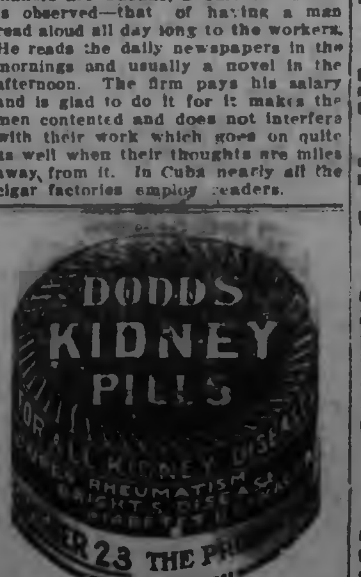
The distributors of a charity failed to find a single poor person in the village of Llangwm, Pembrokeshire. On the contrary, every resident is a free-holder.

The Largest Chrysanthemum

There seems to be almost no limit to the size of fruit and flowers that plant-breeders can produce. They have doubled or trebled the size of some of the common vegetables, and many of the flowers that fill the florists' shops, but in no case, perhaps, have they accomplished more remarkable results than in that of the chrysanthemum. By removing all the flower-buds except the terminal they have produced the large globular heads with which we are all familiar. A French amateur succeeded in winning a prize for the largest chrysanthemum, with a flower that measured more than 64 inches in circumference. That is many times the size of the original flowerhead. What will happen when the same methods are applied to tomatoes, cherries and other fruits and vegetables?—Horticulture.

Reading to Workmen

In a Toronto cigar factory where nearly all of the thirty-five cigar makers are Cubans, a curious custom is observed—that of having a man read aloud all day long to the workers. He reads the daily newspapers in the mornings and usually a novel in the afternoon. The firm pays his salary and is glad to do it for it makes the men contented and does not interfere with their work which goes on quite as well when their thoughts are miles away from it. In Cuba nearly all the cigar factories employ readers.



Ancient Incubators

At the British Association Prof. W. H. Cadman, an archæologist, announced that he had discovered the old Egyptian secret in poultry-breeding. Egypt, it is known, turned out 130,000,000 poultry annually from native incubators which were used in the same form for 5,000 years. Prof. Cadman stated that each incubating oven contained 7,000 eggs heated by small fuel supplies o chopped straw. For the last ten days, however, the heat was wholly supplied by the chickens in the eggs.

Keeping Leather Soft

Boots and shoes are apt to get hardened when not in use. To make them recover their original softness, wash them over in warm water and then rub castor oil well into them. After a little while the leather will become more pliable, and then if the boots are cleaned and polished in the usual way they will be easy to wear.

To Take Castor Oil

Mix the oil with orange juice and a very little sugar. Children will take castor oil prepared this way when they refuse it otherwise.

News to Peterborough.

Lindsay Post, Monday: Lindsay was in darkness last night (so far as electricity was concerned) and there was a great demand for lamps, candles, etc., in many homes. During the early part of the evening the flickering of the lights was an indication that something was wrong, and later in the evening the lights went out altogether. The trouble seems to have emanated at Peterborough on the Seymour Co's main line as that city was almost in darkness.

A Thrilling George Street Arrest.

Policemen Reid and Hayward made a thrilling arrest yesterday afternoon at the corner of George and Hunter streets. A dispirited black dog, wearing the ear-marks of mixed ancestry, was ambling by. One of the officers is said to have, in seductive voice, called softly "come fido." Fido came. The other cop grabbed the dog by its tail as his fellow officer seized the dog by its ears. The doughty officers hung on and ordered it is said, a by-stander to procure a rope. This was brought and the dog was taken to the station. It didn't have a tag.

A Lindsay Robbery.

Lindsay Warder : The cowardly fellow who broke into Mr. Robinson's boathouse, above the locks near the Egg House, and stole therefrom sundry articles from Mr. "Moore" Hall's launch on Saturday night, had better make restitution before it is too late, as "they are after him." The thief entered the building by breaking the lock, and after gaining admittance must have gone mad, as he tore things up in general and scattered tools promiscuously around the place, threw a new covering of the boat into the water and wound up by appropriating one-half dozen batteries to his own use.

The Merchants' Bank of Canada

Fifty-First Annual Meeting

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The report of the Directors was read by the President, as follows :—

The Board have much pleasure in submitting the result of the year's business, closing with the 30th April last. On an average capital and rest of $13,348,100, the Bank has earned 9.13 p.c., which is a little lower rate than a year ago. Meantime, our capital stock has been further augmented by the disposal of the unsold shares, making the dividend disbursements somewhat greater. In the Profit and Loss Statement you will observe $135,000, applied in reduction of the sum representing the the bonds and securities, which during the year have suffered a fall in price. To bring them to their market value the Board have authorized the writing of them down by that sum.

I have great pleasure to-day in congratulating the shareholders upon a very notable event in the history of the Bank the fiftieth anniversary of its establishment—and also upon the happy attainment of the goal of the Board's ambition for many years back, namely, the placing of the Reserve Fund upon an equality with the paid up Capital. This consummation has been at length attained. The paid up Capital is now $7,000,000 and the Reserve Fund $7,000,000, as you will see from the statement placed before you.

During the past year we have opened branches at the following points :

In Quebec : Chateauguay Basin, Huntingdon, Maisonneuve, Montreal, St. Denis Street, Ormstown and Vaudreuil. In Ontario: Bronte, Clarkson, Hamilton East End, Sarnia and St. Catharines. In Alberta: West Edmonton, Raymond and Rimbey. In Saskatchewan: Eastend, Forres, Humboldt, Kelvinhurst, Limerick and Shaunavon. In British Columbia: Ganges Harbor, Oak Bay and Victoria North End. In Manitoba: Starbuck, and in Nova Scotia, New Glasgow.

And we have closed the following offices :—In Alberta: New Norway, Pincher Station and Walsh and in Ontario, Sandwich.

The Board will to-day ask the shareholders to appoint Auditors for the coming year, in accordance with the Bank Act.

The requirements under the new Bank Act, covering the preparation of the Annual Statement, together with the growth of the Bank, make it desirable that more time be given for this work. We find it, therefore, necessary that the date of the Annual Meeting be put forward somewhat. The third Wednesday in May following so nearly the close of books on 30th April, does not allow sufficient time. The Board ask you to sanction a change of date to the first Wednesday in June, which will meet requirements.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

H. MONTAGU ALLAN,
President,

VOL. XLI, NO. 129 THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1914 PRICE TWO CENTS

TORONTO FOLKS TERRIFIED BY AN EXPLOSION WHICH KILLED MAN AND CAUSED MUCH DAMAGE

New Building at Consumers' Gas Co. Plant on Booth Avenue Practically Wrecked and Windows of Many Houses in the Locality Were Shattered

EWART FOSTER WAS BLOWN TO HIS DEATH HIS BODY BURNED AND BONES BROKEN

Detonation Audible Miles Away--Officials of Company Are Unable fo State the Cause

Toronto, June 3.—A terrific explosion which startled the East End of the city shortly after nine o'clock this morning, partially wrecked the large generating building at the Consumers' Gas Company plant at the foot of Booth avenue, and caused the death of Mr. Ewart Foster, an experimental chemist who was working in the building. So great was the force of the detonation that opposite the scene, where formerly stood a row of well-kept dwelling houses, there now stands buildings with their broken windows, shattered doors and fa,len roofs are nothing more than the mere skeletons of the former structures. Buildings two blocks away were affecten and numerous persons in the district sustained minor injuries and hundreds of persons were greatly frightened.

The building in which the explosion took place was erected last year and has been used for the purpose of generating oil gas. It contained two large tanks in which the gas was kept. One of these, in some way as yet unexplained, became ignited causing the fatal explosion.

Dead Man Was Chief Chemist.

The police ambulance was given an emergency call and responded quickly. Mr. Foster was not dead when it arrived, but he expired ten minutes a,ter his arrival at the General Hospital.

The dead man was a nephew of Mr. Hayes, general manager of Lyman Bros., and was the chief chemist in the employ of the Gas Company at theworks. He was single, about 30 years old and his widowed mother lives in Scotland. His home here was at the Central Y.M-C-A-

The injured man was picked up at the foot of the stairs leading from the air room on the ground floor to the upper rooms where he was working. He had apparently been blown right through a door at the head of the stairs to the floor below. His body was horribly mangled. One of his legs and one of his arms were broken and he was terribly burned.

Shock Felt Far Away.

Mr. R. Collins, who resides at the corner of Logan and Eastern avenues, stated that the shock was sufficient to remove the plaster and smash the windows and doors of his home which is 200 yards away from the gas plant. "Indeed," said Mr. Collins, "my wife was thrown across the room with no small force. Fortunately she was uninjured."

"FANS" GIRLS PARENTS

New Orleans, June 3.—Fearing that if they waited longer for parental consent the bill now pending in the Legislature might put a stop to Gretna marriages James Roy ("Dixie") Walker, the New Orleans baseball team's star pitcher, and Miss Margarette Lamavou, 621 Esplanade street, made a flying visit to Judge Dauenhauer, Tuesday night.

The romance dates back three years. Walker a native of Nashville, while pitching for his home team during a series of games in New Orleans, met Miss Lamavou. Rumor is that Walker only accepted the offer this season to join the New Orleans team so he could be near his sweetheart.

Shortly afterwards the couple announced their engagement to friends and since have been trying to win the consent of the bride's parents.

The bride recently became of age. Deciding that her parents could not be induced to consent and fearing that if they waiter longer "over the river marriages" would be prohibited by law, notified a few friends and a wedding party was hurriedly gathered.

The bride's family declared Wednesday morning that they knew nothing of the affair or the whereabouts of the newly weds and that the whole thing was a complete surprise to them After the ceremony the newlyweds went to 1041 Camp street, their future home, and a wedding supper held. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilson, Mrs. E. Brandt, Misses Adabelle Wemets, Emma Wemett, Harvey Bloom, Yale Sloan, M. R. Carrier and E. Carrick.

The Pleasure of Eating---

Yes—but far more important is the effect of food on body ane brain.

Grape-Nuts

—is not only a delightfully appetising food, but is remarkably rich in nutritive values.

Made from whole wheat and barley, Grape-Nuts retains all the nutrition of these grains, including of mineral, salts—phosphate of potash, etc.—so necessary for growth and repair of the delicate brain and nerve tissues, but which are so often lacking in ordinary food.

Ready to eat from the package, with cream or mi,k and a sprinkle of sugar—

A ration of Grape-Nuts along with other food helps wonderfully to provide a well-balanced dietary.

ULSTERMEN TO IMPORT MORE GUNS

London, June 8.—The rumors that conversations on Home Rule between the leaders of the Opposition and members of the Government were to be resumed upon Irish soil were picturesque but improbable. The truth seems to be that leaders on both sides are at the moment sufficiently occupied with their own followers in consultations, and upon the resultof these, future inter-party negotiations must necessarily turn. The Parliamentary recess has afforded a desirable opportunity for a dispassionate surbey of later developments of the situation in Ireland. There areindications this has been, and still is, absorbing the preoccupation of members of both front benches.

There were some dramatic moments at the great gathering of women which Sir Edward Carson addressed in East Belfast. "Ulster is unconquerable," he declared with passion. "The Government may put what they like into an Act of Parliament, but Ulster in spite of them, will remain free."

With marked deliberation, Sir Edward, looking towards the nurses, asked why they were here, and answered the question by stating they were "to attend the sick and wounded who would be made so because they had been loyal and true where others had been false and treacherous." Then speaking with characteristic force, he added: "But I do not believe it will ever come to that, for I believe in the manhood of the British race."

Referring to the gun-running exploit, the speaker raised his audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm when he said there "was a time when I bore many sneers about the wooden guns. The reproach is now not that I have wooden guns, but they say to me: 'How dare you have Mausers behind you?' I can only say this is what I always intended to have. I tell them that, with all their fleet and other prevenative measures, I am going to have more guns. We want peace," be proceeded, "but it is peace with honor."

Ordinary military manoeuvres have been resumed around Belfast, but in order to avoid misunderstanding the General Officer has taken the precaution to issue a notice informing the public of their resumption. Certain similar manoeuvres, a short time back, were construed locally as a provocative act towards the inhabitants.

MR. W. K. McNAUGHT IS NOT WORRYING

Does Not Think Convention Expresses Feelings of People

Toronto, June 3.—If I thought that the result at the convention last night expressed the feeling of the people I would feel very badly, but I do not think it did si I am not worrying, said Mr. W. K. McNaught, to-day

As for retiring to private life, he said that it all depended on what was meant by private life. He had not resigned from the Hydro-Electric Commission, but other wise he had retired to private life to-day and put in a mornings work in his office.

The late Mr. Smith, an electrical engineer, who was one of the first Hydro-Electric Commissioners, had not been a member of the Legislature All that the Act provides so far as Mr. McNaught could remember, is that at least one of the Commissioners must be a member of the Government.

MILLENIUM ? OH, NO! JUST LITTLE MISTAKE

Buffalo, June 3.—Strawberry boxes supplied the trade this spring contain more than a pint. Seemingly impossible, but nevertheless true. The pint box now in use contains 35 cubic inches, while the standard pint contains but 33.6 cubic inches.

Instead of cheating the public with short measure, the growers are this year cheating themselves. The standard quart box contains 67.2 cubic inches. Producers are now selling at the rate of 70 cubic inches to the quart.

The price of berries has not advanced this spring compared with the rate last year, when the increased amount in each box is considered,

YESTERDAY'S LOCAL SPORTS

Yesterday, Canada's National game Lacrosse was revived in Peterborough. In this connection it might be noted that Messrs. Trebilcock, the George street booksellers, have materially assisted in advancing local lacrosse by selling sticks at cost. yesterday's game at Riverside Park was between the Petes and Hastings. Hastings won 6—4. Mr. Alex. Kemp of Norwood refereed.

In the Mercantile League last night, the Bankers and Typos played a five innings game at the Exhibition grounds. The game was full of exciting plays and quite a number of fans turned out. Darkness hampered the boys quite a bit, and towards the end it was impossible to see the ball when hit. The Bankers won 11—3.

The Petes forfeited their game with Toronto yesterday at end of the 9th.

REDISTRIBUTION BILL IS NOW FINALLY DECIDED AS A FACT

Toronto City and York County to Get Ten Representatives --Difficulties Overcome

Ottawa, June 3.—It was announced at noon that the final meeting of the Redistribution Committee has been set for 8.30 to-night. If the committee does not agree then upon the disposition of Russell county in Ontario and Richmond in Nova Scotia the whole bill will go over until next session. However, it is expected a unanimous report will be reached.

Ottawa, June 3.—A meeting of the Redistribution Committee will be held to-day, when a final settlement will be reached. The schedule will be signed by the Conservatives and Liberals of the committee, and a unanimous report, it is expected, will be made to the House. The only two outstanding difficulties have been the disposal of Russell county in Eastern Ontario and Richmond in Nova Scotia. It is understood that both sides difficulties are now settled. and the way is clear for a unanimous report.

In the efforts of the committee to reach an unanimous agreement, there has been considerable give and take on both sides. The result is that the Liberals will be unable to cry gerrymander, as they were anticipating. Conservatives in the House claim that the Government members of the committee in their anxiety to secure unanimity and to prevent friction, have done nearly all the conceding. The Ontario redistribution, as finally determined upon, will leave Toronto city and York county with ten members. There will be seven purely urban ridings. East and West York will each have a slice of the city. North York will be purely rural. By the final arrangements Stouffville, which it was first proposed to put in East York, will be left in North York. Huron, Middlesex and Grey will each have two ridings instead of three, as at present. One of the contentious points was whether there would be an East and West or a North and South Middlesex. It will be left as an East and West. The two Elgins will be amalgamated into one seat. In Eastern Ontario it has been finally agreed to allow Russell to disappear. Russell county proper has only 19,000 people, so that there was no justification for continuing the riding. It will be divided between Carleton and Prescott. This is Hon. Charles Murphy's seat, so that he will have to find fresh pastures. The pocket borough of Brockville will also disappear.

Severely Injured Attendant at Gallery Who Interfered With Her Vandalism

London, June 3.—A savage attack with a hatchet was made to-day by a young militant suffragette on an attendant at the Dore gallery who tried to prevent her destroying the valuable pictures on exhibition there.

The woman who thus abandoned the principle of sanctity of human life held up as one of the chief assets ofthe militant suffragettes had already ruined two paintings in the gallery. She was proceeding to hack a third picture when an attendant named Bourlet seized her arm.

The vandal turned on the man furiously and rained a shower of blows on his body, severely injuring him. Other attendants rushed to the spot and quickly overpowered and disarmed her. She kicked, struggled and screamed for several minutes until she was handed over to the police. The Roman evidently was of good education and she was very stylishly dressed.

Homely, Yet Admired and Envied; Her Secret

The convention crowd made a path for her, cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Pontchartrain in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across table from the woman. What was it about her that caused all that commotion? Her complexion. Really I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintanceship, I learned the secret.

"I've tried to make the most of my one charm," she said. "I know men abhor make-ups and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are two things I use to promote natural loveliness and youthful appearance. When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the drugstore, apply at night like cold cream, wash it off in the morning. This gradually flakes off the outer skin; then I have a brand new complexion, magnetically beautiful, as you see.

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. It works like magic."—Nona Morrow in Tattler.

Danger In Matches

On this continent, matches are everywhere. Every room contains matches and even every pocket of a man's clothing contains matches. They are scattered about on desks and in drawers and are so common and are handled so carelessly that it is not to be wondered that we have a great many fires resulting from their use.—Halifax, N. S., Chronicle.

A [illegible]

A thrilling escape from drowning in Rainy River, near Fort Frances, Ontario, by catching hold of the antlers of a big bull moose, which was swimming across the river, was the experience of Clyde Buell, of Minneapolis. Buell was working at Fort Frances for a lumber company. He was out on a raft of logs. After striking a jam, the raft loosened, and Buell, clinging to a single piece of timber was carried down the river towards the rapids. He had given up hope when he saw the moose with its head and antlers above water swimming safely from the rapids. Buell let loose from his log and grabbed one horn of the antlers and shifted himself to the back of the animal and rode it to shallow water. The moose fought hard, but would sink beneath the water and soon gave up and swam ashore.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Fur Dealers Find It Profitable to Rechristen Common Furs

To supply the demand for a medium priced fur of beauty a common animal, the skunk, has been taken. The black domestic cat known to the trade as "genot," is also utilized to meet the demand for black furs, while northern hares are extensively manufactured into "Baltic fox" or "white fox" or "black lynx."

When the fur dressers and dyers produced a clipped and dyed muskrat skin that resembled sealskin almost perfectly, it was found that it would not sell under its real name because it was a common fur, used largely by the poorer classes. Consequently a name was invented for it and this popular and high priced fur is now sold as "Hudson Bay seal." The fur of the coney, a very cheap and common animal in France, is the raw product in producing "electric sealskin," "clipped seal," and "Baltic seal."

Racoon, when first introduced, was cheap and was in little demand, but when given the name "Alaska bear" and "silver bear" it immediately came into favor. Skunk, which is an excellent fur of dark hue, though beautiful and durable, could not be sold as "skunk," but as "black marten," and "Alaska sable," it is in high favor and likely to remain in the class of the medium and high-priced furs. It is worth remarking that, since the prejudice against the muskrat, skunk and other cheaper furs has been overcome, they can be sold under their real names.

BIGGEST PAIR OF TUSKS

Burmese Elephant Carries Huge Ivory Adornments

In the stables of the Royal Palace at Mandalay, in Burma, there may be seen an elephant with a remarkable pair of tusks, which the Burmese declare are the largest in the world. These gigantic tusks measure as much as seven feet nine inches on the outside curve, with a greatest circumference of no less than seventeen inches. To naturalists the most extraordinary point about these tusks, which are still being carried by their owner, is that they virtually touch the ground and almost meet. Apparently, however, their owner experiences no inconvenience from these long and cumbrous appendages while taking exercise. As a zoological curiosity the elephant has naturally attracted wide attention, and it is said that several offers have already been received for the tusks when the animal should see fit to depart from this world.

An Encounter With a Bear

Chased by a bear, Andrew Craig of Brightside, near Kingston, Ont. had a thrilling experience. He was on his way to get his cows, when he ran across a bear and two cubs. The mother sent her cubs up a tree and then set out to attack Craig and his dog. Craig did not have his gun with him and so was caught at a disadvantage. Believing that to retreat was the best policy, Craig and his dog ran for all they were worth. As he was jumping a fence, Craig slipped and man, dog and bear fell in a heap. The bear then coolly walked back to look after her cubs, much to the joy of Craig.

Grain Storage Capacity

PLAID TRIMMINGS MAKE SMALL FROCKS GAY

Short coats are favored quite as much as the longer ones, many of the new imported models showing them very effectively. These costumes are highly attractive worn with draped or tunicked skirts and trimmed with fur or vested with a rather brilliantly figured silk, as shown in 6037-7956.

Tete de negre brown duvetyn is used as shown here with a colored vest and bone buttons as the only trimming aside from the drapery on the skirt.

To make this costume in size 36 it requires 2 yards of 36 inch material for the blouse (6037) and 3¾ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (7956).

Whereas dull colored wools are used a great deal for small folks they are trimmed as in the grownup fashions with bright plaids and figured silks.

This effective little dress is made of dull blue ratine, and the girdle and trimming bands are of the gayest possible plaid, which should delight the heart of any little miss.

The blouse is in peasant effect; the skirt is a straight little model attached to a sleeveless underwaist.

In size 12 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material is required to make this dress, with ⅝ of a yard of plaid for trimming.

No. 6037—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 7956—sizes 22 to 30.

Our Point of View

If Sir Edward Carson makes good his charges the Nationalists' slogan, "Hail to the Chief" will be changed to "Bail to the Chief."

A Capable Man

Great Britain is sending the outstanding figure in maritime judicial affairs to the Empress of Ireland investigation in the person of Lord Mersey, formerly Mr. Justice Bigham. It is conceded in England that he knows more about ships, navigation and the rule of the road than any other member of the bar. This knowledge was gained after many years of practice as a marine counsel in Liverpool, the premier seaport of the world.

IT ALL STARTED FROM A BAD COLD

Mr. Robt. Taylor, Sr., After Suffering For Two Years, Tells of the Benefits He Got From Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Watford, Ont., June 3.—(Special.)—Mr. Robert Taylor, Sr., a very estimable man living here, is telling his friends that the pain in his back, from which he suffered for some time, has disappeared, and that he gives all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started with a cold" Mr. Taylor states, "and though I was treated by a doctor I got no permanent relief. I had cramps in my muscles and stiffness in my joints, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing and I perspired freely with the least exertion. I had attacks of rheumatism and sciatica, and though I tried many medicines I found no relief till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. I must say they were a great benefit to me."

Mr. Taylor's troubles came from his kidneys. The diseased kidneys failed to strain the uric acid out of the blood and the results were as he has stated. Dodd's Kidney Pills put the kidneys in working order, the uric acid was strained out of the blood, and the troubles went with it.

Aggressive Nationalists

A circular has been sent out to every French-Canadian centre urging the electors to vote only for those candidates who condemn Regulation 17 of the Education Department and "pronounce themselves in favor of the teaching of French in the schools."

The circular reads as if French teaching in the schools had been abolished. That is not true. There has never been any desire on the part of the Minister of Education or his advisers to prescribe the French language. Regulation 17 provides that daily instruction in the language shall be given, but that other classes shall be carried on in the English language. And why not? If the children speak French at home; if at school they are taught to read and write that language with facility, is it not wise that practice in English speech should be given as much as possible?

No pupil should leave an Ontario school without a good working knowledge of English. It is the language of the Continent, the language of commerce for 100,000,000 of people on this side of the Atlantic. If the pupil knows French as well so much the better. Two languages make a two-sided man. Only hysteria could find anything unjust or unfair in the regulations dealing with bi-lingual schools.

It is notorious that under the old customs the pupils left these schools without a good knowledge of either language. Bishop Fallon protested. Instead of co-operating with the Department of Education to correct the conditions, the French press, and particularly Mr. Genest's society of irreconcilables, attacked the Bishop with a vigor that cannot be reasonably explained. A good many French-Canadians of both parties are coming to that opinion.

Wolves Near St. John

Wolves were seen near St. John, N. B., recently for the first time since the days of the early settlers in the district. John Johnston, of Gilbert's Lane, was enjoying an early morning stroll in Rockwood Park, about a mile back from the nearest settled section, when he saw four large black wolves and a cub. Two of the animals followed him for a short distance. They did not show any intention of attacking him, but he did not wait to make any closer investigation of their intentions.

While wolves are known to exist in the densely wooded regions in the north of the province, it is many years since any have been reported in the south.

Utilizing Nile Power

It is understood that the Egyptian irrigation department proposes to utilize the water which flows through the great Assuan dam for the generation of electric power. For about five months in the late autumn and winter the water is accumulated in the reservoir formed by the dam, and what is allowed to pass the sluices flows through under a large head. It would be possible to develop over 150,000 horsepower. The electrical energy generated is to be employed in the production of chemical fertilizers by the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen. In a year Egypt spent $3,250,000 on such fertilizers, 56,000 tons out of the 70,000 tons imported being nitrate.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

CONSERVING THE RACE

New Prison Treatment Economic of Citizens

Col. Clark in responding to the toast, "Canada," at the annual dinner of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said that while in the past Canada had been profligate of its great assets, the problem of conservation was being taken up and that the idea of conservation included the men, women and children, living and working in Canada. The speaker asserted that the new idea in treating prisoners and criminals was that every prisoner was not a criminal and that every criminal was not a prisoner. In connection with this idea he spoke of the Guelph prison farm, where men are given a fresh start.

Great Britain, Col Clark asserted, had made mistakes, but was still the greatest single secular force for good in the world. As long as Britain retained that distinction, so long would she occupy the position of leadership.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

Bachelor Quarters.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I'VE been keeping bachelor quarters now for over a week. Mary's having a splendid time at Marner's Lake. Now, although I've frequently reflected that marriage to me has been an immense disillusionment, and that outside of a certain pride and tranquil affection I do not love Mary as a man should love the one woman in the world, it's odd how I miss her. To be sure I've gotten my own breakfast ever since I was married, so it makes very little difference to get it now, but I don't like eating at a little restaurant in town at night and then tramping home to a lonely house and a lonely smoke.

Dad and mother are off on their usual trip. Otherwise I should have packed up my duds and gone home for the weeks Mary is enjoying herself at the lake.

Now Mary complained a great deal of the heat when she was skilfully manoeuvring for her summer at the lake, but I doubt if there's a cooler place anywhere than our little piazza when the night's grown quiet. Still it's lonely. The crickets and night insects keep up a pretty, plaintive chorus.

A Dreary Place.

And how I do hate to make my bed. For a while I made my bed every morning, then I made it every night. Now I sleep in each bed in turn and make 'em up at the end in a bunch. This way I'm three beds ahead and don't have to worry so much.

I'm beginning to think I'm a notional fool full of moods. I've grown cynical about marriage, yet here I'm wishing Mary was home and thinking what a dreary sort of place home is without her.

I was thinking all this sort of lonesome stuff one night over a melancholy pipe and picturing my Mary out on a moonlit lake with a jolly crowd having a wonderful time while I was listening to an inspired orchestra of mosquitoes tuning up for the night's work when the telephone rang. I sighed and went in to answer.

It was mother's voice.

"Hello, son," she exclaimed heartily. "How are you?"

"Hello, mother!" said I, warmed into cheerfulness by the pleasant sound of her voice, "when did you get home anyway?"

"Tonight," she said. "Dad and I got tired of rambling about. We began to think how comfortable home is and how much we like to sit on the piazza nights together and we simply had to come home. I guess we're getting old, Peter. Home seems the pleasantest summer place after all. How's Mary?"

Home to Mother.

"Oh, Mary's pretty well," I said uncomfortably. "She's away."

"Away!" said mother. "Why, I thought you didn't get your vacation until the end of August, and you were going somewhere together——"

"Well," I explained lamely, "the summer's been pretty warm, and Mary was growing tired and nervous, and everybody she knows is away. That made her pretty lonesome in the daytime, and I thought she'd better go. In fact," I added mendaciously, "I made her go."

Mother didn't say anything for some little time. I knew she was thinking of the times Dad had tried to make her go away and rest and she wouldn't go. But mother is a good sport. She doesn't say things like that even when she thinks them.

"Dear, dear," came her kindly voice after a while, "you must be pretty lonely, son. Pack up a suitcase of clothes and come home tonight. Your old room's always ready, and Dad and I will be waiting on the porch for you."

Who could resist that picture? As I hung up, I saw in my mind's eye Dad in his big chair with his slippered feet on the porch pillar by the rose bush smoking and staring at the moon. And mother would be rocking——

It was much too peaceful and cosey a picture for a lonely man to resist. I dashed to my room and packed suitcase. I am lonely and I do miss Mary, but I suppose she's having a wonderful time.

Tabbies That Really Work

A SUGGESTION made that the rat nuisance should be fought by means of armies of cats has been tried.

In Hongkong, for instance, during the epidemic of rat-borne bubonic plague, some few years back, many hundreds of cats were imported, and set to work to exterminate the rodents. They proved, however, to be very poor rat catchers.

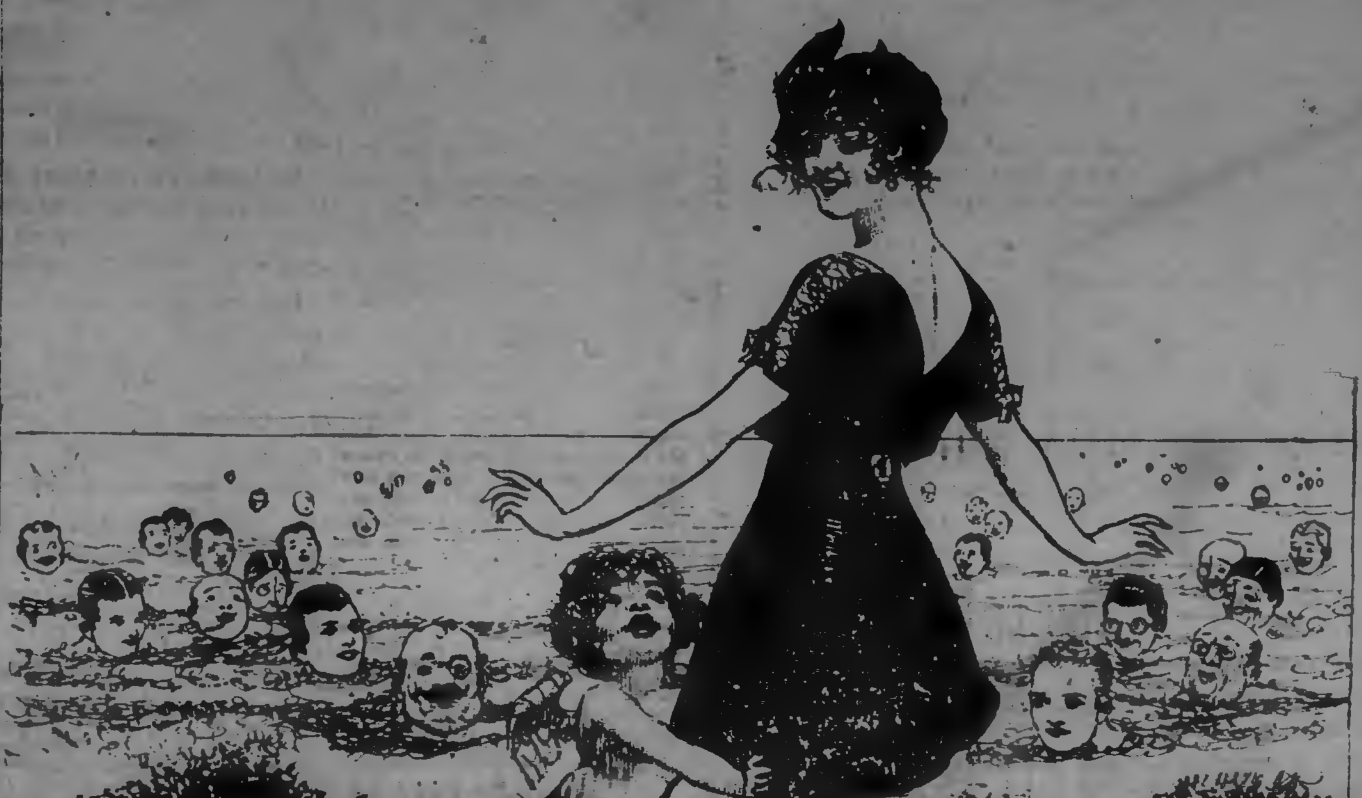
In France, too, cats are used by the government authorities to protect military stores from the depredations of rats, and in order to train them, and to ascertain their fitness for their work, they are sent for a sea voyage. If they are found equal to killing the rats always found in the lower holds of vessels, they are given a similar job on shore.

Malta also has its government cats. They are kept in the great subterranean reserve granaries under Valetta, and, like the pit ponies, once they are taken below, they seldom ascend to the surface again.

At the London general postoffice, a similar staff of cats is maintained. It is their duty to protect the mails from rats, and when past work they are pensioned off, just like other government employes.

PERILS OF THE SEA

By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

OH, YES! There are storms, and monsters, and all sorts of things that make the sea dangerous to persons in ships. Any sailor will tell you how much of a hero he has to be to take the chance.

But there are perils not mentioned in natural history—in shallow water, too. They show themselves to a really knowing student while the student is still dry at the brink. You can actually count them.

The worst of it is that the longer you hover on the sand the greater the danger grows, for the lurking perils grow impatient and eager. Actually there have been fatal cases when the victim didn't go into the water at all, but just dallied in the gilding sunlight, shimmering and flashing in an unconsciousness of observation that was ALMOST real.

"Said the tide to the tied,
You have yourselves to blame."

Dreams in the Songs of Another Day

By WINIFRED BLACK

Winifred Black

YOU must wake and call me early. Call me early, mother, dear."

The little girl is in the other room practising.

She's going to speak a piece at the last day entertainment before vacation.

She had expected to learn something about smile and your heart will smile, or there is no sorrow—we but think it so—or something else "helpful" and "uplifting."

But some one left a volume of Tennyson lying around and the Little Girl found it, and when I went into the room there she sat, curled up in the big chair by the window, and her soft eyes were full of tears—and she said:

"It's so queer about this—I don't know why—but I can't keep from crying when I read this poem."

And she read it aloud in her little soft voice with a kind of gentle sing-sing:

"You must wake and call me early,
Call me early, mother, dear.
For tomorrow is the gladdest day
Of all the glad new year.
Of all the glad new year, mother,
The merriest, maddest day;
For I'm to be queen of the May, mother—
I'm to be queen of the May."

The Dear Old Poems.

And, somehow, I cried a little, too; and then we both smiled and were very happy.

And the little girl decided that she wanted to recite the "Queen of the May" at the school festival instead of something modern and "uplifting" and "helpful."

Dear little girl, how in the world would we ever keep our hearts warm at all, in this world of fads and furies, if it were not for such as you.

We know all the old poems, too. "The splendor falls on castle walls and snowy summits old in story." How splendid was the hour when first you heard the ringing glory of that song.

"The long light shakes across the lakes
And the wild cataract leaps in glory."

How your heart leaped and how clear you saw the lake, so blue, so deep, so mysterious, so far, so far away.

"Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean, roll—
Ten thousand fleets rail over thee in vain."

Oh, yes, we laugh at that now and we think it's clever to quote it as if it were a joke. But who can write another like it—tell me that?

"Oh, young Lochinvar has come out of the west.
Of all the wide border his steed was the best.
Oh, come ye in peace here or come ye in war,
Or to dance at our bridal—young Lord Lochinvar."

Was there ever such a challenge so proudly spoken?

You couldn't be a coward and a sneak and a liar; you couldn't be grasping and envious and mean and small-minded, while you were reading Young Lochinvar.

Get, then, all the old poets, and let's have a riot of joyous comradeship.

"He's tall and he's fine and his shoulders are broad;
His equal scarce ever was seen.
I'd rather beg the world around
For Jock O'Haseldean."

"Uplift" Is Forgotten.

Well, well, Jock, here you come riding into my heart again, and it's years since I've thought of you at all; and you, with your hair hanging down in threads of gold, brave Jock O'Haseldean.

Why, you're worth a dozen of the new-fangled heroes with their cigarettes and their highballs and their yachts and automobiles and things.

"Two by two the knights ride down to storied Camelot."

And there you are in your fair tower, sweet Lady of Shalott. Have you been weaving, back and forth, back and forth, all these weary years, and has my cold heart forgotten how to pity you?

"Tirra lirra by the river—sang Sir Lancelot."

How far we've wandered from the shining river; how different are the songs we've heard since then.

"All night long he called her snookieukums!"

How deliciously poetic!

"What's you done with the dollar I give you yesterday?"

I heard a little girl singing both of these songs in one hideous hour, and her mother laughed and we all smiled and said, "Isn't she cunning?"

Well, maybe she is, and perhaps there is no special harm in these songs we cannot escape in these days—but somehow do you know, Sir Lancelot, I rather like your old-fashioned "tirra lirra by the river."

"For I'm to be queen of the May, mother, I'm to be queen of the May."

So you are, sweetheart, so your are. And you shall wear a soft white frock and your brown hair shall fall over your shoulders in a glory of curls, and you shall wear a green wreath upon your brow, and we who are world worn and weary shall smile, and back of the smiles will be, somehow—I know not why—a feeling as of tears.

And perhaps we shan't miss the "uplift" and the "helpfulness" so dreadfully after all.

Unusual.

"Their marriage is such bad form."

"Yes?"

"Oh, indeed. Each insists that they are affinities."

Not Hopeful.

"He seems to take a gloomy view of life and its prospects."

"Yes, he's too pessimistic to get a divorce."

The Great Test.

"He says that he can fall in love with any woman he meets."

"I guess that's right. He was in love with a vegetarian once."

An Eye to Business.

Friend—But why are you to have a secret marriage?

Actress—Because the papers will give so much more space to it.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Books a Bracing Tonic to Brain and Body

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

AS sunlight and fresh air, cold water and a plain pabulum are tonics to the braun and blood, so is reading to the brain and the muscles.

The printed page is the soul's purifier, and it is no new discovery under the sun. An inscription over the door of the library at Thebes says, "Books are medicine for the soul."

It seems the printing press of today had voluminous rivals ten thousand and twenty thousand years ago. Reading was, perhaps, just as universal then as now.

The pyramids were built with a thousand human hands to move each block, and books were inscribed with labor just as cheap and in equal battalions of human "printing presses."

In a word, reading, writing and arithmetic were the same honored medical trio scores of thousands of years ago. Furthermore, the mind of Smith today is not a jot superior to the mind of the Chaldean or Persian shepherd of 25,000 years ago.

Nor is the mind of Edison or Woodrow Wilson superior to that of Aristotle or the ancient wise men. The intelligence and mental incapacity of humanity in general is exactly the same today as it was aeons of years ago, despite all the dubdub and talk of supermen.

All of these truths, however, take nothing from the fact that a little study now and then will more than help the wisest men. The man who is physically and intellectually sick; the domestic drudge with her pandemonium of petty troubles; the fair maid disappointed in love; the bashful, unprogressive youth can all find a cure in the reading room and library habit.

If boys and girls or men and women who by force of circumstances have been compelled to abandon school, study and reading habits early in life, would spend one hour each night in the reading room of a public library, scanning and snatching thought from the pages of elementary books on biology, chemistry, physics, bacteriology, geology, zoology and encyclopedias, much of the mental anguish, perverted intelligence, misdirected thinking, near-insanity and distorted sensations and feelings, which are worse than organic maladies, would be given their coup de grace.

You must, however, mix the living with the dead. That is to say, with every honored old classic that you read you must read three live, vital, current volumes. Such classics as Aristotle, Milton, Shakespeare, Faraday, Dante, Moliere, Hugo and the other worthies must be the meat in the sandwich of current text books, periodicals and newspapers. For each Carlyle, Goethe and Kant there must be several slices of up-to-date 1914 psychology, science, philosophy, drama, poetry and even fiction.

Books then are the safe deposit vaults of thought. They are, moreover, the throbbing, active life blood that pulses the present times and customs through your tissues. Plus muscular experience and environmental contact they are the flesh, the life, the vital spirit of your very self.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I have a boy friend who is a good boy, and one I respect very much. Now I like to dance, and he says if I do he will have to leave me. I certainly do not want to lose him. What do you think I should do?

SINCERE.

WHICH do you like best, your friend or the tango? It seems to be a choice between the two, doesn't it. The tango is pretty sure to go out one of these days. The time's coming, you know, when you won't care for dancing particularly—oh, yes, it is—and if you really care for this person you call a "boy" you'll go on caring for him, always, if that's the kind you are. Is it?

Why doesn't he want you to dance? Can't he dance, and is he jealous of you, or has he really religious prejudice against it?

I'm afraid I should worry a bit about a young man who was so very, very "different" from the others.

Think it over, little girl. Think it over, and make up your mind, for nobody can make it up for you.

But be quite sure that when you have given up dancing the young man does not decide to learn, and get some girl who has not given it up to teach him.

Wouldn't that be vexing?

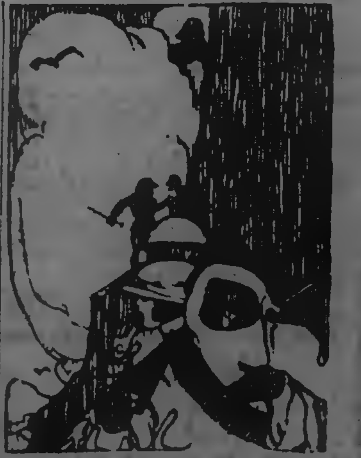
Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

Three Minute Journeys

The Greatest Tragedy of Conquest

By TEMPLE MANNING



Only from One Direction May the Fortress Be Reached.

PROBABLY the most striking relics of ancient Roman conquest, preserved mainly by reason of their modern isolation, are to be found in Judea. These are what remain of the fortifications thrown up against Masada, the last Jewish stronghold to defy the Caesars, after the fall of Jerusalem in the year 70.

Today Judea, or that part of southeastern Palestine known as the Wilderness of Judea, is an arid plateau dotted with small conical hills intersected by deep ravines. It is difficult to imagine a more desolate and dreary region, or one filled with more danger, the roving tribes of Bedouins being for the most part insatiable robbers.

The mountain of Masada towers 1700 feet above the plains of the Dead sea. Its sides are so precipitous that no army could well climb them. Only from one direction may the fortress on the mountain top be reached.

A wall, built by the Romans at the foot of Masada, enclosing the mountain, is still in a good state of preservation. At intervals along its length were camps of soldiers, and these are plain today.

It was here that the most tragic ending happened to the besieged that has ever occurred to any armed force in the world's history. The Jews, finally realizing that their cause was hopeless, agreed to kill themselves. First they burned their valuables. Then they slaughtered their families, and appointed 10 men to act as executioners, and after bidding farewell to one another each man lay down by his [illegible] friend and presented his neck for the blow. In all 960 persons perished.

The early Christians must have [illegible] built Masada, for there is the remains of a Byzantine church there.

No visit to Palestine is complete without the side trip to this part of the country, the stories told in stones of ancient races repaying for the hardships of the journey.

Careful But Lose

That the fruit growers who take the best care of their orchards will be the heaviest losers on account of the damage to the fruit crop, was logically explained by Prof. W. T. Macoun of Ottawa at the convention of the growers of the Niagara district, the opening session of which was held at Grimsby. The progressive grower who cultivated and pruned for fruit development, cutting back the wood, assisted in the early advance of the buds brought on by the unusually mild weather of the early winter, which was followed by an unprecedented season of zero weather which killed the premature buds.

LESSONS FROM FIRES

The National Fire Prevention Association in a report on fire losses, drew attention to the following points:—

Shingled roofs are a constant menace and should be abolished.

Unprotected steel construction has proved itself many times to be inferior to average timber construction. Unless well protected in a suitable manner to withstand the action of fire, this type of construction invites disaster.

In every building two or more stairways, remotely located with respect to each other and enclosed in fireproof shafts, are essential for the escape of the occupants, as well as for the work of the fire department.

Elevators should be enclosed in brick or reinforced concrete shaft, walls to pierce all floors and stand at least three feet above roof. Approved automatic fire doors to be installed on one side of wall at all doorways to building.

Properly installed hand-hose connections on sprinkler equipments in specially hazardous locations have proved very desirable, and frequently prevent an undue water loss by extinguishing the fire before the automatic sprinklers operate.

Big Trees on Coast

In the forests of British Columbia, trees have been cut so huge that the smooth flat tops of the trunk furnish a platform large enough to dance a set of lancers upon. Indeed the lumberjacks put them to this use. There are a number of trees in Stanley Park, Vancouver, which are between fifty and sixty feet in circumference.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Japan's Sacred Mountain.

Fuji-yama, the famous sacred mountain of Japan, is an absolutely perfect mountain. It stands alone, and rises a superb cone crested with white. It is difficult to realize that it stands 12,000 feet high from the blue sea which edges its skirts, so gradual and perfect is its rise. Other things may be compared to this beautiful mountain, but undoubtedly it cannot be compared to anything; it stands supreme and alone, its own lovely, graceful self.

Japanese Thrift

In Japan examples of thriftiness are amazing. On account of the rapidly growing population the people cannot afford to waste the value of a straw. Even the seaweed and octopus serve for food. Hillsides that would be given up in Canada as absolutely untillable have been converted into rice fields in forty irrigated terraces rising above each other on a single slope and made permanent by walls of masonry. If there is no water, it can be carried to the topmost terrace of the farmers, and if the hillside is rocky, even soil itself may be taken from some distant deposit to the terrace.

PECULIAR NAMES

In the Somerset House Registers is evidence that Mineral Waters, Frosty Winter and Allsd Day Weeks once walked on English soil. A father in Hampshire County of the United States named his sons Primus, Secundus, Tertius and Quartus, but it was a Canadian, one Cumber, that was named Quintus, and newspapers in good faith often printed his name Q. Cumber.

There are fathers who, at their wits' end, give the name of a place to a child. Was Boston the real name or the nickname of the man that shot Lincoln's assassin? Was not Rudyard Kipling named after a place? Andrew Lang in one of his books mentions the children of a courier, who named them after places where he happened to be when he heard of their births. The names were St. Petersburg, Naples, Kattegat and Skagerrak (twins), and the only daughter was named Vienna.

HAND RAILS ON LADDER

Give Person Sure Footing in Ascending to Top Steps

People who have had occasion to use tall stepladders know how difficult it sometimes is to keep their footing in ascending to the top steps, particularly if they have a bucket or some other burden in one hand. A pair of hand rails effectively overcomes this. Along the upper part of the sides of the ladder are attachments, on each of which swinging arms are pivoted. To these arms, in turn, railings are pivoted so that when needed the railings can be pulled out to form a guide and support to a person ascending the steps, and when not needed they can be folded in along the sides of the ladder. Painters or paperhangers will find this attachment a great help and need not worry about a tumble. Housemaids, too, will be able to climb to the top of the ladder and wipe the ceiling without any further excuse.

FARMING IN THE NORTH

The Upper Mackenzie Valley Can Probably be Tilled

No. 1 hard wheat, grown 800 miles north of Edmonton, prize vegetables raised on the Arctic Circle, and spruce trees six feet in diameter, are some of the wonders of the Northern Territories which Mr. Henry A. Conroy, Inspector of Indian Agencies, saw on a northern inspection tour.

Known officially as "Treaty No. 8," the territory over which Mr. Conroy exercises supervision is inhabited by about 8,000 Indians. Once a year Inspector Conroy visits the 18 agencies located in Treaty 8, and distributes to the Indians about $35,000 in money and several thousand dollars' worth of food, ammunition, fishing nets, and other necessaries of aboriginal life.

"Our agent there experimented with three varieties of wheat, the yields from which were taken down to Edmonton and graded No. 1 hard," said Mr. Conroy. "He grew also 800 bushels of oats. They weighed 38 pounds to the bushel. Rye and barley were also successfully grown.

"The very best gardens I saw on the whole route are at Fort Good Hope, still further north. In the upper Mackenzie Valley there is a country as large as Manitoba and every bit of it fit for settlement."

MICROBE EATS METAL

This Bacillus Has an Action Upon Iron and Steel

Although science knew a hundred micro-organisms that devour the human tissues and cause all sorts of maladies, and also many that eat plants, roots, dirt, wood, and clothing, it had never been imagined that there was one capable of eating up bits of steel and iron. Yet a discovery made by E. M. Mumford, an English student, showed that this is the case.

This species of bacillus varies in its digestive action upon iron and steel compounds according to whether it acts in the presence or absence of air. When oxygen is present the iron is precipitated by the germs as iron bog-ore, while in the absence of oxygen no iron salts are formed. This iron-eating germ is a short microbe about one-thousandth of an inch long. It grows readily on potatoes and then looks greenish-brown in color. It also colonizes in milk, gelatine, and agar.

A Question of Age.

A local evening contemporary last night said: "A girl of eighteen today knows more than she did twenty years ago." Very possible. Still, even a Peterborough girl is hardly to be blamed for not knowing much two years before she was born!

Bobcaygeon Boy Scouts.

Lindsay Warder: A fine corps of boy scouts from Bobcaygeon passed through town last night, returning from Peterboro where they assisted in welcoming the Duke of Connaught. The scouts looked well in their uniforms and no doubt made a good showin in the big reception.

Italian Hurt in Sewer.

As a gang of men were working yesterday on the Princess street sewer, near the DeLaval Works, the banks fell in. An Italian, in consequence sustained a fractured collar bone. Dr.A mys was telephoned for and took the injured man to the hospital.

Fined For Ill-treatment

Lindsay Warder: An assault case was dealt with at County Magistrate F. D. Moore's court on Monday afternoon, which told of much cruelty inflicted on a young farm hand who works for Mr. Wm. McCausland, of North [illegible], by a neighboring farmer. His Worship imposed a fine and costs amounting to $27.02 on the defendant.

Lindsay's New Chief of Police.

Lindsay Post: Acting on the recommendation of Ald. Clarke, Chairman of Police Commissioners at last night's Council meeting, Deo-Reeve Smale and Ald. Baker moved that John Short be appointed Chief of Police and that a by.law be prepared providing for such appointment.

Old Man Lost.

On Monday Joseph Cunningham of the Protestant Home wandered down to see the Duke and has not as yet wandered back. The old man has wandered away before. He is 60 years of age. He is of slight build and wore a soft hat, light summer flannel coat dark vest, striped pants. He is about 5 feet 6 inches in height and has shaggy grey whiskers and long hair.

The Duke Declined to Tell

A little incident connected with the recent visit of the Governor- General to this city has seeped it from Manvers Station. It seems the vice regal train was detained there for some time. The Duke got out to stretch his legs. As he walked along the siding an Irish navvy was employed digging. The Duke said good day and got into conversation with the navvy. The latter not recognizing His Royal Highness, said "Say Mister lave you sit down on thim ties whilst waiting for your train to go." He added 'Say Mister what the —ho you think of the Home Rule Bill"?

Do Long Breaths Hurt

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY. ...

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns of Stamford, who says:—"In running to cacch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed me side thoroughly three times The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing nor powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

MONUMENTS FOR LIARS

The Sea Dyaks Are a Very Truthful and Honest Race

So truthful are the members of the race known as the Sea Dyaks of Borneo that when a really good lie is told to them they build a monument to keep green the memory of the perpetrator.

This is only one curious piece of information among many supplied in an article in the "Mission Field." These people, it is stated, are as honest as they are truthful.

So disgraceful do they consider the deceiving of others by an untruth that such conduct is handed down to posterity by a curious custom. They heap up a pile of branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that future generations may know of his wickedness and take warning from it.

The persons deceived start a tugong bula—"the liar's mound"—by heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous spot by the side of the path leading from one village to another. Every passer-by contributes to it, and at the same time curses the man in memory of whom it is. The Dyaks consider the adding to any tugong bula they may pass a sacred duty, the omission of which will meet with supernatural punishment, and so, however pressed for time a Dyak may be, he stops to throw on the pile some branch or twig.

In his jungle home the Dyak is remarkably honest. Families are often away from their homes for weeks at a time, living in little huts on their farms, and, though no one is left in charge of their rooms in the lone village house, things are seldom lost.

The writer states that with an experience of nearly twenty years in Borneo he knew of only two instances of theft. One was the theft of rice. The woman who lost the rice most solemnly and publicly cursed the thief, whoever it might be. The next night the rice was left at her door.

Where Clocks Are Curiosities

Clocks are regarded as curiosities by many of the Hindus, and for this reason half-a-dozen or more timepieces are often found in the apartments of the wealthy Hindustanees. They are not used as timepieces, but simply for ornament, since the old-fashioned way of telling the hour in India, by calculating the number of bamboo lengths the sun has travelled above the horizon, is entirely satisfactory to the natives.

It is said that in the country police stations in India, where the European division of the hours is observed, time is measured by placing in a tub of water a copper pot in which a small hole has been bored. It is supposed that it will take one hour for the water to leak into the pot so as to fill it and sink it. When the policeman sees that the pot has disappeared he strikes the hour on a bell-like gong. If he is smoking or dozing the copper pot may have disappeared several minutes before he discovers the fact, but the hour is when he strikes the gong.

THE FARM WATER SUPPLY

Often Neglected and a Source of Contamination and Disease

Usually the first considerations in locating a well are convenience, cheapness of construction, and certainty of striking an adequate water supply. The well is therefore usually located near the house or the barn, and often in a low place subject to seepage or surface drainage from the barnyard or outbuildings, thus contaminating the water and making it dangerous to health. Water thus contaminated may cause typhoid fever or similar diseases, contaminate milk butter, and vegetables sold from the farm, and altogether directly and indirectly cause great loss and suffering to the farmer and to the country at large.

Often these wells have clear, cold, sparkling water, and it is hard to make their owners believe that it cannot be safely used without first destroying the bacteria and removing the source of contamination. If this cannot be done, it is necessary to dig a new well in some location free from such danger. This should always be the first consideration in the location of a well.

It may cost a little more to distribute the water, but it is money well spent. A pure water supply is one of the most valuable assets of a farm. The water should always be piped to the house, barn and garden. The saving of labor much more than repays the cost of such distribution.

But Will Only Give Assurances of Their Hearty Sympathy Will Not Express Official Opinion

London, June 4.—Rumors that Sir Edward Carson would attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Belfast, proved unfounded. The large attendance at the beginning of the afternoon's session was not due to the expectation of his visit, but because a deputation from the United Free Church of Scotland was to be received. Everybody wanted to know what message they would bring in answer to the Assembly's appeal for support against Home Rule

The Assembly of the Irish Presbyterian Church has formally pronounced against Home Rule and strenuous efforts have been made to enlist the support of the Assemblies of the Churches of Great Britain. So far they have refused to make any pronouncement on the political question.

Assurance of Sympathy.

The United Free Church of Scotland, yesterday, without expressing any opinion on the political question renewed their assurance of sympathy with their Irish brethren in the grave anxieties of the present situation, Dr. Jordan, chief spokesman, contented himself with presenting the message. The two other spokesmen, who were careful to say they were speaking only for themselves and not as representatives of their church, gave greater comfort. Sheriff Watson, who, while a Scottish Judge, disclaimed all interest in politics, nevertheless expressed sincere admiration for Sir Edward Carson's leadership and was especially cheered. The Assembly had to go, however, on the written message and in a long resolution it confessed a feeling of disappointment with the attitude which many in the United Free Church of Scotland showed towards their brethren and co-religionists in Ireland at a time "unparalleled for peril to our church and country, when practical sympathy would have been very helpful."

SUFFRAGETTES PLAN DISTURBANCE AT COURT OF KING GEORGE

Militant Suffragettes Said to Have Made Elaborate Preparations--Police Made Discovery

London, June 4.—An attempt to hold up King George by force at tonight's court at Buckingham Palace is the latest conspiracy charged to the militant suffragettes. The Evening Standard, which is responsible for the story, says that the police discovered elaborate plans for securing access to the court, including the forged cards of admission.

The alleged plot is credited to the fertile brain of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, but the timely discovery led to such precautions being taken, it is believ- d, as to render it impossible for alization.

Every Precaution.

The police arrangements at the ourt are likely to prove irksome for he King's guests. The procession of arriages arriving at the palace will ave to run the gauntlet of a cordon f plain clothes detectives and police tationed at all approaches. Every arriage will be held up and every dy will have to produce credentials.

SNAKES AID FARM

Harrisburg, Pa., June 4.—Official opinion has been rendered by Professor H. A. Surface, state zoologist, that the toad is more to be desired than the snake. But at that, the professor says, the snake is a good kind of creature, and should be esteemed by mankind.

He commends snakes—copperheads excepted—to the people as worthy of protection, because they are bug killers.

When the snakes eat toads, which are also bug killers, the professor admits the situation is complicated But he gives the toads the decision.

"If you have toads in your garden and can keep them there," he officially advises a correspondent, "It is well to do so. They are really more beneficial as insect destroyers than are the serpents."

MANY LETTERS LOST

Quebec, June 4.—A large quantity of mail has been lost in the Empress of Ireland, which was a R. M. S. The amount sent on her consisted of 31 sacks of letters, 58 sacks of newspapers and 6 baskets of parcel post packages. The sacks of letters included 800 pieces of registered matter, the face value of which is as yet unknown.

Altogether it is probable that over 90,000 persons will have suffered by the tremendous loss of mail matter.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Unsettled.

WREATH RECEIVED FROM THE PREMIER

Many Flowers for Decoration of the Macdonald Monument.

Toronto, June 4.—For the decoration of the Macdonald monument in Queen's Park on Saturday afternoon, the Centre and South Toronto Conservative Club have already received an enormous quantity of flowers, including magnificent wreaths from Hon. R. L. Borden, Sir Richard McBride and Sir Mackenzie Bowell. Representatives of the Dominion Government sent by the Premier, will be among the speakers, who will include the city candidates for the Legislature, who are members of the club. The large platform in course of erection near the monument is to be profusely decorated by the Robert Simpson Company. It is expected that many thousands of citizens of Toronto and various points of the Province will assemble to join in a monster tribute to the memory of the late Sir John A. Macdonald.

FARMERS' BANK BILL PASSED

Substantial Majority in Fovor of Government's Measure

Ottawa, June 4.—After an all night sitting the Farmers Bank resolution to recoup depositors to the extent of $1,200,000 was passed by the Commons this morning by a majority of 38. Three Liberal members, Mr. J. A. MacMillan, Glengarry; Mr. Duncan Ross, est Middlesex, and Mr. E. W. Nesbitt, North Oxford, voted with the Government. Mr. Paul Lamarche, Conservative, Nicolet, stated that had he not been paired and unable to vote he would have voted against the resolution.

Premier Borden, the last speaker, said that Hon. Mr. Fielding should not have issued the certificate, but as he had done so and the bank failed the Government was morally bound to aid the depositors.

MONTREAL VOTES TO HELP VICTIMS

Montreal, June 4.—The Board of Control of Montreal yesterday voted the sum of $10,000 to be given to the fund for the survivors and widows and orphans of the dead on the Empress. The motion that the grant be given was made by Controller Ainey, was seconded by Cantroller McDonald, and was passed without hesitation.

TRAINING RIGHT MEN FOR OFFICERS

Good work Being Done at The Various Universities

Ottawa, June 3.—One of the most important features of the work being carried on by the Militia Department is that of the training of officers.

In order to secure a splendid lot of officers in the service of the officers' training corps in connection with the universities and some of the larger institutions of the lands have been developed. In connection with McGill University, Lord Strathcona, before his death, handed over the sum of nearly $100,000 wherewith to purchase a site for a drill hall adjacent to McGill University. There is an officers' training corps in connection with McGill University. Canon Dauth of Laval University, Montreal, has already organized five companies. These companies are made up of 450 of the students who are training for law, medicine and the professions. He promised that before the end of the year he would have 800 or 900 in training.

AT QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

In connection with Queen's University, a distinguished graduate of the Royal Military College, and an engineer of note, has presented Queen's University with ground on which the Government is expected to erect a drill hall. He has also presented ground on which to erect residence buildings. Altogether it is costing him $600,000 of his own money. That is the spirit that is abroad in the community today. Laval, McGill, Queen's, Dalhousie, the British Columbia University, Sackville University—the President of which came all the way to Ottawa in connection with organizing an officers' training corp—Toronto, Manitoba and Edmonton—all these Universities are making arrangements for the establishment of officers' training corps.

HANGED HIMSELF TO BARS OF HIS CELL

Convicted Murderer Takes His Own Life by Means of Strap.

Dayton, Ohio, June 4.—The dead body of Arthur Fowler, a British subject found guilty yesterday of the murder of John James, was found in the County jail early to-day. Fowler had found a strap and hanged himself to the bars in his cell.

Duringa trial an effort was made to save Fowler on the plea of insanity. A recommendation of mercy had saved him from the Electric chair and he was to have been given a sentenceof life imprisonment by the court within the next few days.

HEEL PRINT BRINGS BURGLARY ARRESTS

Suspects in $3000 Robbery of Menge Store Are Captured by Police

New Orleans, June 4.—Through the imprint of a shoe left upon a piece of cardboard found in the J. H. Menge store, which was broken into and robbed of jewelry and cash worth $3000 early Sunday. Detectives Sheffler and Methe have succeeded in running down the wearer of the shoes and at least one of the gang, they say, which robbed the place.

Under arrest is Pat McGuire, the heel of whose shoes left the mark that led to his arrest. Being new, even lettering on the heel was found impressed on the cardboard laying on the store floor. Besides Pat, they arrested two of his "pals," Joe Tomatoes and "Whisky Joe" Markey two other well-known police characters of juvenile appearance.

Up to 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon Police Superintendent Reynolds had caught them in several fabrications, but had been unable to obtain a confession. A roll of $30 was found sewed in Pat's trouser leg.

HINDUS STARVING READY FOR REVOLT

In Desperate Plight and Are Edged on by Fanatical Priests

Vancouver, June 4.—Affairs on the steamer Komalaga Maru are now ablaze, in the last few days provisions have been runing short. The crew have abundant supplies, but the Hindu passengers, it is said, have been put on short rations lately. It is understood that they have no money left to buy fresh stores, and it is reported that the master of the vessel and the agents are unable to furnish them.

With this condition of affairs staring them in the face, Gurdit Singh and his followers held a meeting last night and decided to go on a hunger strike. The statement is made that the Hindus on board have had nothing to eat for two days except some fish they cought. Gurdit Singh has sent telegrams to the King and the Governor-General of India, stating that the Hindus were starving and asking for help. These on board are being egged on by fanatical priests and are ready for anything.

AID FOR THOSE WHO LOST THROUGH EMPRESS WRECK

Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars Voted by Toronto Board of Control

Toronto, June 4.—An interim appropriation of $25000 was voted by the Board of Control to-day towards the relief of Toronto sufferers in the wreck of the Empress. It was decided to communicate with the Dominion Government at once to ascertain if the Government intended to open a Central Dominion relief fund. If so Toronto will contribute to the general fund. In the meantime the $25-000 will be contributed to a Toronto fund, and a committee will be appointed to receive private contributions and administer the fund.

The question was introduced by Controller McCarthy. The social service Commission is finding its investigation into local conditions the most difficult it has ever undertaken, he declared. Private citizens still hope for the safety of the missing. The investigation indicates that we should not delay the establishment of a relief fund. We should either establishment a Toronto fund or join in the general fund. I think we should open a Toronto fund, and then confer with the Federal authorities regarding a general fund.

STRANGE MARIMBA PLAYERS

Within the almost inaccessible wilds of Nicaragua dwells a strange race, undoubtedly the only remnant of the aboriginal people who inhabited America before the coming of the Red Indian. These people have an ancient civilization of their own, and to see them is to look at a picture of humanity as it was here perhaps five thousand years ago.

Agents of Robinson's Famous Shows penetrated to this isolated region, undoubtedly the only living white men who ever returned to tell their story. And they succeeded in bringing with them a band of the native musicians with their instruments. This is the bamboo Marimba, marvelously sweet in tone and played with great skill by these people. And the music which they produce proves that at some distant period these people had developed the art of music to a high degree. Their airs, while very strange, show astonishing technique.

PETERBORO FORFEITED GAME AND WALKED OFF THE FIELD

Disgusted Crowd Witnessed Unsatisfactory Ending to Red Hot Battle

Toronto, June 4.—There was another mix-up in the "Trouble League" at the Island yesterday, the Peterborough Club leaving the field with the score tied in the tenth innings, because they were dissatisfied with a decision rendered by Umpire Hallihan. With two out Manager Blount smacked a grounder over third, the ball rolling into the areaway between the grandstand and the bleachers and before Tebultz had returned the ball to the diamond Blount reached third base. He, however, claimed that as the ball had gone out of sight that he was entitled to a homer, and in the absence of a ground rule such as prevails in the International League, his contention was doubtless correct. Umpire Hallihan ruled that he must stay at third base, but Blount refused to accept his award, and after holding up the game for fifteen minutes finally took his team off the field and the contest was awarded to Toronto. In view of the fact that he thus forfeited all right in share of the gate aid also any part of the proceeds if the game is ordered replayed his action was altogether childish.

Blount Pulled a "Boot."

The proper course for him to have taken was to have played the game out under protest, but he absolutely refused to finish the combat, and the large crowd, who remained to the finish, despite the chilly atmosphere, came away totally disgusted. Blount displayed a petty spirit throughout, yanking Pitcher Tracey with an unnecessary show of feeling in a tight spot, and handling himself generally in "bush league" fashion. The game was hotly fought all through, with Peterborough always having a slight edge. Roberts was batted out in three periods and Auld finished the game in good style. Belting started for Peterborough, but after he had been clubbed for three runs he was retired in favor of Tracey, who was chased in the seventh, and Schettler finished up.

POWERS AGREE ON BASIS OF PROTECTION FOR THE OIL FIELDS

Seek to Prevent Adventurers Taking Unfair Advantage

Washington, June 4.—The tri-partite agreement between the United States, Great Britain and the Nethlands, as a means of protecting their citizens in the Mexican oil fields from spoilation was officially announced to-day. The agreement reads in part.

Appreciating the great injustice to the operators who, for their safety were compelled to leave the district and so unable to comply with their contracts and legal provisions, the three Governments have formally agreed that they will not support diplomatically any claims to interests in the oil regions acquired directly or indirectly by their respective nationals since april 20, 1914, which in any way were effected by cancellation or confiscation resulting from the inability of the bona fide owners to meet their contractural or legal obligations because of military operations or the disturbed political state in and about Tampico.

There is little doubt but that this arrangement by the three Government whose citizens constitute the great bulk of the oil operations in Mexico, will be effectual in preventing adventurers from taking unfair advantage of the situation of unrest in the Tampico district since Vera Cruz was occupied.

COMMISSIONER BADE A FINAL FAREWELL

Commissioner Rees was about to address the officers of the Headquarters Staff at knee drill on May 27. He suddenly changed his mind as to the subject on which he had intended to speak and picked up his Bible, turned to a text so pregnant with meaning that it might almost be termed a prophecy of what was to occur. Slowly and solemnly he read second epistle to the Corinthians 13:11, "Finally, brethren, farewell." Then he paused.

"Perhaps that does not apply in this case," he remarked, "for we all hope to see each other again soon, so leaving out the word 'finally,' I will simply say 'Brethren, farewell.'"

He then proceeded with the rest of the verse, which will be remembered by the Army as his last message: "Be patient, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

Football Under Difficulties

Mrs. Humphry Ward, speaking at a meeting of the Personal Service Association, told a story to show the difficulties which face the workers at the play centres for children in some districts in Great Britain. "One day, when a game of football was being played," she said, "a worker called to one of the boys, 'Why don't you kick harder?' 'I'd like to,' replied the boy, 'but the sole is half off my right boot, and my left toe's busted.'" The attendance at the centres she said, had risen from 300,000 in the first year to 1,500,000 last year.

Children at Desks

To oblige a child to maintain an erect position while writing at a school desk a German scientist has invented a rod to be attached to a desk, terminating in a cup against the child's chin.

Some Useful Don'ts

Don't use the eyes when they are tired or weak from illness. Don't face the light when reading or sewing. Don't neglect to bathe the eyes before retiring, so as to remove any dust that may have gathered on the lids during the day.

Don't allow a cold, raw wind to strike the eyes. Don't try to get a cinder out of the eye by rubbing the injured orb; rub the other eye. Don't sleep too much or too little; too much sleep weakens the eyes, too little fatigues them.

Don't wear your hair always in the same style; a change of method is beneficial to the hair, and to let it fall loosely about the shoulders is an excellent plan at times.

Don't follow fashion blindly in regard to coiffure if you would have artistic proportions and bring out the best expressions of the face. Don't part the hair in the middle if you are round-faced and chubby; this only emphasizes the disc-like appearance.

Don't get into the habit (quite an easy one to fall into) of frowning. It causes the face to become wrinkled and lined.

WEAK-CHESTED CHILDREN

Flannel Chest Protectors Are Easily Made

Let me remind you of the importance of woollen underwear and a flannel chest protector for children whose chests are weak. These flannel "chest protectors" are easily made. Take three quarters of a yard of narrow-width flannel (less for a very small child), and cut a slit large enough to allow the head to pass through.

One end of the flannel should be longer than the other. The longer is to cover the back, the shorter the chest.

It is necessary to cover the back as well as the chest, because the lungs are as easily assailable by cold behind as in front.

Four of these protectors should be prepared, so that one can be worn at night and another in the day. They should be well shaken morning and evening when taken off, and washed about once a fortnight.

Barley Water

Add three teaspoonfuls of pearl barley to a pint and a half of cold water. Boil down to a pint, then strain. It is important to make barley water fresh every day.

A PERILOUS JOURNEY

Missionaries Make a Dangerous Trip in Northern Canada

Bishop Stringer of the Yukon once had quite a perilous journey from the mouth of the Mackenzie River to Dawson City. He was accompanied by another missionary and an Indian guide, who fell sick. Eventually they were obliged to bring the Indian back to the camp of his people, and set out alone.

Winter came on two weeks earlier than usual that year, and the two missionaries were frozen in some distance to the west of the divide. They decided to go across the mountains by a pass and proceed overland to the Peel River, so they set out with four days' provisions, a pair of light blankets, and some spare moose skin moccasins, after first hanging up

Magistrate on Diet

On the question of diet there is a tendency to go astray by neglecting the simple and more wholesome dishes, said Mr. D. Lleufer Thomas (stipendiary of Pontypridd) in a speech at Ferndale Secondary School. Children should have plenty of green vegetables, a wholesome parsnip, and that great delicacy, a boiled onion (Laughter). Then, again, there was no greater delicacy than a herring if a child could be persuaded to eat it.

The Smell of Paint

Most people object to the smell of new paint. When a room has been newly painted, it is a good plan to place some hay in a pail of water and leave it in the room for a few hours. You will find that the smell will have completely vanished.

THE INCREASING POPULARITY OF THE PEG-TOP

Much of the smartness and grace of the modish broad waist and hip lines is embodied in the peg-top skirt which tapers to a narrow footline, making the effect still more pleasing.

Especially suited to these skirts are the "pile" fabrics, velours, velvets and velveteens. They are thick yet light in weight and aid greatly in bringing out in their folds the loose unfitted effects desired.

To copy this model in size 36 it requires 5½ yards of 42 inch material.

Plaid for the blouse that cleverly repeats the color of the dark skirt with which it is worn is the combination used in 7533. The low shoulder and a natty collar are features of this design.

Our Point of View

Huerta has abandoned the idea of going to the front, but the front is now coming to him so rapidly that the old boy is growing nervous.

The latest Parisian feminine fashions have shocked even Pierre Loti, who describes them as "frankly horrible anatomical extravagances."

Germany still leads the world in the production of new books. The output for 1913 was 35,078 separate works, an increase of 10,000 over the year 1901.

Our contemporary, the Examiner, says: "A man under 40 caught smoking opium in China it shot." Sometimes a man in Peterborough caught drinking whiskey is half shot.

In congratulating a bride the editor of a Regina paper says, "We all wish that while sliding down the banisters of life she will not strike a splinter." What a graceful and gallant way the Kentucky editors have in expressing their sentiments.

There is much uneasiness in Germany over the extraordinary development of Russia, agricultural, industrial and military. The steady expansion of the Russian army is exciting comment in all the European chancelleries.

Instead of undertaking to suppress the militant suffragets with the aid of the police the Times would suggest that the authorities of London should use the fire department. A hose turned on their spring hats would take all the militancy out of the spirited sisters.

The U.S. navy department having indicated a desire for an invention that would record the speed of a shell along the barrel of a big gun when fired, a Philadelphian has produced a machine to make the measurement. He calls it the chronoscope, and he claims that it divides time to one-millionth of a second. The machine is soon to be tested at Indian Head.

The Farmers' Bank

In introducing the bill to recompense the depositors who lost in the Farmers' Bank, the Finance Minister delivered a most scathing rebuke of the thieves who stole the Farmers' Bank Charter and afterwards stole the hard-earned savings of the people. The Opposition contended themselves with moving the six months hoist.

Joints Quit Aching Soreness Beats Away

NO MORE STIFFNESS, PAIN OR MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS! WONDERFUL "NERVILINE" IS THE REMEDY.

A marvelous pain-reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment—just about five times more powerful, more penetrating, more pain-subduing than any thick, oily or ammonia liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition. I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am to-day well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously.

(Signed) C. PARKS,
Prince Albert.

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment known and largely used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere large family size bottle 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute take only "Nerviline."

The Conservative Candidate

Judging by the general consensus of opinion, the Conservative Association of West Peterborough would seem to have made a wise choice in selecting Mr. B. J. Soden as their candidate for the Ontario Legislature. Of course, it is an admittedly forgone conclusion that Mr. Soden will, on the evening of June 29th, wear the laurels of victory.

Mr. Soden is a fluent and eloquent speaker of great oratorical power and a man who will in convincing terms advocate the needs of his native city and riding.

Mr. Soden is a successful business man and will make a good member.

COST OF POLICE FORCE

Less Per Capita in London Than in New York

London protects its 7,252,000 inhabitants for $4,750,000 per annum less than it costs New York to inadequately protect nearly 2,000,000 fewer people. The London police patrol twice the area of the New York police at less than three-quarters of the cost to New York. The London police in one year convicted 78.94 per cent. of the twenty-two murders. In the same year there were 148 murders in New York, and 9 per cent. of the murderers were convicted. It is safe to say that as regards the convictions in London practically all the condemned murderers paid the death penalty, and that there was no one "higher up" to intervene. It is equally probable that in New York not half of the 9 per cent. expiated their crimes in the electric chair.

Keeping Leather Soft

Boots and shoes are apt to get hardened when not in use. To make them recover their original softness, wash them over in warm water and then rub castor oil well into them. After a little while the leather will become more pliable, and then if the boots are cleaned and polished in the usual way they will be easy to wear.

To Take Castor Oil

Mix the oil with orange juice and a very little sugar. Children will take castor oil prepared this way when they refuse it otherwise.

Ancient Incubators

At the British Association Prof W. H. Cadman, an archaeologist, announced that he had discovered the old Egyptian secret in poultry-breeding. Egypt, it is known, turned out 130,000,000 poultry annually from native incubators which were used in the same form for 5,000 years. Prof. Cadman stated that each incubating oven contained 7,000 eggs heated by small fuel supplies o chopped straw. For the last ten days, however, the heat was wholly supplied by the chickens in the eggs.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

WOMEN PLUMBERS

Eighty-six Women Follow This Calling in England

Has anyone ever seen a woman plumber? There are not many persons who could reply in the affirmative, but, according to the report of the census of England and Wales relating to occupations and industries, there are 86 women who ply the calling of plumber. Of these seventy-seven are widows.

The same Blue Book shows that women have succeeded in establishing themselves in a number of industries where their presence is unexpected. There are 70 women paperhangers and whitewashers, four bricklayers, all of them women, but only one woman coachmaker.

Three women appeared under the heading of "clergymen, priests and ministers," and four are coalheavers. There are 247 women carmen and wagoners and 231 women blacksmiths and "strikers." Only one woman occupies herself with making patent fuel, only three women are shipwrights, five women are "tramway car makers," and finally England and Wales can boast of 56 women carpenters and joiners and 14 women masons.

Filmy Tulles Rival Satin For the June Bride's Gown

By MADGE MARVEL

THE June bride is not hampered by traditions in the choice of her wedding gown. She chooses from a wide range of material and is quite as apt to pass by the traditional silks and satins and decide in favor of some material which has never been placed in the list of bridal costume stuffs. Also she more often than not clings to transparency in her bodice and has the upper portion formed of the merest whispers of tulle and lace. Her mother was quite fussy about having her wedding dress filled in at the corsage, for even if it was to serve later as her very best evening gown, on the day of its first and most important wearing it must assume the high-necked lines.

One of the most fashionable houses, in showing me several bridal gowns, laid emphasis on the laciness of the bodices. A model in white charmeuse had the upper bodice of Spanish lace fashioned over tulle, which moreover was the faintest shade of flesh instead of dead white.

New Bridal Cape.

When Miss Helen Huntington was married to Vincent Astor, she reversed the customary order of materials and with her gown of pointe d'Angleterre (an heirloom) and quantities of tulle, she wore a court train of white satin. This was trimmed with a puffing of lace. The bodice was entirely of the lace over the tulle and there were tulle sleeves that reached the elbows.

In the arrangement of her veil she followed the latest fashion by eschewing the full puffing of tulle which has been favored by brides and arranging it tight about her head. This is the manner in which her grandmother wore it years ago. It is a style which brides of today are choosing. In recent years the arrangement of the bridal veil has frequently been unbecoming because it was worn so caplike over the face that it took away from the sweetness and girlishness of expression.

The tango cap style has invaded the realm of the bridal garb. It distinguishes many of the veils. So also does the Dutch cap, and when the veil is of tulle and the little turned back corners are of rare lace, the effect is charming.

There is a tendency to pull the veil, even when it is of tulle, into closer folds and not let it float about one like a cloud.

Some of the daintiest bridal gowns are fashioned almost entirely of tulle, and where taffeta is used for the foundation there is sure to be an overdress of tulle. In fact, tulle has displaced chiffon for this most important gown. The first requirement of the bridal costume is that it shall be light and filmy and becoming. So long as that is achieved there is no hard and fast rule about materials.

Yellow Very Popular.

One of the daintiest of bridal gowns made for a girl who is to have a simple wedding in her own home, surrounded by her closest relatives and friends, is of shadow lace draped over a chiffon slip, the skirt untrained and made of three deep flounces of the lace, each one draped ever so slightly and showing a pleated chiffon petticoat where the flounce curves upward directly in front. The veil is of tulle and is intended to be worn in a swath about the head, held by a strand of pearls and allowed to float free to the hem of the dress.

Yellow seems to be the popular shade for the bridesmaids' frocks. It is used in combination with faint shades of lavender known as orchid, which has the hint of pink, and with certain shades of pale pink and with the new light blue which has the suggestion of gray.

Pink as the prevailing shade in bridal processions has certainly been relegated to second place by maize, and new shades technically known as the sweet pea shades.

For the bridal bouquet lilies of the valley and orchids are favored. There is the choice of white or purple given in choosing the orchids. One of the new adjuncts for the bridal procession is the tall Empire cane. This is of white and may have a garniture of flowers or not, as one prefers. One bride has chosen chiffon parasols with long white sticks adorned with flowers for her attendants to carry.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

Pleasant Team Work.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"SEE here, Mary," I ventured, "if you could get up so valiantly for a month of mornings merely to—er—chase into town marketing because it was fashionable, I don't see why you can't let the good work go on and get up in time to get my breakfast."

"Peter!" Mary stared, and I didn't wonder. It was the first time I had made the slightest complaint relative to my morning habit of preparing my own breakfast.

"Yes?" I encouraged with some misgivings.

"You spoke exactly as if I wasn't willing to get your breakfast!"

"Well, you're not, are you? Certainly you haven't—for months past."

Mary's lips quivered ominously.

"There isn't a woman within a block," she said truthfully, "who gets her husband's breakfast! The man has to get up anyway, and—and it isn't much trouble to boil an egg and make a cup of coffee, is it?"

"It isn't much trouble," I admitted, "but—do you come into town every day and do 15 minutes of my office work?"

Mary's eyes flashed. I fancied there was guilt behind her air of grievance.

"You're trying to quarrel with me," she said, "and, Peter, I simply will not quarrel. You said yourself, just after we were married, that you didn't in the least mind getting your own breakfast—didn't you?"

"I—I was a fatuous ass!" I retorted heatedly. "I do mind, and I mind a lot. It's lonesome work, and the kitchen's horribly mussy with all the dishes standing around from the night before. Beside, I hate breakfasting alone—nobody likes it. It's a woman's duty anyway to get her husband's breakfast—it's part of her job."

"I—I wasn't used to getting up early," defended Mary lamely. "That was the only reason why we slid into the habit of letting you get your own breakfast. And—and I'm not the only woman who does it either, Peter, as I've mentioned before."

Which was irrefutable. More women permit their husbands to get breakfast than one would care to count.

"I wasn't used to dividing my salary between two people either!" I put in warmly, "but I do it just the same, and willingly. I shouldn't think you'd want me to get my own breakfast, Mary, and start the day in that lonesome sort of way. I dread the mornings."

"I—I think you might have said so before," said Mary, and burst into tears. It made me wonder. After all, may it not be best to assert one's self immediately when the breakfast problem arises? I think so.

The morning following our little quarrel the alarm clock went off while it was still dark. Mary rose instantly.

"Great Scott," I protested feebly, "You don't have to get up for an hour yet."

"If I must get up and make a complete toilet," said Mary, with excessive dignity, "as you say your mother does and then get breakfast, I simply have to get up terribly early whether I like it or not. I've figured it all out. I have to go down and turn on the furnace and start the fire in the kitchen."

"You don't have to do anything of the sort," I warmly assured her. "If you're going to get up at this ungodly hour I'll get up, too. And I want you to feel quite sure, Mary, that I'm strong for team work. It's the domestic solos I mind. I'll fix the furnace and build the kitchen fire gladly. And I'll help with breakfast as long as you're with me and I don't feel—so—so sort of deserted."

Mary began to cry.

"I—I feel guilty and selfish," she confessed. "I—I wish we'd had a talk about it all months ago. I—I was just thoughtless, Peter, and you should have said so."

Mary's right. It isn't good to slip silently into things that make misunderstanding. I enjoy my mornings now. Amicable talking of things ever helps considerably.

The Girl of Today

THE girl of today patronizes the play, and is partial to flaunting a "stocking."
Her fashion in dress seems to get less and less, which, according to grandma, is shocking.
Of mice she's not nervous, and looks upon "service" as drudgery—save with a racket.
At golf triumphs she—not the old-fashioned "tee"—with her "club" she'd found something to whack it.
She horse-rides astride, she flies, and, besides, wears things that belong to her brother.
She takes naught amiss, but gives back a kiss, saying, "One good turn merits another."
Though some folk may say the girl of today takes life altogether too fast,
Yet around her men hover, and continue to love her, as our grandfathers did in the past.

THE IDEAL VACATION WARDROBE

Gail Kane.

Gail Kane's Ideas on Play-Spell Costumes

By ELEANOR AMES

ALL over the world girls, young—and not so young—are planning their vacations. Some of them get two whole blissful weeks in which to "loaf and invite their souls." This is a greater privilege than it may sound, for there are more than a few of the girls of the land that are kept so busy "speeding up" that they don't even have time to remember that they have souls.

But, whether they get one or not, all girls DESERVE vacations, and, if they are lucky enough to get their deserts, they will think of clothes in the same thought with vacation.

What to wear, what to take, and where and how to get it. That is the vacation clothes problem which confronts every woman, rich or poor, young or old, busy bee or fluttering butterfly.

Gail Kane is such a lovable, sensible sort of girl that I asked her to give me some dress hints for vacation girls. Here is what she said:

"Every girl in the world has the right to love pretty clothes—and to have them if she can get them without sacrifice of herself or her loved ones. By the way, when I see a business girl wearing unbecoming and old-style clothes my heart goes out to her and I admire her, for it is the badge of unselfishness. She is doing something for some one she loves instead of spending her money on herself.

"When a girl goes on a play spell she wants to look attractive, but she wants above all else to have a good time. Therefore, she has a few clothes of just the right kind, and is saved a whole lot of bother.

"Unless one can have fun in one's vacation clothes they are no good, no matter how smart they are.

"Let me see. I really think white is the one best bet for the vacation clothes. White soils quickly, I know, but it cleans beautifully, and it can go into the tub and even into the boiler and come out with no loss of original freshness. So let's make her best frock white, and her second best frock white, and give her some dainty white waists and a white skirt or two. The shops are filled with white fabrics that have the crepe finish that will allow of frequent washing in one's own room and no need of ironing.

"A bowl of warm water, some white soap, and a few shakes in the sun and you have a clean frock. Yes, white crepe for at least one frock and two blouses. Then white crinkly underclothes for the same laundry economy. Then, for tramping, some stout skirt and sturdy blouse, or a plain dress that will stand wind and weather and come out of the storm, or the day on the sea, with no appreciable lessening of utility or becomingness.

"White linen skirts, well made and worn with smart blouses, are the most useful garments for the girl who wants to make a good appearance with little expenditure. They are suitable for either morning or afternoon wear, and they are universally becoming.

"If one wants a bit of color in the dress-up frock there are fascinating fabrics in pale pink and blue and soft green and yellow, and there are the Dolly Varden crepes and organdies that make adorable gowns pretty and dainty enough for any occasion.

"Of course, the vacation girl will take one good suit, she will probably travel in it, and she probably will have some light frock left from the winter which will do for a party dress.

"Simplicity is the keynote to style this season. Accessories in the way of belts and neckwear will change the appearance of any dress. Take a few clothes and have them the ones you will find use for.

"Don't cumber yourself with a lot of luggage. It is expensive and inconvenient to move it in many country places. And, if you are wise girls, you will go where you can have a visit with kindly old Mother Nature, instead of where you have to be on dress parade."

Learning to Mix the Colors of Life

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THE Little Boy stood out in the hanging garden. The roses laughed over the wall, scarlet and white and yellow and deep with saffron and soft with pink, and the heliotrope waved its delicate fingers in a kind of sentimental greeting. The hanging garden was more like a dream than ever.

The Little Boy was not like a dream; he never is. This morning he was so real that it made your heart ache deliciously only to look at him and to mark his clear, earnest eyes and his deep chest and his sturdy shoulders, and to wonder what there was waiting for him down the cool road outside the hanging garden, when he should grow old enough to go forth to the great world alone.

The Little Boy had a paint brush in his hand and there was paint on his wrists and on his fat, chubby fingers and on his round cheek. The blue from the palette tried in vain to blend with the red and brown of his healthy skin, and if you had looked quite closely you would have found, I think, paint in his soft mat of tumbled hair.

"Oh," cried the Little Boy, "oh, there is something wonderful here."

And he brought me his palette—a cheap thing of twisted and warping wood—but bravely done in colors.

"Oh," he said, "see—there were only seven colors on the palette and now I have made three more. Beautiful colors, and I've made them myself with no one to help me.

"See, if you take red and you put this blue with it—so—look what it has made."

He leaned lovingly over the palette and made as if he were going to lay his soft cheek upon the wondrous color he had made—all by himself.

"And if you take this," he said, pointing to the red—"and this"—he indicated the yellow—"it will make something like the fire color.

"Will it always do it—no matter who mixes the colors?" And I saw that the little boy half hoped that there was some special magic in his special touch. But when I told him yes, that there was a law about it, and that if you followed the law you would always get about the same result, he sighed—then his face brightened.

"But I found it out myself, mother," said he. "I found it out all myself the way I love to do, and I am Scar, the Cave Man, who made the first fire, and the first boat——" And all the rest of the day when we spoke to the little boy we called him "Scar" after the hero of the wonderful book, which we read around the fire at evening, the book which tells us how men learned to cook and to make weapons and to dry skins, and to do all the wonderful things that are so commonplace to us now.

All yourself, you did it, Little Boy, did you? Why, bless your heart—you're simply learning how, aren't you?

I wonder if that is what we are all doing all the time—learning to mix the colors all by ourselves.

And some day, when we have learned, shall we be very, very happy and very proud, and shall we smile when we remember how crude they were, the colors, when we didn't know how to mix them?

There's the oil of kindness. What a difference just a little of that makes; and the sweet blue of trust, and the bright red of courage, and the clear yellow of truth, and the fair purity of white—what a blend we can make, if we only work hard and are patient and loving and very, very careful.

And what if, while we are painting this picture, we call life because we do not know what else to call it, we do get some of the paint on our hands, and a little in our hair; and what if our faces are seared with the effort we are making and dimmed with splashes from the palette—till we are no longer beautiful, in the sense which the ordinary eye calls beautiful? What of anything, so long as the colors are mixed at last into something beautiful and fine?

"Come here, little Scar," I cried, "come, I am tired, and I want the bath you know of."

And Scar, the great hero, dropped his war club where he carried it and came and stood before me and opened very wide his clear, clear eyes—and I plunged into them as I often do, and was cool and happy.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Green Vegetables Are Food for Your Blood

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

THERE is no blood tonic known for man or beast which can surpass green vegetables. Were it not for "chlorophyll"—the green stuff of leaves and vegetation—there really would be no red blood.

In the eyes of experts who write books, who know everything, this is forsooth not true. To physiological chemists, botanists, biologists and experimenters, it is absolutely correct and easily proved.

The green plant, be it recalled, takes water and carbonic acid gas and by virtue of Phoebus's radiant glow converts it into starch for human use. Chlorophyll, that magic green stuff of the botanical world, when eaten by man and brute, breaks down into a chemical called "pyrrol."

Curious to relate, this analytic, broken down end product of chlorophyll is the source, origin and first elementary chemical in "hemoglobin," as the red substance of blood is called.

In fine, as lettuce, spinach, cresses and green vegetables generally are macerated by digestion into their primary principles, "pyrrol" is finally left in the tissues.

Then the human fabric begins to get busy with these building stones of "pyrrol." Just as the pyramids were put together with units, so the good scarlet and vermilion coursings of your veins and arteries are synthesized from the "pyrrol" of chlorophyll.

It is plain, then, for the first time, that the green chlorophyll of plants is really much the same as the ruby hemoglobin of your marrow and channels. It behooves you, therefore, to shun all artificial so-termed "blood purifiers" and "tissue builders." Drugs, medicines, mixtures, teas, potions, pills and powders may or may not bestir the growth of new human serum.

Be this as it may, for every dollar's worth of money thus spent, one cent's worth of green vegetables will go much further. Indeed, after long illnesses, in anaemia, during convalescence and in any instance where blood is required in the living textures of the body, vegetables rich in green chlorophyll should be devoured in abundance.

Gather, then, ye green plants while ye may. Do not search for health in much vaunted poisonous preparations or even harmless decoctions that make the stomach heavily laden. You may as well expect apricots from a fir tree as to hope for human cherry fluid from many blood-making medicaments.

Upon the green grass, the alfalfa, the bean, the parsley, the asparagus, celery, cauliflower and the carrot, as well as the deep green vegetables, the ailing individual must rely for sustenance and health.

Answers to Health Questions

Mrs. W. D. J.—The large toe of my foot gets numb and it affects the hip also. An arch support does not seem to help it.

Give the arch support a chance. Also go to the hospital and have an internal examination made. Trouble there often is responsible.

J. L. N.—Have been growing physically weaker in the last year, although I am in good health. Am married and 45.

If you will go to a hospital for a thorough examination and subject yourself to some exercise, such as dancing and bicycle riding, you may expect improvement. Do not take medicines.

F. E. B.—What would you advise a young man to do to increase his weight?

Go to bed early, eat five or six meals a day and increase the quantities as you go along toward evening. Cream, candies, pastries, starches, butter, gravies, fried foods, lard and fats generally are good.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A young man cares for me very much, but feels that he is bound to another girl whom he has ceased to care for. He knows that I care for him. His fiancee and I are good friends. Should I tell her or let affairs take their own course?

CANADA.

WELL, Canada, what would you want the other girl to do if you were in her place and she were in yours?

Would you want him to have a secret affair with another girl when he is engaged to you? You wouldn't?

It's so romantic, you know, so much more interesting than a common, everyday love affair with an engagement ring and congratulations and all that sort of thing—that is, it seems so romantic to you when you are the "other girl."

"Seems" is the word I want you to emphasize, my dear, for it really isn't romantic at all—it is just sly and mean and deceitful and sneaking and cruel.

It's just as cruel and just as sneaking in your case as if you were engaged yourself and some one else was trying to make a fool of you in the same old selfish, cruel way.

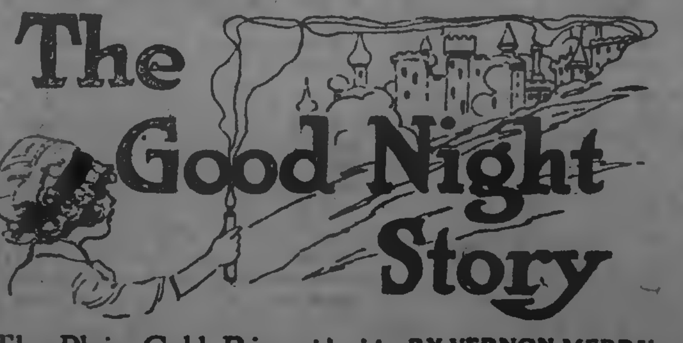
What shall you do about it? Drop the man; drop him like a hot cake, and never have anything to do with him again.

But before you drop him tell the poor girl he's engaged to all about his attempt at a love affair with you. Don't let her go on wasting her heart on a scoundrel like that. It isn't fair.

Break the string, my dear, and give the other girl a chance to do the same thing. That's my advice. I hope you'll take it.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.



The Good Night Story

The Plain Gold Ring

BY VERNON MERRY

ONCE upon a time a maid was travelling through a forest with her mistress, when robbers appeared and attacked them. None escaped except the maid, who was able to hide herself behind a tree.

When the robbers had fled she tried to find her way out of the wood, but only seemed to get deeper into it, and at last, weary and sick, she sank down on a bed of leaves.

By and by a white dove flew down out of a tree and gave her a golden key, saying: "You will find a little lock on yonder tree. Take this key and open it, and there will be food and a bed and clothing."

It was just as the pretty dove said. The tree opened and there was a huge bowl of milk and bread and a soft, white bed, and many, many fine dresses. The poor maid was very happy, and said all the prayers she knew. Several days she remained in the wood, living in this tree, and the dove came every day to see that she was being well cared for.

One day it asked her: "Will you do something for me, only for love?"

"With all my heart," she replied.

"Then," said the dove, "I will take you to a cottage where lives an old woman. You must enter, but do not answer when she speaks to you. Say not a word, but go to a door on the right side of the room and open it. You will see a table covered with a lot of rings. Look for a plain gold ring among them, and bring it to me as quickly as you can."

The maid did exactly as the dove told her, but she found no plain ring among those on the table. Then she happened to notice the old woman slipping away with a bird cage in her hand. The maid took the cage from her and inside there was a bird with the plain ring in its beak.

She hurried back to the tree where she had left the dove, but there was no dove to be seen. While she waited she leaned against the tree, which soon seemed to move, and suddenly two of the branches wound themselves around her—and they were the arms of a human being. The tree had changed into a handsome man.

"You have broken the spell of the old woman, who is a witch," he said. "She changed me into a tree, but for two hours every day I became a dove. So long as she kept the ring I had to stay under her spell."

At the same time other trees and bushes changed into horses and servants. Then they all travelled away to the man's kingdom, for he was a prince, and he made the happy maid his princess.

White Pearl Divers

The statement of Captain Talboys, a pearler, of Broome, Western Australia, that the experiment of working luggers with white divers had been a failure, and that the majority of the divers brought out from England were either dead or paralysed, has been contradicted flatly by divers. With the exception of two, all were, they said, very much alive, and were at present at work in different ports of the State.

OIL FOR FUEL

Speedily Replacing Coal on Pacific Coast Craft

That oil for fuel is speedily replacing coal on British Columbia harbor craft is a fact that is daily becoming more noticeable. Practically all the government vessels plying in and out of Canadian ports on the Pacific coast are using oil burners. The Marine Department was the first to make the change, while now the tug-boats, dredges, snag scows, tenders, etc., operated by the Department of Public Works in Vancouver and Victoria harbors, and on the Fraser River line, are experiencing a similar conversion.

It has been found that this is a change for greater efficiency and particularly in the operation of dredging machinery. A reduced payroll is noticeable in the hold of the vessels that have adopted the new system, about half the number of firemen being required as when coal was the steam producer. Of course, the adoption of oil has advanced its price. At the present time merchants are maintaining but a slight difference in the matter of cost between coal and oil. Nevertheless, the marine yards at Esquimalt are doing a rushing business in the conversion into oil burners of a veritable fleet of dredges tug and the like.

TENDERS FOR WOOD LIMIT

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills on or near the territory, and to manufacture the wood into products thereof in the Province of Ontario.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque payable to the Honourable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario for ten per cent. of the amount of their tender, to be forfeited in the event of their not entering into an agreement to carry out the conditions, etc.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female, two, four and six inches. It is a four shape. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a colour or mouth. The worm grows to the length longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of these are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest thing in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal disease and causes the victims to suffer all the symptoms of diseases imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, epilepsy, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. While his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and nervous seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prevalent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something crawling in the bowels, like a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other forms of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope. Address Parkdale 1830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Origin of "Deadhead"

The origin of the word "deadhead" takes us back to the theatres of ancient Rome. R. H. Broadhead, in "A History of Pantomime," gives the following realistic explanation. He says: "Persons were instructed to give applause with skill. The proficient hired themselves out to the poets, authors, etc., and were so disposed as to support a loud applause. The free admission tickets were small ivory death's heads, and specimens of these are to be seen in the Museum of Naples."

The distributors of a charity failed to find a single poor person in the village of Llangwm, Pembrokeshire. On the contrary, every resident is a freeholder.

Don't use a feather duster, as this only makes the dust fly into the air and settle somewhere else. A chamois leather makes an ideal duster; but if the furniture is very dusty or greasy, a soft rag wrung out of soapy water should be used first of all. Then finish off the furniture with the leather wrung out of cold water.

HUNGER TESTING MACHINE

Apparatus to Remove and Clean Blood Also Demonstrated

An apparatus by which blood may be removed, cleansed of impurities and returned to the system, and a contrivance by which it can be determined whether one is suffering from hunger or merely has an appetite, were among the inventions demonstrated by members of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Dr. Carlston defined hunger as a sensation which arises in the stomach, while appetite, he explained, is a nervous phenomena of the brain. Swallowing a small cigar-shaped rubber balloon which had been fitted with long rubber tubes, he inflated the balloon in his stomach through the tubes and then attached the latter to sensitized paper. Hunger, he declared, caused the muscles of the stomach to grip the balloon and drive out the air, which registered the amount of hunger on the sensitized paper.

White rats and mice were used in experiment designed to illustrate the diffusion of the blood supply. Dyes injected into their blood vessels circulated in a short time until the little animals changed the color of their flesh without much apparent discomfort. One rat was green to the end of his tail, while even the film of his eyes was the color of an emerald. The other was similarly transformed by the use of red dye.

NEGLECTED SHADE TREES

Large Percentage of These Want Doctoring

According to Dr. Fernow, in the small towns of eastern Canada it is safe to say that at least seventy-five per cent. of the shade trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these towns employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly and often carelessly. Yet if the shade trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their chief attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade trees which because of their very age are unable unassisted to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

TURNING MUSIC

Trimmed Edges Solve a Long-suffered Nuisance

Musicians sometimes have trouble turning the pages of their music when playing the piano. The leaves, if there are more than two pages, for some reason seem to stick together just at the time when they should be turned quickly. A good way to obviate the difficulty is to trim each leaf with a pair of scissors so that it is about ¼ of an inch smaller than the one over it. In this way the edge of the top leaf protrudes beyond the under leaf and is easily turned. As it is not necessary to trim the covers of the music, this does not render the sheets unsightly.

Improvements to Royal Theatre.

Extensive improvements to the Royal Theatre will probably start on Monday. The management had intended to close the Theatre this week for alterations. However, they are now waiting for the steel structurial outfit to arrive.

Lakefield Business Booming.

Mr. W. M. Graham, the well-known drygoods man of Lakefield, was in the city yesterday on business. Mr. Graham told The Times that business is booming in Lakefield. Hon. Lawrence Graham, President of the Lakefield Canoe Co., is building a summer cottage at Devil's Elbow, near Hell's Gate, Stoney Lake.

Medal For Local Boy.

Mr. Harold E. Brown, son of Dr. Brown, George street, was very successful in his examinations in medicine at Toronto University. He graduated this year, receiving the third silver medal in medicine. Mr. Brown is the youngest man graduating this year.

Lindsay Cops Rout Hobos.

Lindsay Warder: Yesterday Chief Short received complaints from residents on Pottinger street and also on John street, that some tramps were loitering in the vicinity. Chief Short investigated and found that the Pottinger street bunch had decamped. Later in the evening Night Constable Woods routed the tramps from John street.

Kicked by a Goose.

Yesterday a local citizen had an eye in mourning. Asked the cause of this sunset below the eye, the citizen explained, that whilst cutting wood a stick flew up and hit him. However a bystander remarks Mr. ——is too modest. Last night he was out joy riding. A farmer's pretty little daughter was chasing a runaway goose. The citizen corralled the goose in a fence corner when the bird got busy and kicked the citizen on his cheek"! Take your choice!

Marching Towards the Light.

Yesterday a well-developed girl, dressed in an "X ray skirt" walked Westward on Hunter street. The time was 6 P.M. The golden but inquisitive rays of a setting sun bathed the girl in their glorious light. The girl was softly humming "Marching towards the light." A well known banker walked some ten feet behind the girl. He did not care for the tune the girl hummed but he was grateful towards those light rays. The initials on the silver clasps were "P.D.Q."

A Lindsay Accident.

Walter Coulter, Jr., of Manvers, drove a spirited young horse to Lindsay. Mr. Coulter, Jr., entered the Ross Memorial Hospital, where he is to undergo an operation. His father, an elderly man, arrived later by train, for the purpose of driving the horse back again. About the hour mentioned above Mr. Coulter, Sr., along with his daughter, Mrs. Jas. Brady, of North Ops, were driving east on Kent street, and were passing the corporation cement mixer in front of McMaster's Grocery, when the young animal took fright. The buggy toppled over in a twinkling.

A Bad Electric Shock.

When Mr. E. G. Highland of 557 Homewood avenue reached home, after leaving Barrie's fur factory at noon, he found his wife moaning in the cellar. She was clasping a live wire to her breast. Mr. Highland attempted to tear away the deadly wire and got a stupifying shock. He fell across his wife's body and, in falling broke off the deadly wire. On recovering consciousness he carried his wife's limp body upstairs. Mrs. Highland, we regret to say was very seriously burned. The lady will recover.

A man on Boliver street is suffing with appendicitis. It is feared that more serious complications may add to his sufferings. It is suspected that his wife is a suffragette.

A French scientist has declared that if all the birds were killed off, man would starve through the depredation of bugs. Local robbers of birds' nests should keep this in mind.

If the city fathers want an excuse for a mill or two more on the present 26 mill rate, why not have the pavement sweepers dressed in swallow tail coats or white duck? was a question put by a Times reader yesterday.

Residents of Park street on Wednesday, according to recent civic legislation, put out the garbage and ashes in time for removal. The ashes were religiously, or otherwise, removed, but the smelly garbage left. Great is civic control!

An evening contemporary on the front page last night has a touching reference to Adelina Patti! It mentions among her favorite songs, "Going for the Rye," and "The Last Rose of Summer." The last named song, in that connection is provocative of tears or applause for pluck.

A local married man yesterday remarked to The Times "the difference between an Anarchist and a suffragette is that the former tries to destiny the peace of a few rulers whilst the latter would end all peace for the many ruled.

According to the "Globe's" report about Wednesday's game, when Umps Hallihan gave a decision against the Petes, it is not likely that Hallihan may be killed. Still, it is possible that a pitcher may be knocked over or a catcher upset.

CANADIAN EXPORTS

Goods From Canada Are Sold in South America

Chile imports a considerable quantity of farm implements from Canada. Canadian windmills, one or two industrial machines, a few tools, are also found there, and an occasional shipment of lumber and paper is also imported. To Bolivia, nothing beyond some chairs, brooms and wooden goods seem to be exported.

Peru takes an occasional shipment of lumber. In Ecuador, Canadian flour is finding a market, and bids fair to rival the United States product, if indeed it does not eventually drive it out, or at least form that portion of the trade which buys quality and not the cheap, low-grade article which is obtained in California and the Pacific coast of the United States. In Guayaquil, some Canadian tools are also seen. Panama is now purchasing Canadian flour, and also small quantities of silver-plated ware and a patent automobile tire cement.

WHY WE HAVE INDIAN SUMMER

It Does Not Occur as Regularly as Many People Argue—About One in Four Years

Why and what is Indian summer? There is more of tradition and less of fact about Indian summer than any other season of the year. Indian summer seems to be an accident of nature, pure and simple—and it has just the same chance of being repeated from year to year as any other accident, and no more!

The facts about Indian summer briefly are these:

The latter part of September is, as every one knows, noted for its severe wind and rain storms. People call these the "equinoxes" and other names. The storms are often very destructive. The sun has crossed the meridian and the temperature is beginning to go down. The influence of the sun on general weather conditions is now known to be very great. Therefore, at the time when the season of warm weather is changing to a season of colder weather, it is only natural that there should be more or less storm-and-stress in the atmosphere.

When we have several days of high winds and heavy rains it is also natural that the temperature should go down. As with all things of nature the winds and the rains soon exhaust themselves and a dry period of sunshine succeeds.

The contrast between the cold dreary, rainy, wind-blown days and bright, sunny, dry days is most marked, of course. And it is especially marked in the autumn. The air is dry and filled with smoke and dust, which makes it hazy in the extreme. Besides that, as the period is immediately following a severe atmospheric disturbance, there is little, or no, movement in the air and the tendency of the air-currents is downward from great atmospheric heights rather than horizontally across the face of the earth. Such is the explanation for the condition we call "Indian summer."

The experts of the weather bureau, however, made an investigation of the subject and they found that in a period of 41 years there had been but 9 years when there was a really marked Indian summer! In 12 years there was a slight charge that could be called by that name, and during eight years there was absolutely no time that could be termed unusual enough to be noted. During the remainder of the years there was more or less of a change, but it was not worth recording. Weather experts declare that the same kind of weather as is experienced in the fall and called Indian summer could and does occur at any other time of the year.

Some very pretty stories have been woven about the period which has been called Indian summer because of an old Indian legend dealing with it. It seems, according to this, that a great Indian named Mudjekewis, with his nine brothers, subdued a chieftain known as Mammoth Bear and captured the Sacred Belt of Wampum. Because he was the leader in the expedition, although the youngest of the brothers, Mudjekewis was given by the gods the government of the winds and was renamed Kabegun —"Father of the Winds." He had four sons and on one of them, Shawondasee, he bestowed the government of the south winds. Shawondasee was rather a lazy sort of a man who liked best to take his ease and live a calm, peaceful life. He always kept his eyes toward the north, however and the Indians all believed that it was his sighs of contentment that caused balmy southern airs to blow which make Indian summer.

In England Indian summer is generally known as St. Martin's summer and in Germany and other sections of Europe it has other names.

AMAZING APPETITES

Some Remarkable Feats Performed by Hearty Eaters

A man living in Massachusetts, before entering on an egg-eating contest, was known as the champion fried egg-eater of the Berkshires. He had a record of 22 eggs, and the wager was on the contention that he could easily make away with 25. When he had eaten 17, however, he was seized with an attack of acute indigestion, and be had to stop. This man also had a record of 54 ears of green corn.

At the beefsteak dinners of many political clubs astounding records are made in the consumption of viands. Some of those who take part think nothing of eating 10 and 12 pounds of meat at the sitting.

At a clambake eight baskets of food were eaten by one diner. This basket included a leg and a breast of a chicken, 25 clams, 2 ears of corn and four potatoes. This record was declared accurate and authentic.

A Rhode Island farmer had a record of half a bushel of walnuts, of which he was extraordinarily fond. He used half a small bag of salt while eating them.

A Chicago man inordinately fond of mush and milk lived on it for a week, eating four great bowlfuls of it three times a day.

A Happy Family

The belief that the cat is the natural enemy of the mouse does not always hold good. On the farm of William Wilson near Queenston is an old tabby, the property of his grandson Edgar, who is responsible for overthrowing this popular belief. Edgar entrusted a litter of white mice to the care of the cat. The cat offered no objection, and from the first day they got along without a hitch. The cat and rodents share their food, and form a very happy little family. The fact that heretofore the cat had been a noted "mouser" caused considerable comment.

Accidents to Miners

Although there is an increase in the number of deaths from accidents in coal mines now, as compared with a few years ago, the death rate per 1,000 persons employed, says the chief inspector of mines in Great Britain in his annual report is lower now than it ever was.

To Clean Wallpaper

First of all go over the walls very lightly with a clean duster to remove any dust. Then divide a stale loaf into parts, take the crust in your hand, and, beginning at the top of the paper, wipe it downwards until the dirt from the paper and the crumbs fall together. Don't attempt to clean more than half a yard at a stroke, and after doing all the under part, go round again, beginning a little above where you left off. The paper will look like new when you have finished.

THE MOST DELIBERATE AND BARE FACED FRAUD EVER PERPETRATED

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P. on Behalf of the Government Makes Sensational Disclosures Regarding Trent Canal

Special to The Times.

The Opposition decided that the Trent Valley Canal report of the investigation into the Trent Valley Canal affairs was too serious "to let tackle and yet too serious "to let go." So, they decided to discuss it on going into supply with a view of showing that any idea that leading men (save the mark) of "the party" were mixed up with it was a mistake. Whatever "happened" was just amongst the rank and file. It was a bad day for the Opposition when it decided to touch the matter, at all because Mr. Burnham, M.P., who had been entrusted by the Minister with the "case" for the Government simply astounded the House with his "revelations." He began by saying that personally he had intended to let the report go as it is without further comment on account of the serious illness of the man most concerned—Mr. J. R. Stratton, ex-M.P., but since the opposition had now waived all that, he would now give his opinion, founded on documentary evidence which he had under his hand, of the whole situation.

Graft the Chief Use

The report he said, decided the fact as did most certainly and explicitly the evidence upon which it was founded, that graft was one of the chief uses of the Canal in the opinion of some of those concerned. First of all, Mr. Burnham said, the system could not have been so well organized, so widespread or so unblushing and successful if the member had not permitted and encouraged it. That is plain to the most callous. He himself would be to blame if it happened again. Then, who appears to have made the most money out of it that was the question; not the men most directly accused and implicated. They, poor fools, quite apparently to save their jobs, lost their heads. They are more to be pitied than blamed. So much for that part of it. Now, what was done? Accounts were run with business men for private gain of those who got the goods and charged them to the Government. Unfortunately, the names of some prominent citizens are brought in unavoidably, who had no knowledge or thought of impropriety. But it was otherwise in some cases.

Bare Faced Fraud

Let us begin at the top, said Mr. Burnham. Let us take the case of the most deliberate and bare-faced fraud ever perpetrated in Central Ontario. He referred to the Burleigh Falls power. Here was a power worth not less than half a million clear of all expenses, handed over to Mr. J. A. Culverwell and the Central Ontario Power Co. for one dollar a year for fifty years. The above sum represents the net or clear value of the gift, since with the exception of a small dam at Perry's Creek, the whole water power is created and maintained by the Government. The lease was granted at the repeated requests of the ex-Postmaster, General Mulock, the Hon. Richard Harcourt and Senator McHugh. The Hon. Richard Harcourt wrote a confidential letter to the Minister, that he was interested. He had ten thousand dollars stock. A nice man to recommend a lease. Such is Canadian public life! The original lease was granted by the Hon. A. G. Blair on their urgent request and the assignment which made the thing final and complete was consented to and endorsed by the Hon. G. P. Graham Minister of Railways and Canals in 1911. Just think of it! Hundreds of thousands of dollars in actual value of the peoples' property handed over for one dollar a year for fifty years at the request of a prominent Liberal, to private parties. It is generally considered that the clear profit in the transaction would net the lucky parties several hundred thousand dollars. But the Hon. F. Cochrane flushed with anger as he stood on the dam at Burleigh and saw the property, promised Mr. Burnham that the fraudulent and disgraceful lease and consent should be cancelled, and the property has been restored accordingly to the public. This assignment was consented to by the Government while Mr. Stratton was member. This is one of the reasons why some men are so keen to get into Parliament.

Peterboro' Has Suffered Much

But that was not enough. Some of the accounts in his Exchequer office were paid by putting his clerks on the Government pay list as "laborers." He was liable for two thousand dollars a day for every day during which he was accepting Government work and pay while a member of Parliament, and Mr. Burnham understands that proper measures will be taken at once for its collection.

The speaker scornfully said that he had no time, however, to bother with such cases as that. Miss Carr, a stenographer in the employ of A. B. Stratton and E. Clarry, was put on the pay list as working on dams and log jams in the north country to pay Stratton's bills. Nor had he time for inclination to take up the case of other women whose names were used for similar purposes. Nor had he time to waste on big bills for liquor or huge profits on explosives. The chief culprit was the man who worked the final chapter in the Burleigh Falls swindle, and whose history dates from the time of Mr. Gamey and the Farmers' Bank to the Burleigh Falls fraud of 1911. Peterborough had suffered both in reputation and pocket. It is too bad to have the old town plastered all over this country as the stamping ground of fraud and folly, but these things will out, and he only hoped that the people of Canada would not judge Peterborough by people who, with the help of other people in Peterborough and elsewhere, succeeded in becoming representatives of it for financial and social reasons. The day of the common fraud was passing.

MORE RIFLES FOR ULSTER

Belfast, Ireland, June 5.—The armory of the Ulster "volunteers" was strengthened to-day by the addition of 3,000 Mauser rifles, as the result of a daring gun-running feat of an Irish yachtsman. A portion of the consignment was landed to the south of Donaghadee, sixteen miles from Belfast, but most of the rifles were delivered straight on to the quay at Belfast, and the cases were removed under the eyes of the police by specially selected volunteers.

THE IMPERIAL BANK

Has Just Concluded a Most Successful Financial Year

The Imperial Bank of Canada has held its thirty-ninth annual meeting at the Banking House of that institution.

The Directors' report show a most encouraging report of the Bank's business. The net profits of the Bank after making full provisions for bad and doubtful debts, for interest on bills under discount, not yet matured and for payment of all provincial and municipal taxes amounted to $1,231,984.76. This is at the rate of 8.37 per cent. upon the average paid-up capital and reserve fund.

The securities of the Bank are ample and of most conservative character.

It will be of local interest to note that Mr. E. W. Cox, President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, and a son of the late Senator George A. Cox, has been elected to the Bank's directorate.

A full report of the annual meeting appears in this issue.

TO INSPECT THE EMPRESS

Quebec, Que., June 5.—H.M.S. Essex, at present in port, is scheduled to leave some time to-day for Father Point, where her divers will attempt an inspection of the wreck of the Empress of Ireland.

The Essex has the most modern for submarine work and her diving appliances do away with the air conducting pipes, which enables divers to penetrate in caves, through submarine growth and even through corridors of sunken vessels. This feature, will, it is thought greatly help the search of the hull of the sunken Empress.

EMPRESS INQUIRY

Commissioners Will Open Session at Quebec on June 16

Montreal, June 5.—The Commission to inquire into the Empress of Ireland wreck will open its session at Quebec on June 1 . This was officially announced in an Ottawa despatch received here to-day.

G. A. GILLESPIE IS THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR ONT.

Last night the Liberal party of West Peterborough, held a well attended meeting in the Conservatory of Music Hall. The hall was well filled. Mr. J. J. Hartley acted as chairman and used the argument that the county did not know that an election was coming. From what he saw in the hall, he realized that the Liberals would win. The meeting was called for election of officers for the Liberal Party of West Peterborough and the nomination of a Liberal candidate.

President—J. J. Hartley, re-elected.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. Thos. H. Graham.

Mr. Gordon proposed for secretary, spoke about Mr. Foy and his alleged short-comings. He also spoke of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The Conservative party, Mr. Gordon said, has stolen the Workmen's rights. Lawyers' bills have been greater since the Whitney Government came in than before. The principles of the Liberal party have gone back to where all must be fed!

Secretary G. N. Gordon.

Treasurer—Ald. Duffus.

The executive officers were re-elected, regretting the absence, through illness, of Hon. J. R. Stratton.—Carried.

Mr. W. A. Austin moved a resolution in recognition of Mr. Rowell's policy. He agreed fully in abolishing the bar. He thought there is too much drinking in Peterborough.—Carried.

A letter from the city Temperance league addressed to Mr. Gordon was read.

Here a vote regarding the advocacy of a temperance policy was introduced. Those present, however seemed to split on this question and a show of hands showed a minority.

NOMINATION.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie was received with vociferous applause. The nomination was moved by Mr. John Garbutt of Smith.

Here a speaker on the platform said that "the nominee of the Conservative party was not a gentleman and will soon be shown to be a black man. Cheers.

After this exhaust of hot air, the candidate stepped on the stage, and was received with a round of applause and the band (vocal) played "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

BOARD OF EDUCATION MET IN SPECIAL SESSION LAST NIGHT

The Board of Education met in special session last night, Mr. B. F. Ackerman presiding in the absence of Chairman Dr. Morrison. There were also present Messrs. John Crane, L. B. McGrath (succeeding L. M. Hayes) Hill and J. Smith.

The Institute will close on June 9, and the Public Schools on June 26 Both the Public schools and the Institute will re-open on September 1st.

A BEREAVED HUSBAND

Mr. Birch, of Toronto, Fails to Recover His Lost Ones

Mr. Reuben Birch of Toronto passed through the city yesterday from Rimouski where he had gone to see the bodies of his wife and two little children who lost their lives on the ill-fated steamer Empress of Ireland.

Mrs. Birch was a cousin of Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., of this city.

Mr. Birch was, we regret to say, was unsuccessful in his quest.

Proper Thing Now Is to Peel Off Soiled Skin

Those who abhor sticky, greasy shiny, streaked complexions should religiously avoid creams, powders and rouges during the heated days. There is no need for them anyway, since the virtues of mercolized wax have become known. No amount of perspiration will produce any evidence that you've been using the wax. As it is applied at bedtime and washed off in the morning, the complexion never looks like a make-up. Mercolized wax gradually takes off a bad complexion instead of adding anything to make it worse. It has none of the disadvantages of cosmetics and accomplishes much more in keeping the complexion beautifully white, satiny and youthful. Just get an ounce of it at your druggist's and see what a few days' treatment will do. Use like cold cream.

Another effective summer treatment—heat tending to cause wrinkles and flabbiness—is a skin-tightener made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. Its use (as a face bath) leaves no trace.

"WE WILL STARVE TO DEATH UNLESS PERMITTED TO LAND"

The Hunger Strike Among the Hindus Threatens Very Serious Results

Vancouver, June 5.—Led by three Hindu Dervishes, monks from the Golden Temple of Amritsar, the Hindus aboard the Komagata Maru are dancing a religious dance on the steamer. The dance is accompanied by a total abstinence from food. The report is not denied that the Hindus have started a hunger strike, as a forlorn hope. The anointment priest of the turbanned tourists is a venerable old man, with long flowing beard. It is he who had stirred the men on the the hunger strike is due to force of circumstances or a desire to compel the immigration officials to allow the Hindus to land, there is no doubt that it has commenced The "Blue Peter" is at the masthead of the steamer, however, signifying she will sail inside twenty-four hours.

The Hindus claim that the only thing that has passed their lips since early Wednesday was water. "We shall die here if we are not allowed to go ashore in a body and become citizens of Canada. We have taken a vow not to eat again aboard the Komagata Maru, and we refuse to leave except all of us are taken together." This was the statement brought ashore by one of the immigration officials, as having been given him by the Hindus. He said there was one exception. This was Gurdit Singh, the leader, who is eating to keep up bodily and mental strength in order that he may intelligibly negotiate with the white officials.

PRINCESS PATRICIA REPORTED ENGAGED

Duke of Mecklenberg and Strelitz Said to be Lucky Man

Ottawa, June 5.—Quite a flutter in society circles was caused to-day by a despatch from London to the effect that the betrothal of Princess Patricia to the Duke of Mecklenberg and Strelitz would be announced very shortly. The Royal family is absent from Ottawa, so that no confirmation of the despatch could be secured. There is considerable doubt amongst society friends of the Princess as to the truth of the story.

NOW AFTER REDMOND

Leader of the Nationalists Declines An Interview

London, June 5.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists to-day declined a request by Irish woman suffragists that he receive a deputation on the subject of the inclusion of women as electors for the Irish Parliament. Mr. Redmond pointed out that previous deputations of this nature had caused only unpleasantness and reiterated the view that Ireland under Home Rule must decide for herself whether she wants women voters.

BRITISH MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES DESTROY MANV PRICELESS RELICS

Old Norman Church Burned, and the Arson Squad Are Suspected

Derby, Eng., June 5.—The ancient and historic church at Breadsall, dating back to Norman times and containg many priceless relics was destroyed by fire last night. While no direct evidence was obtainable that the fire was started by suffragettes they are suspected by the authorities as explosions similar to those caused by bombs usually employed by the "arson squad" were heard before the fire was discovered. It is also pointed out that some weeks ago a suffragette meeting in the village of Breadsall was broken up by boys and it is generally believed that the women burned the church for vengeance.

Among the things consumed by the flames was an ancient chained Bible which was unique in Derbyshire, while monuments to Erasmus, Darwin, the poet, and the grandfather of Charles Darwin the famous naturalist and other Derbyshire notables were ruined. Fortunately, however, the church register, dating back to 1573, was saved as it was kept in the rectory which escaped the flames.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

At last the dead have come to life. The weeds in the garden may grow, but the grass on the ball grounds must be kept down. The "Examiner Ball Team" have put the chip on their shoulder, and nine eager, hungry tossers known as the Typos, who put up that "wierd" exhibition at the Driving Park on Wednesday evening, jumped at once to knock it off. Bring on your troop of burlesquers, Captain Maynard. Any time, place and amount suits us to a tee. And may the best team lose. We always do, but won't always did.

Ever Realize

That the greatest joy of living depends on freedom from aches and pains and worries?

Also, that perfect health depends largely on the proper selection of good, nourishing food.

The ordinary diet is often heavy and indigestible, or lacks certain essential elements. It's a wise plan—especially in summer time—to drop out heavy, rich foods and take on a simple, nourishing, easily digested food, such as—

Grape-Nuts

Made of prime whole wheat and barley, Grape-Nuts retains all the rich nourishment of these grains, including the mineral salts so often lacking in ordinary food, but which Nature must have to build perfect bodies—brains and nerves.

Grape-Nuts digests easily and quickly—generally in about one hour.

Ready to eat from the package, fresh, crisp, appetizing—

A regular ration of Grape-Nuts as the cereal part of meals will show—

From Doolan to Dolan to Dooin

Since Jennings, McGraw and the Baltimore crew
Invented the great inside game,
And Covaleski, Schultz and the Cubans
Made the box scorer's fingers feel lame,
Never a thing that has happened
Gets the cheers where the fans are a-stewin'
Like the combine that doubles 'em up at the plate,
*"From Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

What could the Cubs do, with the Phils one ahead,
To try and shove over the tally
That'd tie up the game in the last of the ninth
And prepare for a tenth-inning rally?
(Say, there's one out and two on the bases.)
From the plate, where his big average grew in,
Zim slams one toward short—and it's all over quick—
"From Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

Sure, 'tis the Harps that hallow the diamond
As they never did old Tara's halls;
They have tightened up things 'till you never get on Except through a base on balls.
That "Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance" thing
Sounded good when trouble was brewin',
But it wasn't a shweet sounding mouthful,
Like "Doolan-to-Dolan-to-Dooin."

SLIDING TO FIRST QUITE LEGITIMATE

Big League Magnates Disagree With Ruling That Player Must Stay on His Feet

May a player slide into first base, instead of running past it. If he does, is he necessarily out? President Chivington, of the American Association says yes. He calls it an unwritten rule of baseball. The ruling by Chivington came as a result of an informal protest by Manager Friel, of St. Paul, against a ruling made by Umpire O'Brien, who called out Dixie Walker for sliding head first to the initial sack.

"There is no time gained by sliding, and in the case of first base, where the base-runner does not have to dodge a touch, the only reason for the slide is to raise a dust that will hide the play from the umpire," said Mr. Chivington.

Herrmann Disagrees

Commenting on the ruling, the Louisville Courier-Journal said:

"The statement given out by August Herrmann upholds the declaration made by this paper that a man who slides into first and beats the ball is no more out than the man who hits the ball to the fence. It is merely an unjust assumption of power by the official. President Chivington's contention that the umpires are right in calling out the player who slides into first base is ridiculous. Anybody who has run or played baseball knows that a leap when going at full speed will save time, and that the player who slides has a better chance to beat the ball. If Mr. Chivington is consistent, why not call the player safe when the first baseman slides into the bag in order to make a play? The baseman undoubtedly raises as much dust. Laying aside the question of whether the slide is advantageous, the rules are clear upon the point. Herrmann states the case plainly: 'A player is allowed to reach any base by running, walking, jumping or in any other manner as long as he remains within the lines prescribed. This is laid down in the rules of the game, and no umpire, president of a league or anyone else has any right to change this rule.'"

Mack Upholds Slide

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, also had something to say about the ruling.

"There is a lot to be said on both sides of the slide-to-first proposition," Mack declared. "The biggest thing in its favor is the fact that it undoubtedly prevents many collisions between the first baseman and the runner. A baseman may be drawn back upon the bag by a high throw or a bounce, and unless the runner, coming full speed down the path, slides into the bag, a head-on collision is inevitable. I have seen a slide prevent smashes that might have had serious results innumerable times.

Asked whether or not he thought the slide to first saved time, Mack said he thought it did, possibly a fraction of a second, which in so many cases decided the result of a game. "As to the danger of spiking," he continued, "some players try to spike the baseman every time they slide into a bag, but clean players won't spike a man jumping into first base often enough to warrant a change in the rules. The danger of colliding with both players on their feet is the great one, it seems to me," said he, and he ought to know.

WAISTCOATS LEND DISTINCTION TO SUITS AND GOWNS

The well dressed woman wears to tea in the afternoon a simply, smartly cut frock of satin, crepe de chine or duvetyn, plain or figured. If the dress be of plain material the omnipresent vest is brocaded or figured, showing dainty Oriental color combinations, and if the gown is figured the vest is plain. There is scarcely a gown that does not show the vest in one form or another. It may be only a couple of inches wide or it may be the regulation waistcoat, but it invariably lends distinction.

Dull blue duvetyn in 7798 was touched to brightness by the vest of figured silk duvetyn and the girdle of burnt orange satin. These rich, strong colors may be used boldly this season if handled cleverly so as to avoid crudeness. Often several of them are used on one costume with a most charming effect. The waistcoat may show in its brocade bits of [illegible] and cerise, and what could be smarter on a dark suit or gown?

The blouse of this model shows a drop shoulder, and the skirt is a two piece peg-top. A medici frill of lace gives a finishing touch to the costume.

To copy in size 36 4⅝ yards of [illegible] inch material will be needed with 1 yard of contrasting material.

Our Point of View

In the case of some of the political healers, their dislike of our M.P., is more than a habit; it is a disease.

Now that the C.N.R. bill is assured of passing the Canadian Bankers' Association can take its hand off its stomach.

Mayor Buller says "Don't be a little blatherskite" No, don't. Remember this is an age of great things and if you want to be a blatherskite be a big one.

Says the Hon. N. W. Rowell : "I stand firmly on my record." Those deep sepulchral groans you hear, come from the record.

Mr. N. W. Rowell still sits on the fence, so far as the bi-lingual schools are concerned," says a Toronto paper. Quite true, and judging from the nervous way in which he is acting it is a barbed wire fence.

The Liberals who in the recent debate on the estimates for the Militia Department in the House of Commons undertook to grill Hon. Sam. Hughes are only beginning to limp out of the political hospital.

Mr. N. W. Rowell says that when he gets into power he will run down every grafter in the Province. If he does that he will win the world's championship as a long-distance sprinter.

During a reunion of Fenian Raid veterans held in the Western part of the Province recently, one of the members ran a hundred yard race in less than two minutes, but it is a safe bet that he made a much better record in 1866.

"What is the difference between the Liberal party in Ontario and the Liberal party at Ottawa?" asked a citizen of The Times yesterday. The only difference that we can see is that the latter has no reputation to lose.

Pure Milk

"The first year in the making of the future man or woman. As the infant, so the future citizen of the republic." So says Dr. Abraham Jacobi in an address before the Milk Congress in Philadelphia, reported in the Housewives' League Magazine. And to secure this good beginning for the future citizen, he insists that we must procure by individual effort, and by the action of city, state and Federal health authorities and laws, "a wholesome, pure, and more or less germ-free milk" for the babies of the entire country.

Of course, he advises, as all doctors nowadays do, that if it is possible the baby should be nursed by its mother or by a human substitute. This, he contends, is possible in eighty to ninety per. cent of all cases. But modified cow's milk must be used in some cases, and must supplement in others the insufficient supply. And so important is it that this cow's milk fed to babies and young children should be pure, that boards of aldermen and legislatures, health officers, chemists, bacteriologists, inventors, veterinaries, and a host of inspectors, dairymen, expressmen and other links in the chain between the cow and the baby whom we seldom think about, concern themselves greatly and work with mind and body to keep the precious fluid clean, sweet and wholesome.

For milk, all the authorities tell us, is the most valuable of all foods —not only for calves, cats and babies, but for microbes. And well the vigilant little germs know this fact. So, unless the utmost care is taken to keep the bottle of milk clean from the cow's udder to the baby's lips, innumerable living and multiplying creatures will creep in. From possible tuberculosis in the cow itself, to typhoid, cholera, or scarlet fever from the hands of milker, delivery boy, or bottle washer, tetanus or anthrax from the wagon driver, diphtheria from the cat that may lick the top of the bottle or can, or any kind of disease from the flies that fall into it at any stage—there are a myriad of dangers which may lurk in the innocent white fluid.

They Taboo Mirrors

There is a sect in Holland known as the Labadists, among whose members the use of mirrors is strictly prohibited. Their founder, Jean de Labadie, a seventeenth century Calvinistic minister, attracted many followers, but after his death they dwindled down, and now they are found only in a few remote villages of Friesland. Travelling in Holland in 1893, Lee yisit on a colony of Labadists. "Intermarrying mainly among themselves," he wrote, "they have quite a distinctive type—a singularly beautiful one, with their delicate lips and a curious air of refinement. They are fishermen—very prosperous—and their houses, with their china and silver ornaments and prints of the house of Orange, end great Bibles with silver clasps and perfectly preternatural neatness, are very interesting to see."

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE.

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy. If Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c. family size bottle: small trial size 25c; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

A Chair From India

A chair presented to the professorship of colonial history at Queen's University, Kingston, was carved in Central India by Mrs. Nanton, known to Canadians as Miss Marguerite Joly, daughter of Sir Henry Joly de Lotbiniere. The chair is carved of specially selected teak of great beauty, and is probably the finest piece of modern wood carving in Canada. The design is symbolic of Canadian life.

Produces Much Mica

Canada is one of the three principal mica-producing countries of the world, the others being India and the United States. The average value of the mica produced annually in Canada during ten years was about $185,000.

Wholesale Smuggling

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Man., near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the border between St. Vincent and Warroad, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

London City and Midland Bank has passed the Lloyds Bank and is now the biggest bank in the world, with deposits of $450,000,000.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Go to Antioch If You Would Escape the High Cost of Living

"The cheapest place in the world is Antioch, in Syria," said a returned traveler. "Being on the Mediterranean the climate is just right in the colder months. I once passed a winter there, and all it cost me was $5.00 a week, though I rented a fine house and kept three servants. For the house I paid $5.00 a month rent, while the servants were satisfied with 50c a week. Mutton cost there 1c a pound. Eggs were 2c a dozen, and chickens 5c each. The finest of fresh fruit and vegetables (in February, too) were so cheap that they were not sold in quantity. You got all you wanted for so much per week. All I required for my household cost me 25c weekly. An American resident of Antioch told me that he and his family lived comfortably on $175 a year.

Reading to Workmen

In a Toronto cigar factory where nearly all of the thirty-five cigar makers are Cubans, a curious custom is observed—that of having a man read aloud all day long to the workers. He reads the daily newspapers in the mornings and usually a novel in the afternoon. The firm pays his salary and is glad to do it for it makes the men contented and does not interfere with their work which goes on quite as well when their thoughts are miles away from it. In Cuba nearly all the cigar factories employ readers.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

THE ATHLETES' HEART

After an examination by X-rays and otherwise of the hearts of 250 athletes and 300 students, Dr. Bender of Budapest would discard the term "sport heart" as used for cardiac dilation in athletes.

His examinations were confined chiefly to defining the outlines of the heart. He found that of those persons who had been taking part in athletic sports and active bodily exercise for a year or two the majority manifested some dilation of the heart, which, however, did not at all interfere with their health. He was inclined to regard such dilation as a semi-physiological condition with those who are habituated to athletic sports and exercises. His conclusion is that such exercises, even when decidedly energetic, are not injurious because the vascular system and the cardiac action gradually adapt themselves to the slight dilation.

Neither does arterio-sclerosis occur in a greater percentage in athletes than among other persons. Of course, the conclusions apply to normal and healthy subjects, and not to those who are addicted to any excesses or over-indulgence in alcohol or tobacco.

Hints on Beauty

Rest and Play in the Fields Revive Beauty

By Lucrezia Bori

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

LUCREZIA BORI

LISTEN when Nature calls you to come and play, and run away to the woods and live like the animals, eating simple food, sleeping under the star-studded sky, breathing life and vigor with each breath of fresh, pure air.

That is my message of vacation cheer to every woman—or man, either. It is not theoretical advice. It is a leaf from my Book of Experience. It is what I, my own self, do, whenever the singing season is over. Said a critic, on the last night of opera: "You sung as if inspired." "I was," said I; "freedom inspired me. Tomorrow I sing with the birds of the air."

Away I fly, the moment I am set free, to the Swiss lakes. There, in a simple peasant's dress I live out of doors. I run and row and make my mind and body a storehouse of health and happiness.

We cannot all go to the Swiss lakes, and it is well. There are so many beautiful places in the world, no one of earth's corners should be neglected.

But, dear girls, when the vacation time comes, if you want to gain health and beauty and rest, do what you can't do the rest of the year.

Rest from Tango.

If you have tangoed all winter in close rooms, go and dance like a woodland sprite on the green grass. If you have travelled in close cars between home and office, run away where there are no cars and no offices.

Better to hunt in fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught

That's a good summer motto. Away to the fields and find beauty in fresh air and freedom, simple food and long sleeps.

For many years I wondered at the reason for May dew as a complexion beautifier. You know it is supposed to insure one a lovely skin for the entire year, if the face is bathed in the dew every one of the 31 May mornings, before the sun rises. Dew is soft, pure water, of course, but I am sure the real secret of the May dew cure is the early rising and the outdoor exercise. June, July, all the summer months, hold the same charm of beauty.

There is a patch of city greensward where I take Truly, my little dog, each day for his exercise. The moment he feels the ground under his feet he begins to run round and round on the little patch of ground, giving little yips of joy as he circles. Then he lies flat and drags himself along, almost burrowing into the earth. He is storing up the air and freedom and energy he needs to live till he gets another such chance. Wise little dog!

Setting Right Mistakes.

When we go out for a walk have we the proper wisdom? Do we hold our heads up and our chests out and swing our arms and walk fast, breathing in perfect rhythm, or do we just stroll without a thought of using the lungs and the muscles which were given us for service?

Stir up your blood by exercise and deep breathing and your complexion will take care of itself.

Dance—wild dances of sheer happiness and unrestraint—and your body will grow in grace and you will lose the slouch and become normal again.

Eat simple, coarse food, and not too much of it, and you will not need anti-fat remedies.

Use the glorious summertime to set right the mistakes of the artificiality of winter life.

Says Ruskin, "All physical freedom is vain to produce beauty without a corresponding freedom of heart."

Set your heart free this summer and enjoy life

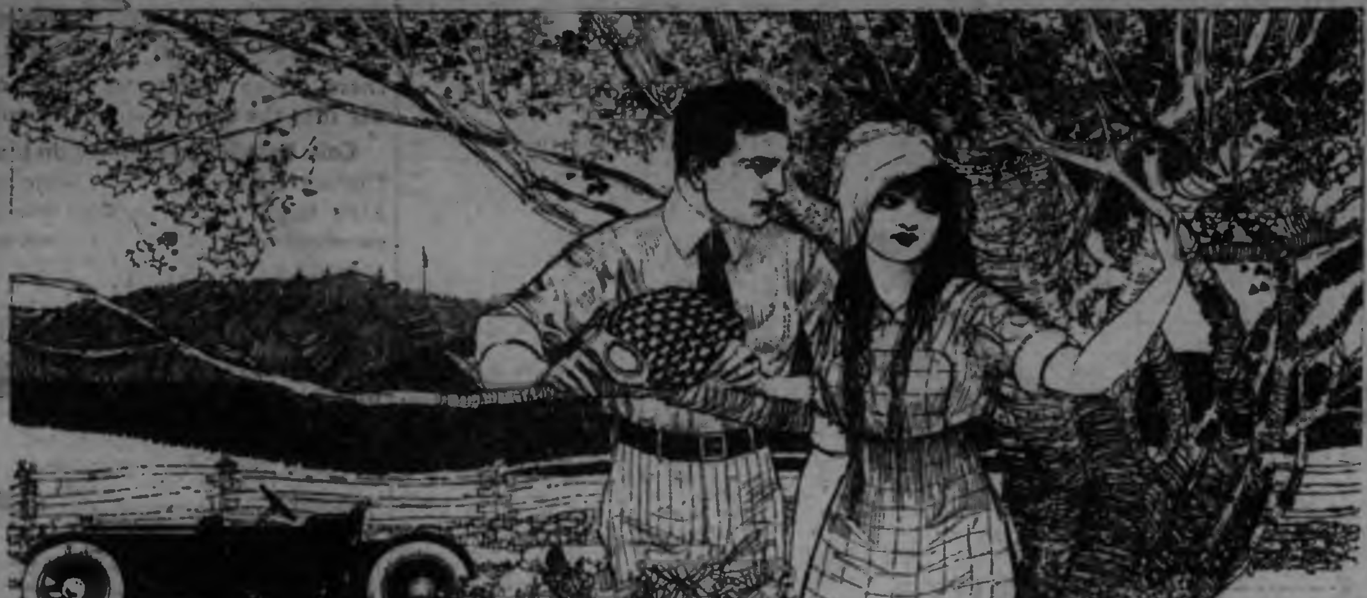
ASKING THE WAY :: :: By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

NO young man in a car can be sure that he won't get lost, and no country girl who chances to be at a certain place at a certain time can be sure that such a young man won't ask her the way.

It makes a great difference HOW you ask the way, and it makes an equally great difference how you TELL.

The way of the world has been changed—the color of the flowers, the odor of the fields, the look of the sky have all been changed—by just such happenings as this.

What's a road map between friends? Especially between new friends who have just found that they live in the same universe?

Will the young man's car find that same wrong road again? Will it become the RIGHT road? The CAR isn't saying a word!

Animal Superstitions

German children in the mountains of Silesia devoutly believe that beetles are both deaf and blind.

In India there is an idea that a lion cannot be induced to attack a prince or any scion of a royal house.

In Wales it is believed that if any one kills a wren he will fall down and break a bone before the end of the year.

In France there is an idea that if a fisherman counts the fish he has caught he will catch no more during that day.

It is said that among the Mexican populace there is an idea that the lizard warns men of the approach of a serpent.

In England, Germany and Russia the country people generally believe that to meet a weasel is an extremely unlucky accident.

Many common people of England believe that the guinea pig has no ears. Its ears are very small and lie very close to the head.

In Egypt the natives believe that crocodiles cry and moan like men in distress in order to attract and make a prey of the unwary.

In parts of Austria and Italy there is a superstition that the human saliva is a cure for blindness. The idea probably originated in the miraculous healing of a blind man recorded in one of the gospels.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

FIGS are not as well known in the average household as they deserve to be, for they are the most delicious and wholesome of fruits and may be served in a variety of ways.

Served in their natural state for the table, they should be simply washed, drained and chilled.

Stewed figs used as a filling for thin bread and butter sandwiches are always welcomed by children, and cut in dainty forms make a palatable between-meals lunch.

An oriental way of serving figs is to steam them with rice as follows:

STEAMED FIGS AND RICE.

Thoroughly wash a large cupful of rice and cook in plenty of boiling water until it is tender. About 20 minutes is the usual time. Wash the figs, cut in quarters, place them in a sieve over a saucepan of boiling water and steam for 15 minutes. Butter a mould and pack in the rice lightly, let it stand over hot water for 10 minutes, turn carefully on a hot platter, arrange the figs about the base and serve with hard sauce flavored with lemon.

Here is another delicious fig dessert:

STEAMED FIG PUDDING.

One cup chopped figs, half a cup of chopped suet, three eggs, 1½ cups of soft bread crumbs, half a cup of milk, one cup brown sugar, one teaspoonful salt.

Soak the bread crumbs in the milk and add the figs and suet chopped together and the other ingredients and pour this into a well buttered mould and steam four hours. Any foam sauce may be used with this, or here is an appropriate sauce:

Mix a cup of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of milk and two of wine and heat in a double boiler to a moderate temperature, then add slowly to half a cup of creamed butter.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I met a young man last summer, rather I had known him for a long time, but we began going together last summer. He always treated me nicely, and took me to entertainments, yet I believe I never fully appreciated it, for under the influence of some ill-meaning girls, as I later found, I wrote him a letter asking him to quit calling. Now I realize what I have done, and that I do care very much for him, and good friends have told me he still cares for me.

What shall I do? I have no proof for his wanting to go with me only his looks, which are kind, and what my friends tell me. ANXIOUS.

WELL, poor little Anxious, you got yourself into a fine affair, didn't you, just by doing what some mischievous acquaintances were determined to make you do.

I'm afraid I shouldn't think very much of your affection if I were that young man.

What is the matter with you, anyway? Don't you know your own mind?

Couldn't you see that those girls were jealous because your sweetheart really did love you?

You foolish little girl you, to let any one make mischief between you and one who truly loves you.

What shall you do now that you have brought this trouble upon yourself? How can you ask such a question?

You have been foolish and weak and unkind. Why don't you write the man a note and tell him so.

You found it easy enough to write him the other letter which made him so miserable.

Write him a letter, little girl; write him a letter this moment, tell him the truth, the plain truth and nothing but the truth.

Tell him you are sorry and ashamed and heart-broken—and then wait for his answer.

From what you say I don't think it will be long in coming.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

Youth and Age.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

DAD, I recall, was pretty busy that night, and mother was dining with us. I noticed as we three sat there at dinner how snowy mother's hair was growing.

Now, although it brings a choke to your throat to see those white hairs multiply, still there was something about it all that pleased me, too, for mother, thank God, is growing old serenely and gracefully, not with fretting and pathetic challenges to the world to ignore the lines. Mother is growing old honestly, with a beautiful sincerity that gives her greater beauty in my eyes than ever before. And yet, in view of certain happenings at our table that night I marvel somehow that more older women do not make fools of themselves and clutch frantically after the evanescent shadow of youth.

And the "certain happenings" at our table that night were my pretty young wife's attitude toward age. Whether or not Mary meant purposely to be cruel, whether or not she fancied her rounded loveliness enhanced by casual references to wrinkles and gray hair, or whether she was merely thoughtless and careless, I don't know. Certainly her occasional untactful remarks made me very uncomfortable.

For instance, there was some talk of an aunt of Mary's.

"She's just growing old and cranky!" exclaimed Mary. "That's all there is the matter with her."

"How old is she, Mary?" asked mother.

"Dear me," said Mary, with much the air she might have used in speaking of a human century plant, "she's past 40. She used to be very pretty, but now she's getting wrinkles and gray hair." Mary shrugged, but I boiled inwardly. It's the sort of thing I've often noticed younger women say in the presence of older ones, and I can never make out whether it is actuated by spite or vanity. I packed it away in my mind for future reference.

"Mary," I said heatedly, after dad had called for mother and they had both gone home, "I think it's distinctly bad taste to make slighting references to age in the presence of a woman who is no longer young!"

Mary tossed her head airily.

"Your mother ought not to be ashamed of her age," she said defiantly.

"She isn't!" I said. "And she's growing old sanely. She isn't dyeing her hair and beginning to forget dates like your mother."

"Don't be coarse, Peter," said Mary, "And don't speak of my mother please in such an insulting tone."

"You practically insulted my mother at dinner," I flung back, "and it makes me furious every time I think of it."

"Your mother's been scolding, hasn't she?" accused Mary. "Old women are always jealous of youth. Hadn't you noticed that?"

"I've noticed," said I wrathfully, "that young women are invariably cruel in their attitude toward older ones. Great Scott, Mary, don't you realise that you're going to have wrinkles and gray hair one of these days? How will you like some young snip of a girl to make slighting references to age and wrinkles then? And the other night you turned up your nose and said John Gruner's wife was old and fat. What do you call old, Mary?"

"Oh," said Mary, "thirty or so."

"My Lord!" I exclaimed, and glanced with some interest at this pretty wife of mine, foreseeing a change of ideas.

In her early twenties Mary considered 30 old. In the late twenties that same 30 years would begin to appear ridiculously young. Then likely she'd push the age limit off to 40, and in the late thirties 40 would seem considerably more youthful than it ever had before.

What a peculiar sense of personal immortality each individual has! Every young woman glancing in the mirror at her round, rosy cheeks and bright eyes speaks in the presence of older women as if she had some special dispensation of Providence that would grant her alone immortal youth.

Mary broke in on my revery.

"Anyway," Mary was saying, "when a woman is actually old she ought to admit it."

I smiled. What a lot of heartaches are ahead for Mary. She isn't as good a philosopher as mother is.

The "Master's Cat"

CHARLES DICKENS was a lover of animals, and like all true lovers he was likely to become the slave of his pets. Williamina, a little white cat, was a favorite with the entire household, but showed an especial devotion to its master. She selected a corner of his study for her kittens, and brought them in from the kitchen one by one. Mr. Dickens had them taken away again, but Williamina only brought them quietly back. Again they were removed, but the third time of their return she did not leave them in the corner. Instead, she placed them at her master's feet, and taking her stand beside them, looked imploringly up at him. That settled the question. Thereafter the kittens belonged to the study, and they made themselves royally at home, swarming up the curtains, playing about the writing table, and scampering behind the bookshelves.

Most of the family were given away; only one remained, entirely deaf, and known, from her devotion to Dickens, as "the master's cat." This little creature followed him about like a dog, and sat beside him while he wrote.

One evening Dickens was reading by a small table whereon stood a lighted candle. As usual, the cat was at his elbow. Suddenly the light went out. Dickens was much interested in his book, and he proceeded to relight the candle, stroking the cat as he did so. Afterward he remembered that puss had looked at him somewhat reproachfully while she received the caress. It was only when the light again became dim that the reason of her melancholy suddenly dawned upon him. Turning quickly, he found her deliberately putting out the candle with her paw, and again she looked at him appealingly. She was lonesome; she wanted to be petted, and this was her device for getting her way.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why a Kiss Is Dangerous; How to Cure Cracked Lips

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

YOU ne'er saw nectar on a lip, but where your own did hope to sip. Yet there are full many a pair of luscious lips that guard more venomous tongues and more germs than lurk in the mouth of a fly.

House flies, you know, have dirty lips, which inclose a wire-like tongue. This complicated tongue of the house fly looks like a wire bread toaster. Myriads of hollow wires go to form the tongue.

From this gyrating surface the fly spreads its saliva over the sugar, bread, butter, milk and your other fodder. Flies cannot eat solid food, so nature has provided them with this mechanism to liquefy everything first with the germ-full saliva.

One fly spoils the pudding, and all your groaning dishes, even if you kill that lone fly an hour afterward. There are no ripe cherries on the most tempting fly lips. They all hide deadly poisons, which, like tuberculosis and cancer, may not materialise for a score of years. Human saliva, true enough, is a necessary aid to digestion. All saliva contains microbes, especially the bacteria of pneumonia, bronchitis, blood-poisoning, tonsillitis and others.

Perhaps each man and woman acquires a sort of immunity to the germs in his or her own saliva and thus escapes disease until exposed to some one else's saliva.

Those ancient medical men called the ephemerides made a deep study of the human saliva. They describe a blue saliva in certain persons. This might have been due to blue pus or the blue pigment germ, bacillus pyocyaneus. Copper and other poisons might have done this also.

Dr. Marcellus Donatus describes a woman of 60 whose saliva was green, yet she remained always in good health. It turned out that she had been in the habit of biting her lead pencils. Accidentally a bit of indelible green lead lodged in a hollow tooth and the aniline dye kept staining her saliva for many moons. The eminent Dr. Paget relates a similar instance.

Red saliva, violet saliva, yellow saliva, purple saliva, as well as brown and iridescent colors, have been reported. These have been traced to such germs as the bacillus violaceus, or violet-making pigment microbes. There is no actual ailment present, only the odd-looking saliva.

Often the very lips, fair as a spout to tumble pearls and diamonds out, contain a secret danger which only subsequent events may disclose.

Little red veins, swollen and like a blood blister, often appear upon the lips. An irritating saliva may cause this, or biting the lips may be responsible.

Some astringent application, such as a styptic pencil or an alum ointment, suffices to cure it.

Chapped lips and cracked lips, not to mention fever blisters upon the lips, may be traceable to unfortunate habits, to fevers, to infections on the thin flesh of the lips, to the rapid evaporation in the cold air of saliva from the lips.

Too much talking or silly gossiping, which keeps the corners of the mouth puckered up, in contempt of others, often brings this just punishment.

The cracks and crevices are usually cured by glycerine and various other appropriate lotions. These heal as well as assuage the pain.

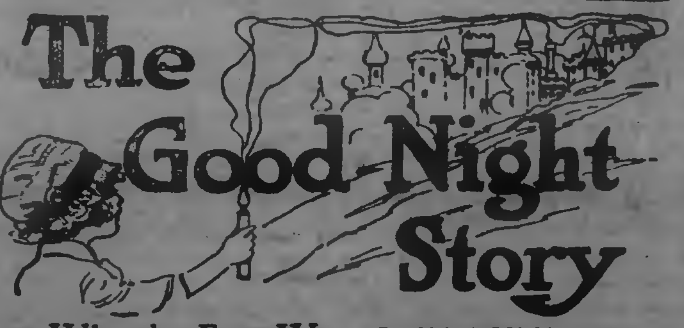
Wood Violets

I KNOW a wood that is blue with sweet violets,
  Breathing their delicate breath to the breeze.
Poets have sung them in delicate triolets,
  Claiming no violets sweeter than these.
  Poets have sung them in sonnet and madrigal
. . . . . . Under the trees.

Many an artist has sat with the blue of them,
  Watching them stir to the kiss of the breeze,
Striving to catch for his canvas the hue of them,
  Sighing despairingly under the trees.
Sighs for his picture . . . . for Nature has painted them
. . . . . . Fairer than these.

But when I murmur the rhythmical triolets,
  Sonnets or madrigals, soft as the breeze,
Lying before me are beautiful violets. . . . .
  Fanciful violets, blue as the seas.
Poetry only could capture the spell of them
. . . . . . Under the trees.

The Good Night Story



Who the Frog Was—By VERNON MERRY

ONCE upon a time there was a king who had three sons. Two of them were very handsome and witty, but the youngest did not talk much, and so was called Simple by all the people at his father's court.

At last, when the king grew old, he began to think that he had not chosen which of his sons would rule his kingdom when he died. He sent for them, and said: "Whichever of you will bring me the finest carpet shall be king after my death."

At once they prepared to start out in the world in search of wonderful carpets, and, in order that there might be no dispute, each blew a feather into the air. One flew to the east, another to the west, but the one of the youngest son fell to the ground at his feet. Away went the two brothers, laughing at Simple because he had to remain.

Feeling very sad, Simple sat down, but presently, looking around, he noticed a trap door in the ground near where his feather lay. He quickly lifted it up, and, to his surprise, saw a flight of stone steps, which he descended to a door.

When he knocked the door opened of itself, and Simple saw a large frog seated in the centre of a room with a lot of little frogs around her. She asked what he wanted.

"I have a great wish for the most beautiful carpet in the world," he said. The big frog called to the little ones:

Little frogs, crooked legs, run everywhere;
Bring me the large bag that hangs over there.

From this she gave the young man a wonderful carpet so fine that nothing on earth could equal it. He thanked her and hastened to his father.

Meanwhile, his brothers, believing that he would not get anything, had not gone to much trouble. Each of them appeared at court with a shepherd's plaid cloth for a carpet.

The king was very angry at them for their laziness, but was delighted with the gift of Simple. "My kingdom belongs to my youngest son," he announced.

Bright and early the next day Simple went to the trap door to thank the frog again for her kindness. She was glad to see him, but, when he asked what he could give her in return, she said:

"Would you marry me and make me your queen?"

"Yes," he answered; then added, "if you ever become human."

What was his surprise to see almost at once a beautiful princess standing before him. "The spell a witch put on me was broken the minute you said 'yes,'" she told him.

His father rejoiced again when he saw the beautiful princess, and there was a great feast at the castle when they were married. Even the brothers were happy and proud of their new wonderful queen.

The Largest Chrysanthemum

There seems to be almost no limit to the size of fruit and flowers that plant-breeders can produce. They have doubled or trebled the size of some of the common vegetables, and many of the flowers that fill the florists' shops, but in no case, perhaps, have they accomplished more remarkable results than in that of the chrysanthemum. By removing all the flower-buds except the terminal they have produced the large globular heads with which we are all familiar. A French amateur succeeded in winning a prize for the largest chrysanthemum, with a flower that measured more than 64 inches in circumference. That is many times the size of the original flowerhead. What will happen when the same methods are applied to tomatoes, cherries and other fruits and vegetables?—Horticulture.

PIPES AND PIPERS

There is hardly a country in the world where the pipe is not smoked in one form or another.

The Kaffir loves his pipe, and, failing the genuine article, will use anything that will hold tobacco—from a piece of iron piping to a cow's horn. When not even these are available he will use the earth! He does this by making a small hole to hold the tobacco, from which he makes a passage for the smoke by pushing a curved piece of wire through the ground. He then lies face downwards, applies a light to the tobacco, and his lips to the ground, at the spot where he has withdrawn the wire, and smokes in peace.

In many villages of the north-west provinces of India are to be found public hookahs for the use and comfort of travellers.

Everyone has heard of the North American Indian's pipe of peace. General Blucher's pipe-smoking was of a very different character. He appointed a man to the post of "pipemaster," whose duty it was to fill a long clay pipe and hand it to the general before every engagement. Blucher would then enjoy a few whiffs, give back the pipe, and gallop into the fighting line.

World's Coldest City

The coldest city in the world is said to be Verkhoyansk in northern Siberia. The average annual temperature is eight degrees above zero, and the winter record is eighty-five degrees below zero. The rivers freeze solid to the bottom, small trees snap and split from the cold. Yet in summer the temperature averages fifty-nine degrees above zero and vegetation flourishes, though the ground a few feet below it never thaws out

MARVELS OF TO-DAY

What Are the Seven Wonders of the Twentieth Century?

Taking the concensus of opinion among noted scientists of Europe and America, Popular Mechanics compiled a list of the seven modern wonders of the world. When Antipater wrote his guide book of antiquity two centuries before Christ, he fixed upon seven wonders which have come down in history to the present time, as follows:

The Pyramids of Egypt; the Pharos of Alexandria; the Hanging Gardens of Babylon; the Temple of Diana at Ephesus; the Statue of Jupiter by Phidias; the mausoleum erected by Artemisia, at Halicarnassus, and the Colossus of Rhodes. One thousand letters were sent out enclosing a list of fifty-six subjects of mechanical and scientific achievements. The letters requested the learned men to mark the seven which, in their opinion, were the greatest wonders of modern times. The ballots on the highest seven items stood this way: Wireless telegraphy, 244 votes; telephone, 185; aeroplane, 167; radium, 165; antiseptics and antitoxins, 140; spectrum analysis, 126; X-ray, 111. The three next highest achievements received this vote: Panama Canal, 100; anaesthesia, 94; synthetic chemistry, 81. Maxim, Marconi, Alexander Graham Bell, Mme. Curie, Edison, Steinmetz, Albert Zahm, R. W. Wood, David Todd, D. E. E. Hyde, members of the French Academy of Scientists, of the Royal Society of London, the American Academy, and the Great German Universities were represented.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to and including Monday the 8th day of June 1914, for the right to cut wood of various descriptions on a certain area tributary to the Frederickhouse and Abitibi Rivers in the District of Temiskaming.

Such tenderers shall be required to erect a mill or mills on or near the territory, and to manufacture the wood into products thereof in the Province of Ontario.

Parties making tender will be required to deposit with their tender a marked cheque payable to the Honourable the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario for ten per cent. of the amount of their tender, to be forfeited in the event of their not entering into an agreement to carry out the conditions, etc.

How People Peel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasit This parasite is a creature male an female in one. It is a pear shap having two, four and six suckers. I lays the eggs, which are only connect ed together with slime. They develo and form a body, which is the worm Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows t be much longer than the bowels wher it is located, and sometimes a whol colony of them are found, enough t fill a quart of solid worm, and whe put in a basket of water would ap parently fill it. It is the hardes task in the world to destroy this pa rasite without doing injury to the in dividual who may be so unfortunat as to have it, as the parasite cling to the bowels, freeing itself from th body of the worm, and remains the to breed another. It is an internal d mon and causes its victims to suffer al the symptoms of disease imaginabl The cleverest physicians are led to be lieve the patient is suffering from som other disease, as nearly every perso has different symptoms. Some hav been treated for cancer of the bowel consumption of the bowels, consump tion of the lungs, chronic dyspepsi nervous prostration, melancholi hypochondria, hysteria, in flammation of the bowels, appendic tis and other complaints, when one o more of these internal demons wer eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discov ery to free the victim of this monste without injury to the system, destroy ing the parasite as well as expellin the worm with one dose of medici without any previous starvation. Vi it his office, where he has in his po session the most wonderful collectio of these death-dealing monsters in th world, which have been expelled fro hundreds of people by his famous rem edy, some bottles containing colonie of worms and anyone seeing them ca not imagine how a person could po sibly live with them in his bowels. I is surprising the number of people th have them. Thousands have them an are not aware of the fact. The le ters and testimonials the Professor h in his possession are enough to con vince one of this alarming fact. So of the most prominent symptoms ar ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, hea aches, cramps in the bowels, a feeli of something moving in the bowe also a feeling as though something w crawling up the throat. The only ce tainty of having one in the system when segments or joints are see which come away almost any tim They are flat and from ½ of an inch 1 inch long, which have often be mistaken for pin worms by those w do not know the difference. Th are many other feelings of distre which would take long to enumerat Strange to say, some people of stron constitution, have very little distre

BELIEVES IN BOXING

Famous Priest's Advice to English School Boys

Father Bernard Vaughan, the noted English Jesuit, addressing a gathering of schoolboys at Liverpool, said that he could not help being painfully struck by the small stature of Lancashire lads.

"In the towns clustering round Liverpool and Manchester," he added, "I find narrow-chested, badly-grown, bow-legged boys and girls. Many of the boys and young men look bleached, not to say anaemic, as though they suffer from a want of oxygen, nitrogen and wholesome food.

"Does it mean that the hours of labor are too long? I think not. I do think, however, that there is a good deal of fraudulent foodstuff sold. Men and women are not getting the article they pay for. Then, again, too much time is spent in looking at cinematograph pictures.

"I think every lad should be taught the noble art of self-defence," added Father Vaughan. "He should be taught how to use his fists and to hold his own. Every British boy at school should learn how to box—how to hit straight from the shoulder, and never below the belt. Until a man has learned how to defend himself how is he to know how to defend his country?"

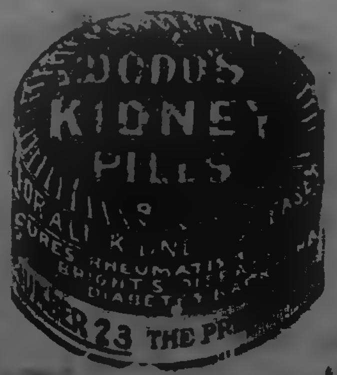
Why Matty Stays

Christy Mathewson and Sarah Bernhardt belong to the same class. Both of them are perennials. They last. Pitchers and actresses come and go, but these two promise to imitate the poet's brook and go on forever. When asked why she is still able to compel her audience to pay tribute to her power, the "Divine Sarah" answers, "Because all my life I have done what I loved to do." And if someone were to ask Matty why he never grows old and weary and worthless, he would, if he were to tell the whole truth, give his love of baseball as the secret of his lasting success.



SCREWS AND GEARS

Fremont, in his work on the origin of screws and gears, brings out some interesting points on this subject. The Greeks are supposed to have invented the screw, but the two Roman authors, Pliny and Vitruvius, give the most ancient record we possess on the subject, although it must certainly have been known long before their time. The principle of the screw seems to have been but little used until the middle ages, when it was first applied for wine and cider presses.

During the first centuries of our era bolt and nut was replaced by threadless bolts having a hole containing a conical pin, so that driving in the pin increased the pressure; such bolts had holes spaced along for adapting to different thicknesses of material. The Egyptian noria may account for the origin of gearing. This seems to have been a wheel working on a horizontal shaft and operated by a crank. Along the wheel surface were cleats for retaining the bucket chain which descended into the well, and in this way the buckets were raised, one after the other, full of water. But to drive the noria by an animal makes a vertical shaft necessary, and an ingenious person may have extended the cleats on one side in order to make them engage with a sort of lantern-shaped pinion placed on a vertical shaft.

"Porky" Out of Place

It is not very often we hear of porcupines walking through a flock of fowl, but such was the case when Fred Compton of Kingston discovered a large one a few yards from the house. The dog also had seen it and quickly made after the animal, when it took to a large pine tree, but not before the dog's mouth and nose were completely filled with quills; and it was not until the next day that, with the aid of a pair of pincers, the quills were pulled out of the poor animal's mouth. However, Compton ran and got his gun and soon put an end to the porcupine.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"--DEAD SURE CURE

WONDERFUL SUCCESS REPORTED IN THOUSANDS OF BAD CASES

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course, is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone and neither the moisture of an atomiser nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breathe in its healing balsams inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the [illegible] for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parks and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Cathrrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size sufficient for two months use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size 50c sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Mr. Inch of the Township of Hope saved his wallet of twenty-five dollars by a very narrow margin. Mr. Inch was at the town square on Monday when two strange men started up a conversation with him. Mr. Inch felt a hand in his coat pocket but did not pay much attention to it as there was considerable jostling in the crowd Later a hand wandered into his trouser pocket and Mr. Inch grabbed the man's wrist before he could withdraw his hand. The thief had managed to find the pocket with the twenty-five dollars and in another instant would have been away with it. Unfortunately Mr. Inch did not report the matter to the police.

WHY MRS. MARK FOUND QUICK RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

New Brunswick Lady Who Suffered For Six Years Tells How She found a Speedy Cure.

Miscou Harbor, Gloucester Co., N.B. June 5.—(Special.)— "For some five or six years I was troubled with backache. I tried many tonics, but kept growing steadily worse, until I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. They gave me almost immediate relief."

This is the statement of Mrs. A. Mark, well known and highly respected here. Asked to give more particulars in regard to her case, Mrs. Mark said-

"My trouble started with a cold. and gradually grew worse. I had stiffness in my joints and cramps in my muscles and suffered from neuralgia. I had heart flutterings and headaches, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing and I was always tired and nervous. I had dark circles under my eyes. I was irritable and often dizzy and had a bitter taste in my mouth in the mornings. I also had attacks of rheumatism.

"It just took three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills to fix me up."

The Directors have much pleasure in submitting to the Shareholders the Thirty-ninth Annual Report and Balance Sheet of the affairs of the Bank as on 30th April, 1914, together with Statement of Profit and Loss Account, showing the result of the operations of the Bank for the year ended on that day.

The net profits of the Bank, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, for interest on bills under discount not yet matured and for payment of all Provincial and Municipal taxes amounted to	$1,236,984.76
being at the rate of 8.30 p.c. upon the average paid-up Capital and Reserve Fund.
There was received from Shareholders by way of Premium upon Net Stock the sum of	211,830.82
(The receipt of this sum was anticipated in 1913 by a charge against Profit and Loss Account to credit of Reserve Account so as to make that account $7,000,000 and it is now properly re-credited to Profit and Loss Account.)
There was brought from 1913, the balance of Profit and Loss Account	1,003,988.55
Making a total available Surplus of	$2,452,804.13

In Ontario—At Preston, Niagara Falls South, Wellesley and Sherbourne streets, Toronto, and at Humber Bay.

In Saskatchewan—At Kandahar.

The Branches at Michel, B. C., McLean, Sask., and St. Roch, in the city of Quebec, have been closed.

It is with the deepest regret that we announce the death of our late colleague, Sir William Whyte, who passed away, after a painful illness on the 14th April, 1914. Although Sir William Whyte could not be a regular attendant at the meetings of the Board in Toronto, yet his care and watchfulness of the interests of the Bank at Winnipeg and throughout the Northwest were of great service to the Bank, and have always been highly appreciated.

It is our opinion that it would be advisable to add to the number of Directors; a by-law to that end will be presented for your approval, and you will be asked to make suitable provision for the additional member.

Under the Bank Act (1913) you will for the first time, be called upon to appoint auditors for the Bank and to fix their remuneration.

The Head Office and Branches of the Bank, now numbering 127, have been carefully inspected during the year, and your Directors have much pleasure in testifying to the faithfulness and efficiency of the staff.

The whole respectfully submitted.

D. R. WILKIE,
President.

GRIPPED IN STORM OF EMOTION MULTITUDE MOURNS WITH ARMY

Services at Arena Most Momentous in City's History--Great Auditorium Thronged With People Takes Part in Divine Memorial Service Over The Bodies of Sixteen Salvation Army's Dead--Long Procession Follows Gaskets to the Grave

Toronto, June 6.—Toronto in the persons of thousands of her populace and in the spirit of the whole, sat in the sack cloth and ashes of a universal mourning all Saturday afternoon as divine memorial service to the memory of the Salvation Army victims of the Empress of Ireland was held in the Arena. The occasion was the most momentous of its kind the city has known. Those who were gone, in the words of the Army whose names were promoted to the eternal bederoll of the heavenly battalions, were essentially Torontonians. Here they had liped and labored and here they has spent their best efforts for the city's spiritual redemption beneath the "blood-stained banner of the cross." It was peculiarly fitted that the chief ornament in the last display in which they mutely shared should be the same Army banners draped side by side with the Canadian national emblem. It was fitting further that the city should turn out en masse in a general recognition of honor.

Staged With Utmost Simplicity.

The service itself wasmore impressive in its solemnity than those who were not there can well appreciate. Everything was staged with the utmost simplicity. There was nothing of parade or ostentation; nothing theatrical in appeal. Yet nothwithstanding all this, the souls of the vast multitude were seized upon and gripped in a storm of emotion. The wonderful pathos of it all struck home to the hearts of the congregation. They mourned, not as ones who had lost acquaintances, but as those who had shared in a close and vital friendship.

It was with strange, bewildering mixture of emotion that the throng poured in from the hot dusty streets to gaze upon the dead. The hundreds of army people who marched slowly through the aisles, tears sprang to the eyes, and strong men sobbed with their sisters in uniform, as face after face was passed. Comrades in arms they had been, and the week of tragedy was hard to realize.

Clergymen Rubbed Shoulders With Laborers.

The host of citizens which massed about the sides of the auditorium was typical of a great democracy rendering reverent tribute with a common spirit of respect. Clergymen in black, rubbed shoulders with Italian laborers; lawyers and clerks sat side by side; dignitaries of court and council bowed head with the great concourse of common people who earned their bread in the humbler walks of life. Every heart was tuned with the sense of mutual loss.

A Message from Gen. Booth.

The first message to flash over the sea of upturned faces came from Commissioner McKie of London, England. The words he brought were from the lips of General Booth and their utterance started a distinct sigh of emotion about the galleries. In brief, the message was that life seemed so strange and undependable when Commissioner Rees, hastening to set the battle in array, should yet be cut down.

"Let us surrender to God's will," pleaded the General; but I call upon you all to be prepared to die in the army. Men die, but the holy war goes on." It was a cry for life to spring from death; for a world to recognise that the banners of supreme victory would perch upon the graves of dead heroes.

No feature of the service proved more soul-stirring than the strains of sacred hymns from the instruments of massed military and army bands.

The afternoon opened with the audience standing to the swelling cadences of "Abide with Me."

FRENCH CATHOLICS TO HAVE CHAMPION

Ottawa, June 6.—Napoleon Champagne, M.L.A., for East Ottawa, and again Conservative candidate in that riding, in an interview with a local French paper expresses his intention of opposing the famous bi-lingual regulation, 17, and opposing everything derogatory to the interest of Catholic French-Canadians. He declares that if Mr. Rowell proposes a vote of censure on the Whitney Government on the way it has dealt with the school question, he will vote for it.

Mr. Champagne's statement practically stamps him as an independent Conservative candidate.

VILLA HUMBLY BOWS TO GENERAL CARRANZA WHO CLAIMS MEXICO PRESIDENCY

Supreme Military Commander of Rebels Now Only a Chief of One Military Division--"I am Ready to Make Any Sacrifice for My Country," Said General Villa

Torreon, Mexico, June 6.—The power and authority of General Venustiano Carranza, who is about to declare himself provisional president of Mexico, has been increased by Gen. "Pancho" Villa's humbly accepting a place as the mere commander of one of the four military divisions into which Carranza has divided that part of Mexico already conquered by the rebels.

Villa, who has been the supreme military commander of the rebels was to have met Carranza yesterday, but instead remained at Chihuahua and had a long communication with the supreme chief by telegraph, as a result of which he acknowledged Carranza's authority and said:

"I am ready to make any sacrifice for my country, provided always that making such sacrifices will aid the greater cause for which I have been fighting."

With the air thus clarified, arrangements were made for a meeting between Carranza and Villa in this city to-day.

General Carranza is continuing arrangements for setting up his provisional capital in Saltillo garrison. Villa telegraphed that he had seen to the preparations of resistance for Carranza and those who will constitute his provisional cabinet.

BUTLER WILL OPPOSE ROWELL IN OXFORD

Says He is a Better Temperance Man Than Opposition Leader

Woodstock, June 6.—Robert E. Butler received the nomination to oppose N. W. Rowell, leader of the opposition, for the seat of North Oxford at a meeting in the city hall today. There were three hundred present, and the enthusiasm displayed bespeaks a hard fight for the opposition leader.

The candidate has contested this seat three times before, each time lowering the majority of the Liberal candidate till the last time he was defeated by about only 400 majority.

During his address the candidate declared that he is a better temperance man than N. W. Rowell.

"If you abolish the bar in Woodstock what will you have? You will have the young men carrying bottles from the shops to dives all over the city," he declared. Rowell, he continued only wanted the votes of this riding so he could sit in the House in Toronto, not because he is interested in the county of Oxford.

For some minutes Hon. W. J. Hanna, who visited the meeting, dwelt on the liquor question, and stated that the Government has carried on such an advanced liquor license policy that the number of bars in the Province since they came into power in 1905 has been nearly diminished by half.

"As far as I know," stated the provincial secretary," Rowell has never reformed anything, not even himself."

MAKES WRINKLES GO "AS IF BY MAGIC."

Want to banish every wrinkle—from face, neck, hands—easily, quickly, completely? Try the famous saxolite formula. Nothing else so nearly meets every requirement. Why? Because it is correct in principle and really, truly assists Nature. Possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties, it both tightens the skin—thus naturally smoothing out the lines—and improves capillary circulation and nerve tone—tending to strengthen loose tissue and bring about a healthy condition. Yet, powerful as the saxolite lotion is, it won't harm your skin in the least. And it's so easy to get the inexpensive ingredients at your druggist's, and so easy to mix them. Just dissolve 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel—that's all. Bathe your face in this—immediately every wrinkle and crease are affected, even the deepest. You are perfectly astonished, and delighted, with the result. You look like you've lost years from your age!

THE WEATHER.

THE IMPERIAL BANK

Has Just Concluded a Most Successful Financial Year

The Imperial Bank of Canada, one of the main bulwarks of Canadian finance, a few days ago held its thirty-ninth annual meeting in the Banking House of that progressive institution.

The Directors' report shows a most encouraging record of the Bank's business throughout the year.

Though political and financial disturbances followed each other in quick succession during the past year, they have not affected the business of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

The net profits of the Bank, after making full provisions for bad and doubtful debts, for interest on bills under discount not yet matured and for payment of all Provincial and Municipal taxes amounting to $1,236,981.76, being at the rate of 8.90 per cent. upon the average paid up capital and reserve fund. In arriving at this figure the reserve fund was included as a part and parcel of the capital. Under the "old style" this rate would appear as 17.80 per cent., and would be calculated upon capital alone. The total available surplus is shown to be $2,452,804.13, reflecting the high standing of the institution.

In his address, Mr. Wilkie said, the present system of taxation by Provinces and Municipalities discouraged the opening of the new branches. Mr. Wilkie dealt with the crop situation in each of the provinces separately, his opinion being that the prospects were for a fair crop throughout the country.

A feature of particularly local interest is that Mr. E.W. Cox, son of the late Senator George A. Cox, and President of the Canada Life Co., was placed on the Bank's directorate. Mr. Cox is well and favorably known in this City and County having first seen the light of day here.

EAST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION

Conservative Campaign Opens To-Night at Hall's Glen.

The political pot in East Peterborough is beginning to simmer. Mr. Thompson, the Conservative candidate, opens the campaign at Hall's Glen this evening, where he will hold a public meeting and deliver his first speech of the contest. Meetings will be held on Tuesday evening at Grady's school house, and on Wednesday at Stewart's, Otonabee.

Mr. C. L. Owen, Ex-M.P., Campbellford, and Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., are also expected to deliver addresses on behalf of the Conservative candidate.

WOULD ABOLISH NAVAL PROGRAM

London Papers Favor Reduction of Great Britain's Armaments

London, June 6.—The problem which the English newspapers discuss this morning is: "Has the time come for the abandonment of the continued construction at such enormous expense yearly of marine dreadnoughts?"

There is no doubt that the Radicals welcome Sir Percy Scott's declaration that the warfare of the future will be conducted by airships and submarines with delight, because its acceptance by public opinion means the abandonment of the wild naval programs which have crippled the great maritime nations of the world.

But there is, as always, this doubt: If Great Britain should decide upon a reform of her shipbuilding program by constructing more submarines and more aeroplanes, would the other countries follow suit?

The Radical Daily News, the chief mouthpiece of the advocates for a reduction of armaments, welcomes Sir Percy Scott's letter as endorsing its constant contention that the "Dreadnought period was the golden age of stupidity."

Despite the fact that the Navy League asserts that Sir Percy is premature, The Daily News declares that there is sufficient basis to move away from the old formulae which in the past have meant the crippling of the empire's finances, the needless entanglement of the empire in foreign alliances and the imperilling of the safety of the British Isles.

HUGE ARMY BUDGET IN RUSSIA DUMA

St. Petersburg, June 6.—The Minister of Finance has informed the budget committee of the Duma that Russia, within the next five years, must spend $3,160,000.00 for the army and navy.

The budget for the current year for the army and navy, amounts to nearly $500,000,000. Excluding the cost of strategic railways the Empire has spent $2,580,000,000 in the last six years and lately proposed enormous increases in order to meet the German growth of armaments.

New York City uses about 18,000,000 tons of coal annually.

SINGING OF HYMNS OPEN THE CEREMONIES OF MACDONALD DAY

Decoration of Monument of Sir John A. Macdonald by Conservative Association Carried Ou Saturday at Queen's Park

Toronto, June 6.—Imperialism and patriotism marked the Conservative rally in Queen's Park on Saturday afternoon, to honor yet again the old chieftain whose memory is kept alive by Macdonald Day. Cluster of flags and the mottos: "A British subject was I born, and a British subject Will I Die," ever memorable words of Sir John that had place in the platform, giving the tone of the meeting.

Mr. VanKoughnet thought the most appropriate thing would be to open the ceremonies by the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," in memory of the dead in the Empress disaster. This was accordingly done, the gathering rising and singing the hymn to the accompaniement of the 48th Highlanders' Band.

Arthur VanKoughnet, President of the Centre and South Conservative Club, in his address summarized the work of the leader and referred to the great fiscal system, the national policy, which he said appeals to us more strongly this year than ever. We are also, he said, emphasizing the Borden naval policy of the Dominion Government, and in this way we best commemorate those high ideals of empire which our revered chieftain always maintained and advanced.

Some of the Speakers.

Other speakers were Mr. W. H. Price, Mr. Thomas Hook, Hon. A. E. Kemp, Hon. Thomas Crawford, Mr. George H. Gooderham, Hon. J. J. Foy, Mr. C. Doughty, Mr. E. W. J. Owens and others.

Under blue skies and guarded by the Canadian maple decked in tender June green the Conservative Ladies of Canada decorated the monument of Canada's greatest son, Sir John A. Macdonald.

SIR EDWARD CARSON IS FIXED ON HORNS OF A DILEMMA

London, June 6.—Nothing has been done toward settling the Ulster question, although views were interchanged by Prime Minister Asquith and Opposition leader Bonar Law during the Whitsuntide holidays.

Mr. Asquith holds that the Unionists in the House of Lords should embody their ideas of a settlement in the amending home rule bill, which will be introduced there next week.

The Unionists reply that by so doing they will commit themselves to an acknowledgement that the Home Rule Bill must pass, which they refuse to do, although now its passage is automatic, whatever the lords may do.

Sir Edward Carson was in Ulster this week, and it is reported that he has had great difficulty in keeping the Orange Volunteers in check.

But the real crux of the Ulster situation now is the anxiety of the business community because of the desolating effects on Ulster commerce and [illegible] of the uncertainty brought about by Carson's policy.

Carson on the Horns of Dilemma.

Between the scared business men on one side, who want a settlement, and the Ulster Volunteers on the other, who have been assured that they shall have an opportunity of "going for" the Catholics, with the connivance of the British army and police, Carson is on the horns of a horrible dilemma.

Another unforeseen element the National Volunteers, looms up very large to upset these calculations. The Ulster Volunteers drew a dollar a day each from wealthy Englishmen who have put up a fund of $5,000,000.

National Volunteers Number 100,000.

The National Volunteers pay their own expenses, and correspondents of the Unionist newspapers report that they number already 100,000 men. In Londonderry the National Volunteers equal the Orange Volunteers in number and are as well armed.

ASSEMBLY WILL HANDLE CHURCH UNION TO-DAY

Discussion on Recommenda- to Open up Matter Again Cut Short by Adjournment

Woodstock, June 6.—"Your committee recommend to the general assembly that the union committee be reappointed, vacancies which have occurred in its membership being filled; that the assembly respectfully invite Methodist and Congregational churches to meet in joint committee with union committee of this church, to consider the amended basis appended to this report, and prepare basis of union that may be submitted to the assembly in 1915.

"If approved by the assembly of 1915 such basis of union, together with a statement presenting views of both minority and majority within the church shall be sent down to presbyteries, and also to sessions and congregations, that the judgment of the whole church may be had, and such issue as may then seem wisest, be given to what has been subject of negotiations for so many years. And further, that the general assembly earnestly assure the other negotiating churches of their desire to reach that issue without any unnecessary delay."

Dr. W. J. Clarke of Montreal, convenor of the church union committee which has been deliberating for the past few days on this question, submitted the above recommendation at this morning's session of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

GERMAN CRUISER TO HAITI

Berlin, June 6—Reports published in the newspapers that the German cruiser Strassburg has been ordered to Port Au Prince, Haiti, to bring about a settlement of indemnity claims by German subjects, are denied by the foreign office here today. It was stated that the cruiser had been ordered to Haitien waters because of the disturbed condition there. No special instructions had been given regarding Port Au Prince, at which place the vessel had only touched.

U.S. NAVAL TUG IS BACK.

Louisburg, N.S., June 6.—The American tug Potomac, which was abandoned off Newfoundland during the week, will be brought back to this port to-day.

COL. ROOSEVELT'S HUNTER

Emory J. Pond, one of the hunters who accompanied Theo. Roosevelt on his African hunt, is one of the lion tamers employed with Robinson's Famous Shows. Mr. Pond joined Mr. Roosevelt's party in Rhodesia and remained until the expedition moved up towards Khartoum, when he joined the Robinson expedition, sent to equatorial Africa to replenish the menagerie. They obtained many fine specimens, and Mr. Pond came to America with them to break the wild and savage beasts. He now has them under perfect control. He tells many interesting experiences while with Roosevelt expedition, and says the Colonel was not only absolutely fearless, but often reckless in exposing himself to the attacks of wild denizens of the African jungle.

ENORMOUS SHEEP OF NOVA SCOTIA

They Are Perfectly Wild And Are Quite at Home in the Sea

On the east coast of Nova Scotia is an archipelago of thousands of isles, wooded and rocky. Four hundred years ago the hardy French voyagers who first settled this part of Canada hailed these pretty islands with delight. They settled there before they would trust themselves upon the mainland and there they turned out the live stock—shaggy Breton ponies, hardy little Jerseylike cows, and lanky sheep. The sheep thrived where the cattle and the horses found the problem of existing difficult. Soon they paddled in the shallow waters of the outgoing tide in their desire to catch at the floating eel grass and bulbous kelp. Then the discovery came that swimming was not beyond their powers, and they need not remain prisoners on single islands when there were scores of others for them to visit.

So they peopled numbers of the islands, and straggling along the whole coast line became no man's flocks, having returned to a pristine wildness.

So it comes that in Nova Scotia, especially in Guysboro County, there is a breed of big sheep loaded down with heavy wool of as many years growth as they are old, perfectly wild, living on the sea coast. Swift on their feet they are as alert to danger as their cousins the mountain sheep of the Pacific coast. They jump from cliffs of considerable height, trusting to their heavy fleeces to save their bones from harm. They are ready on the instant to plunge into the water and swim off to safety.

They are sure footed as antelopes, vigilant as chamois. This, too, despite the fact that they are always rolling in fat. Ragged looking the old-timers grow to be especially about the neck, but this is when maturity has been passed and old age is coming on. Otherwise they are tidy looking creatures, though their fleeces are prodigiously exaggerated.

They are partly carnivorous, these sheep of the sea coast. At least an observant watcher will notice that they nose away at the soft spots of the beach after eel worms and mussels, and chewed clam shells are commonly to be met with on their pasturages. But their regular food is dulce, eel grass, and kelp.

In the winter they are apt to suffer. The spray dashes into the fleece and freezes there in cold weather. All along the high water mark the sea walls of ice form. Many sheep are drowned here while feeding on sea weed. Were it not for the dangers of the winter season the sheep would become exceedingly numerous, for they breed quickly and not very many of them fall before the hunters.

TRAPPING ON FARMS

Chances For an Observant Country Boy to Earn Money

Over one hundred thousand dollars is paid to the farmer boys of Canada each year for raw furs," said Mr. John Hallam, a large Toronto fur dealer, "and many of these boys earn their first real money by setting out a line of traps and capturing the valuable fur-bearing animals."

Contrary to the popular impression, it is not necessary to go into the wilds in order to trap, as muskrats, mink, skunk, raccoon, ermine or white weasel and other valuable fur-bearing animals abound throughout the farming communities of the Dominion, and it only remains for the observant, active trapper to capture the same and turn their pelts into the big money that they bring on the market to-day.

Not only does the following of the trap line well repay the boy for the time and energy expended, but it leads him to enjoy the healthful life in the open, and to become a lover of nature. It causes him to become observant and sharpens his wits, when he attempts to match his skill against the natural instinct and wariness of the wild animals, and offers an innocent safety valve to the natural exuberance inherent in every boy having good red blood coursing through his veins.

NO WOMEN FREEMASONS

Leading Mason Denies That Women Will be Admitted

Statements appeared in some of the newspapers of Britain, to the effect that a Masonic lodge is to be formed in New Zealand, membership of which will be open to women equally with men. Many people, outside the Masonic ranks, seeing the statement, approached prominent Masons, among others the editor of "The Freemason," and asked if the suffragette agitation was extended to Masonry.

"There is no sign of any such agitation," the editor of "The Freemason" said. "This matter has no connection with the suffragism that I know of. The mistake lies in the use of the

THE SMART SEPARATE COAT A FASHION DEMAND

Straight, simple, almost severe of line are many of the long, separate coats. Others are belted and trimmed to give the effect of a suit. With the increasing popularity of the one-piece dress a coat of this sort is almost a necessity. The soft velours and fur fabrics appeal as cold, crisp days approach, but the smooth stuffs and tweeds and serges are always appropriate.

One of the smartest and most practical of this style of coats seen this season was of brownish tweed, an almost invisible mixture, collared and cuffed in tobacco brown broadcloth. This is an excellent suggestion for 7982. This model would also be attractive in a bright blue velours de laine, with collar and cuffs of scarlet. In size 16 7982 requires 3¾ yards of 42 inch material with ½ yard of contrasting stuff.

A dainty, graceful afternoon dress for the boarding school girl is shown in 8011. The skirt is a peg-top and the blouse opens over a natty little surplice vest. This may be developed most effectively in printed taffetas, bringing out some of the new color combinations—blues, greens and brick reds, with a plain color for the vest and cuffs.

Size 16 may be made with 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 7982—sizes 14, 16, 17 and 18.

Our Point of View

Should Redmond and his faction in Ireland be deprived of the kind of Home Rule they seek every man of them will become a prince of Wails.

—o—

Hon. George P. Graham is 65 years of age. He says he feels like thirty cents, for he has been feeling that way ever since September, 1911.

—o—

It is said that the Liberal party will henceforth be controlled by the rank and file. Well, most of the men now undertaking the control of it are quite rank, but there does not seem to be much of the file left.

—o—

The leader of Buffalo's exclusive society is Mr. Fred Bonner-Hart-Stillman. Doubtless the gentleman lives in constant fear that a burglar will break into his house some night and steal the hyphens out of his name.

—o—

The Hon. Henry Gassoway Davis, of Rochester, N.Y., was injured in a horseback ride the other day, but as the young man is only 92 years old and once before was thrown quite hard, it is expected that he will quickly recover from his shake-up.

—o—

"The N. W. Rowell March," has made its appearance, and doubtless Liberal politicians expect it to be played at the head of the column after the general election when the forward movement is to be made on the pie counter.

—o—

The Rochester Temperance Federation has been holding a series of temperance meetings in Rochester, N. Y., and amongst other speakers we note the name of John L. Sullivan, the ex-pugilist, who addressed the closing meeting. John L. is now an ardent prohibitionist.

—o—

Colonel Goethals, who built the Panama canal is not a lawyer nor a statesman, so he opposes exemption of coast-wise ships from paying tolls because the canal needs the money. It will be remembered that the lunch counter man who charged Bill Nye $1.25 for a stale ham sandwich gave the same reason when asked to explain his action.

—o—

The Budget Speech.

The budget speech delivered by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons, will appeal to the people of Canada as a strong, sane analysis of business conditions and an intelligent grasp of the essential principles upon which the fiscal policy of the country is founded.

Tariff changes are few but important. They reveal the Government's determination to respect the uses of protection qualified by an equal determination to eliminate its abuses.

In the latter category may be included the duties on farm implements, which have been reduced in the case of reapers, binders and mowers, from 17½ per cent. to 12½ per cent. This is a reduction of 2½ per cent more than that provided in the reciprocity agreement and will go far towards healing the disappointment of the West over the Government's refusal to remove the duty from wheat.

The Canadian public does not need to be convinced that the farm implement industry can live and prosper with reduced duties and the Government's action in making a five per cent, reduction is indicative of its desire to avoid over protection as something quite as dangerous as under protection. This, indeed is the secret of preserving intact the principle of protection. The day tuat protection is permitted to give the producer undue advantage over the consumer that day its ceases to command public support and must inevitably visit upon the deserving beneficiaries of protective duties, the unpopularity provoked by the undeserving.

The Government is to be commended for refusing to be stampeded by Western agitators in the matter of free wheat.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer from Neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office says:—"One long year, the longest of my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evan's case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgial sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use, and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion Don't take anything but "Nerviline," which any dealer can supply in large 50c. family size bottles, or in a small 25c. trial size.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is enticely closed, Deafness is the reshlt, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THERE MUST BE A REASON.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir:—The United States Government has prohibited the use of alcoholic beverages in the Navy and all Navy yards. The Governments of England, France and Germany put up posters warning the people against drink. Nearly all the great railroads absolutely prohibit the use of alcohol in any form by their employees, and some of them dismiss a man who is seen going into or coming out of a barroom. Life Insurance Companies discriminate in favor of total abstainers. Mutual Benefit Associations refuse to admit to membership men who drink, and the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association refuses to admit any man who is employed about liquor in any way—even the driver of a brewery waggon. A young man seeking employment in any responsible situation is almost invariably asked "Do you drink? Do you smoke?" Even bartenders have their total abstinence societies. The day has come when there is little room for the man who drinks, except in the most menial occupations.

There must be a reason—some very great reason for all this, and yet many cling to the old custom of getting out the bottle and offering their friends a drink.

FRENCH AVIATORS KILLED

Dijon, France, June 6.—Two French army aviators, Lieut. Gironne and Sapper Rioux, were killed today while flying near here. Peasants watching an aeroplane which had risen from the military aviation station, and which was flying swiftly at an altitude of half a mile over the forest of Casquette, heard an explosion, and saw a burst of flame. A few moments later the fragments of the aeroplane to which the aviators were strapped, fell among the trees and the bodies of the men were found horribly burned and mutilated.

Hints on Beauty

Rest and Play in the Fields Revive Beauty

By Lucrezia Bori

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

LUCREZIA BORI

LISTEN when Nature calls you to come and play, and run away to the woods and live like the animals, eating simple food, sleeping under the star-studded sky, breathing life and vigor with each breath of fresh, pure air.

That is my message of vacation cheer to every woman—or man, either. It is not theoretical advice. It is a leaf from my Book of Experience. It is what I, my own self, do, whenever the singing season is over. Said a critic, on the last night of opera: "You sung as if inspired." "I was," said I: "freedom inspired me. Tomorrow I sing with the birds of the air."

Away I fly, the moment I am set free, to the Swiss lakes. There, in a simple peasant's dress I live out of doors. I run and row and make my mind and body a storehouse of health and happiness.

We cannot all go to the Swiss lakes, and it is well. There are so many beautiful places in the world, no one of earth's corners should be neglected.

But, dear girls, when the vacation time comes, if you want to gain health and beauty and rest, do what you can't do the rest of the year.

Rest from Tango.

If you have tangoed all winter in close rooms, go and dance like a woodland sprite on the green grass. If you have travelled in close cars between home and office, run away where there are no cars and no offices.

Better to hunt in fields for health unbought
Than fee the doctor for a nauseous draught

That's a good summer motto. Away to the fields and find beauty in fresh air and freedom, simple food and long sleeps.

For many years I wondered at the reason for May dew as a complexion beautifier. You know it is supposed to insure one a lovely skin for the entire year, if the face is bathed in the dew every one of the 31 May mornings, before the sun rises. Dew is soft, pure water, of course, but I am sure the real secret of the May dew cure is the early rising and the outdoor exercise. June, July, all the summer months, hold the same charm of beauty.

There is a patch of city greensward where I take Truly, my little dog, each day for his exercise. The moment he feels the ground under his feet he begins to run round and round on the little patch of ground, giving little yips of joy as he circles. Then he lies flat and drags himself along, almost burrowing into the earth. He is storing up the air and freedom and energy he needs to live till he gets another such chance. Wise little dog!

Setting Right Mistakes.

When we go out for a walk have we the same wisdom? Do we hold our heads up and our chests out and swing our arms and walk fast, breathing in perfect rhythm, or do we just stroll, without a thought of using the lungs and the muscles which were given us for service?

Stir up your blood by exercise and deep breathing and your complexion will take care of itself.

Dance—wild dances of sheer happiness and unrestraint—and your body will grow in grace and you will lose the slouch and become normal again.

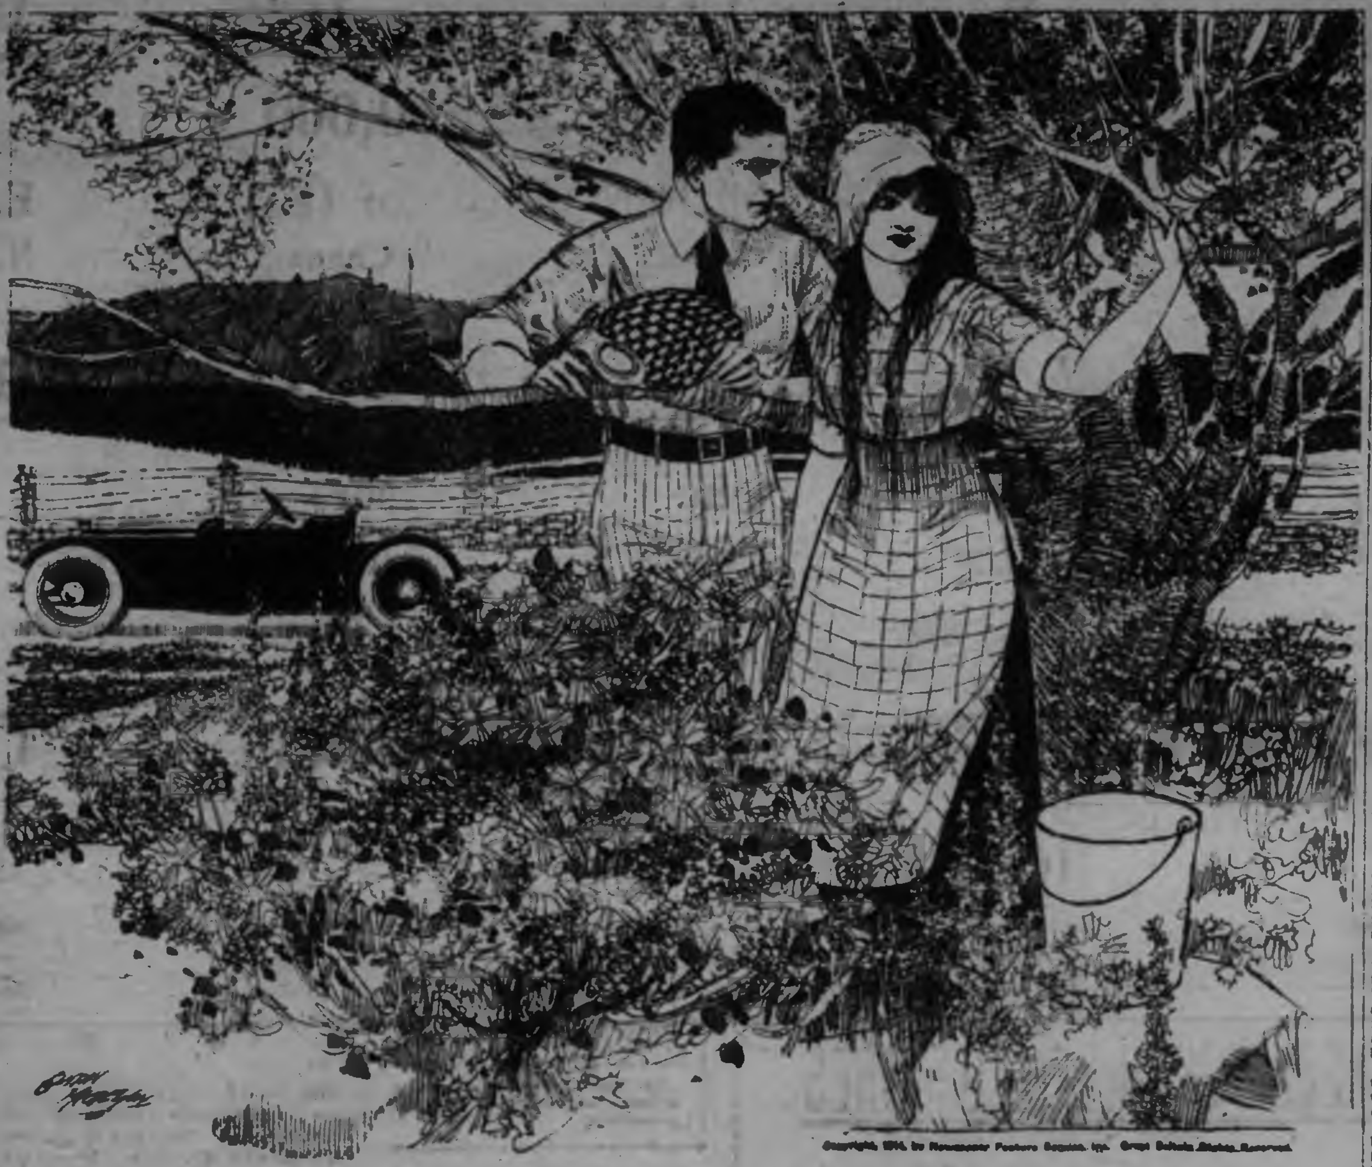
Eat simple, coarse food, and not too much of it, and you will not need anti-fat remedies.

Use the glorious summertime to set right the mistakes of the artificiality of winter life.

Says Ruskin, "All physical freedom is vain to produce beauty without a corresponding freedom of heart."

Set your heart free this summer and enjoy life.

ASKING THE WAY :: :: By Michelson



Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

NO young man in a car can be sure that he won't get lost, and no country girl who chances to be at a certain place at a certain time can be sure that such a young man won't ask her the way.

It makes a great difference HOW you ask the way, and it makes an equally great difference how you TELL.

The way of the world has been changed—the color of the flowers, the odor of the fields, the look of the sky have all been changed—by just such happenings as this.

What's a road map between friends? Especially between new friends who have just found that they live in the same universe?

Will the young man's car find that same wrong road again? Will it become the RIGHT road? The CAR isn't saying a word!

Animal Superstitions

German children in the mountains of Silesia devoutly believe that beetles are both deaf and blind.

In India there is an idea that a lion cannot be induced to attack a prince or any scion of a royal house.

In Wales it is believed that if any one kills a wren he will fall down and break a bone before the end of the year.

In France there is an idea that if a fisherman counts the fish he has caught he will catch no more during that day.

It is said that among the Mexican populace there is an idea that the lizard warns men of the approach of a serpent.

In England, Germany and Russia the country people generally believe that to meet a weasel is an extremely unlucky accident.

Many common people of England believe that the guinea pig has no ears. Its ears are very small and lie very close to the head.

In Egypt the natives believe that crocodiles cry and moan like men in distress in order to attract and make a prey of the unwary.

In parts of Austria and Italy there is a superstition that the human saliva is a cure for blindness. The idea probably originated in the miraculous healing of a blind man recorded in one of the gospels.

Youth and Age.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

DAD, I recall, was pretty busy that night, and mother was dining with us. I noticed as we three sat there at dinner how snowy mother's hair was growing.

Now, although it brings a choke to your throat to see those white hairs multiply, still there was something about it all that pleased me, too, for mother, thank God, is growing old serenely and gracefully, not with fretting and pathetic challenges to the world to ignore the lines. Mother is growing old honestly, with a beautiful sincerity that gives her greater beauty in my eyes than ever before. And yet, in view of certain happenings at our table that night I marvel somehow that more older women do not make fools of themselves and clutch frantically after the evanescent shadow of youth.

And the "certain happenings" at our table that night were my pretty young wife's attitude toward age. Whether or not Mary meant purposely to be cruel, whether or not she fancied her rounded loveliness enhanced by casual references to wrinkles and gray hair, or whether she was merely thoughtless and careless, I don't know. Certainly her occasional untactful remarks made me very uncomfortable.

For instance, there was some talk of an aunt of Mary's.

"She's just growing old and cranky!" exclaimed Mary. "That's all there is the matter with her."

"How old is she, Mary?" asked mother.

"Dear me," said Mary, with much the air she might have used in speaking of a human century plant, "she's past 40. She used to be very pretty, but now she's getting wrinkles and gray hair." Mary shrugged, but I boiled inwardly. It's the sort of thing I've often noticed younger women say in the presence of older ones, and I can never make out whether it is actuated by spite or vanity. I packed it away in my mind for future reference.

"Mary," I said heatedly, after dad had called for mother and they had both gone home, "I think it's distinctly bad taste to make slighting references to age in the presence of a woman who is no longer young!"

Mary tossed her head airily.

"Your mother ought not to be ashamed of her age," she said defiantly.

"She isn't!" I said. "And she's growing old sanely. She isn't dyeing her hair and beginning to forget dates like your mother."

"Don't be coarse, Peter," said Mary. "And don't speak of my mother please in such an insulting tone."

"You practically insulted my mother at dinner," I flung back, "and it makes me furious every time I think of it."

"Your mother's been scolding, hasn't she?" accused Mary. "Old women are always jealous of youth. Hadn't you noticed that?"

"I've noticed," said I wrathfully, "that young women are invariably cruel in their attitude toward older ones. Great Scott, Mary, don't you realise that you're going to have wrinkles and gray hair one of these days? How will you like some young snip of a girl to make slighting references to age and wrinkles then? And the other night you turned up your nose and said John Gruner's wife was old and fat. What do you call old, Mary?"

"Oh," said Mary, "thirty or so."

"My Lord!" I exclaimed, and glanced with some interest at this pretty wife of mine, foreseeing a change of ideas.

In her early twenties Mary considered 30 old. In the late twenties that same 30 years would begin to appear ridiculously young. Then likely she'd push the age limit off to 40, and in the late thirties 40 would seem considerably more youthful than it ever had before.

What a peculiar sense of personal immortality each individual has! Every young woman glancing in the mirror at her round, rosy cheeks and bright eyes speaks in the presence of older women as if she had some special dispensation of Providence that would grant her alone immortal youth.

Mary broke in on my revery.

"Anyway," Mary was saying, "when a woman is actually old she ought to admit it."

I smiled. What a lot of heartaches are ahead for Mary. She isn't as good a philosopher as mother is.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

FIGS are not as well known in the average household as they deserve to be, for they are the most delicious and wholesome of fruits and may be served in a variety of ways.

Served in their natural state for the table, they should be simply washed, drained and chilled.

Stewed figs used as a filling for thin bread and butter sandwiches are always welcomed by children, and cut in dainty forms make a palatable between-meals lunch.

An oriental way of serving figs is to steam them with rice as follows:

STEAMED FIGS AND RICE.

Thoroughly wash a large cupful of rice and cook in plenty of boiling water until it is tender. About 20 minutes is the usual time. Wash the figs, cut in quarters, place them in a sieve over a saucepan of boiling water and steam for 15 minutes. Butter a mould and pack in the rice tightly, let it stand over hot water for 10 minutes, turn carefully on a hot platter, arrange the figs about the base and serve with hard sauce flavored with lemon.

Here is another delicious fig dessert:

STEAMED FIG PUDDING.

One cup chopped figs, half a cup of chopped suet, three eggs, [illegible] cups of soft bread crumbs, half a cup of milk, one cup brown sugar, one teaspoonful salt.

Soak the bread crumbs in the milk and add [illegible] figs and suet chopped together, add the other ingredients and pour in a well buttered [illegible] mould and steam four hours. Any foam sauce may be used with this, or here is an appropriate sauce:

Mix a cup of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of milk and two of wine and heat in a double boiler to a moderate temperature, then add slowly to half a cup of creamed butter.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I met a young man last summer, rather I had known him for a long time, but we began going together last summer. He always treated me nicely, and took me to entertainments, yet I believe I never fully appreciated it, for under the influence of some ill-meaning girls, as I later found, I wrote him a letter asking him to quit calling. Now I realise what I have done, and that I do care very much for him, and good friends have told me he still cares for me.

What shall I do? I have no proof for his wanting to go with me only his looks, which are kind, and what my friends tell me. ANXIOUS.

WELL, poor little Anxious, you got yourself into a fine affair, didn't you, just by doing what some mischievous acquaintances were determined to make you do.

I'm afraid I shouldn't think very much of your affection if I were that young man.

What is the matter with you, anyway? Don't you know your own mind?

Couldn't you see that those girls were jealous because your sweetheart really did love you?

You foolish little girl you, to let any one make mischief between you and one who truly loves you.

What shall you do now that you have brought this trouble upon yourself? How can you ask such a question?

You have been foolish and weak and unkind. Why don't you write the man a note and tell him so.

You found it easy enough to write him the other letter which made him so miserable.

Write him a letter, little girl; write him a letter this moment; tell him the truth, the plain truth and nothing but the truth.

Tell him you are sorry and ashamed and heart-broken—and then wait for his answer.

From what you say I don't think it will be long in coming.

Annie Laurie

The "Master's Cat"

CHARLES DICKENS was a lover of animals, and like all true lovers he was likely to become the slave of his pets. Willamina, a little white cat, was a favorite with the entire household, but showed an especial devotion to its master. She selected a corner of his study for her kittens, and brought them in from the kitchen one by one. Mr. Dickens had them taken away again, but Williamina only brought them quietly back. Again they were removed, but the third time of their return she did not leave them in the corner. Instead, she placed them at her master's feet, and taking her stand beside them, looked imploringly up at him. That settled the question. Thereafter the kittens belonged to the study, and they made themselves royalty at home, swarming up the curtains, playing about the writing table, and scampering behind the bookshelves.

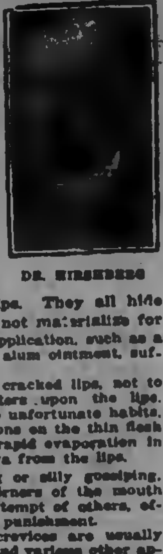
Most of the family were given away; only one remained, entirely deaf, and known, from her devotion to Dickens, as "the master's cat." This little creature followed him about like a dog, and sat beside him while he wrote.

One evening Dickens was reading by a small table whereon stood a lighted candle. As usual, the cat was at his elbow. Suddenly the light went out. Dickens was much interested in his book, and he proceeded to relight the candle, stroking the cat as he did so. Afterward he remembered that puss had looked at him somewhat reproachfully while she received the caress. It was only when the light again became dim that the reason of her melancholy suddenly dawned upon him. Turning quickly, he found her deliberately putting out the candle with her paw, and again she looked at him appealingly. She was lonesome; she wanted to be petted, and this was her device for gaining her end.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why a Kiss Is Dangerous; How to Cure Cracked Lips

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

YOU ne'er saw nectar on a lip, but where your own did hope to sip. Yet there are full many a pair of luscious lips that guard more venomous tongues and more germs than lurk in the mouth of a fly.

House flies, you know, have dirty lips, which inclose a wire-like tongue. This complicated tongue of the house fly looks like a wire bread toaster. Myriads of hollow wires go to form the tongue.

From this gyrating surface the fly spreads its saliva over the sugar, bread, butter, milk and your other fodder. Flies cannot eat solid food, so nature has provided them with this mechanism to liquefy everything first with the germ-full saliva.

One fly spoils the pudding, and all your groaning dishes, even if you kill that lone fly an hour afterward. There are no ripe cherries on the most tempting fly lips. They all hide deadly poisons, which, like tuberculosis and cancer, may not materialize for a score of years. Human saliva, true enough, is a necessary aid to digestion. All saliva contains microbes, especially the bacteria of pneumonia, bronchitis, blood-poisoning, tonsilitis and others.

Perhaps each man and woman acquires a sort of immunity to the germs in his or her own saliva and thus escapes disease until exposed to some one else's saliva.

Those ancient medical men called the ephemerides made a deep study of the human saliva. They describe a blue saliva in certain persons. This might have been due to blue pus or the blue pigment germ, bacillus pyocyaneus. Copper and other poisons might have done this also.

Dr. Marcellus Donatus describes a woman of 60 whose saliva was green, yet she remained always in good health. It turned out that she had been in the habit of biting her lead pencils. Accidentally a bit of indelible green lead lodged in a hollow tooth and the aniline dye kept staining her saliva for many moons. The eminent Dr. Paget relates a similar instance.

Red saliva, violet saliva, yellow saliva, purple saliva, as well as brown and iridescent colors, have been reported. These have been traced to such germs as the bacillus violaceus, or violet-making pigment microbes. There is no actual ailment present, only the odd-looking saliva.

Often the very lips, fair as a spout to tumble pearls and diamonds out, contain a secret danger which only subsequent events may disclose.

Little red veins, swollen and like a blood blister, often appear upon the lips. An irritating saliva may cause this, or biting the lips may be responsible.

Some astringent application, such as a styptic pencil or an alum ointment, suffices to cure it.

Chapped lips and cracked lips, not to mention fever blisters upon the lips, may be traceable to unfortunate habits, to fevers, to infections on the thin flesh of the lips, to the rapid evaporation in the cold air of saliva from the lips.

Too much talking or silly gossiping, which keeps the corners of the mouth puckered up, in contempt of others, often brings this just punishment.

The cracks and crevices are usually cured by glycerine and various other appropriate lotions. These heal as well as assuage the pain.

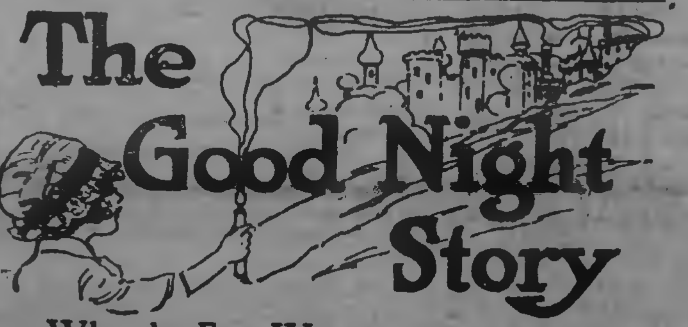
Wood Violets

I KNOW a wood that is blue with sweet violets,
Breathing their delicate breath to the breeze.
Poets have sung them in delicate triolets,
Claiming no violets sweeter than these.
Poets have sung them in sonnet and madrigal
. . . . . . Under the trees.

Many an artist has sat with the blue of them,
Watching them stir to the kiss of the breeze,
Striving to catch for his canvas the hue of them,
Sighing despairingly under the trees.
Sighs for his picture . . . . for Nature has painted them
. . . . . . Fairer than these.

But when I murmur the rhythmical triolets,
Sonnets or madrigals, soft as the breeze,
Lying before me are beautiful violets. . . . .
Fanciful violets, blue as the seas.
Poetry only could capture the spell of them
. . . . . . Under the trees.



The Good Night Story

Who the Frog Was—By VERNON MERRY

ONCE upon a time there was a king who had three sons. Two of them were very handsome and witty, but the youngest did not talk much, and so was called Simple by all the people at his father's court.

At last, when the king grew old, he began to think that he had not chosen which of his sons would rule his kingdom when he died. He sent for them, and said: "Whichever of you will bring me the finest carpet shall be king after my death."

At once they prepared to start out in the world in search of wonderful carpets, and, in order that there might be no dispute, each blew a feather into the air. One flew to the east, another to the west, but the one of the youngest son fell to the ground at his feet. Away went the two brothers, laughing at Simple because he had to remain.

Feeling very sad, Simple sat down, but presently, looking around, he noticed a trap door in the ground near where his feather lay. He quickly lifted it up, and, to his surprise, saw a flight of stone steps, which he descended to a door.

When he knocked the door opened of itself, and Simple saw a large frog seated in the centre of a room with a lot of little frogs around her. She asked what he wanted.

"I have a great wish for the most beautiful carpet in the world," he said. The big frog called to the little ones:

Little frogs, crooked legs, run everywhere;
Bring me the large bag that hangs over there.

From this she gave the young man a wonderful carpet so fine that nothing on earth could equal it. He thanked her and hastened to his father.

Meanwhile, his brothers, believing that he would not get anything, had not gone to much trouble. Each of them appeared at court with a shepherd's plaid cloth for a carpet.

The king was very angry at them for their laziness, but was delighted with the gift of Simple. "My kingdom belongs to my youngest son," he announced.

Bright and early the next day Simple went to the trap door to thank the frog again for her kindness. She was glad to see him, but, when he asked what he could give her in return, she said:

"Would you marry me and make me your queen?"

"Yes," he answered; then added, "if you ever become human."

What was his surprise to see almost at once a beautiful princess standing before him. "The spell a witch put on me was broken the minute you said, 'yes,'" she told him.

His father rejoiced again when he saw the beautiful princess, and there was a great feast at the castle when they were married. Even the brothers were happy and proud of their new, wonderful queen.

AN UNDERGROUND FARM

Robert Smith Finds It Pays to Farm in a Cave

Probably the most unique farm in the world is located in Missouri, seventy-five feet underground, near the city of Springfield. True, there are small caves in France devoted to the growth of mushrooms, but the Missouri cavern produces not only mushrooms, but rhubarb and celery in quantities, to say nothing of frogs in season. It is owned and farmed by Robert Smith, who finds his labors highly profitable. Throughout the year the cavern, through which flows a gentle stream, maintains a temperature of sixty degrees. It is devoid of undue dampness and is freshened with a steady current of air. A number of years ago Smith went farm-hunting, and finally selected the property which he made one of the exceptional places in the world. It was necessary to carry great quantities of rich earth into the cavern after the owner decided to go in for mushrooms. This venture proving successful, he experimented with rhubarb, and then found the underground farm an excellent place in which to bleach celery. Both rhubarb and celery are transplanted after obtaining a good start outside. The frogs are caught in a netted pond at the mouth of the cave.

Uses For a Corn-popper

The uses that an ordinary wire corn-popper can be put to are many, where one can have a good bed of live coals, either in a furnace, grate, or stove. By placing slices of bread in it, one can have excellent toast in a few moments. Its use is equally good for broiling a choice bit of meat or for toasting "wieners." The safety with which it can be used on account of the long handle makes working with it a pleasure as well as a convenience.

To Peel Boiled Eggs

When eggs are to be peeled for egg salad or deviled eggs boil them in salt water. The salt cracks the shell somewhat and loosens it from the egg.

WITHIN AN ANT HILL

Tiny Insects Have Their Homes Carefully Planned

When you step on an ant hill you crush ruthlessly a complicated architectural structure far more wonderful in its way, than a modern skyscraper. Entering the hill at the hole in the top an invader instantly encounters a soldier ant, always on guard. The first floor is the guardroom. Floor 2, counting downwards, is the summer sleeping room for the workers. In the third floor the workers live and dine. No. 4 is storage room, while the fifth floor provides the barrack for the ants' standing army.

They form the guard for the queen who lives and lays her eggs on the floor below. Next—floor 7—come the storage rooms of fodder and grain for the milch-cows—the aphids, who suck up "milk" from blades of grass with their feet, so that the ant milkmaids can afterwards "milk" them by sticking their legs until a drop of "milk" falls. Other little insects collect honey, and are "milked" in the same way.

The stables where they are kept, are shown on floor 8. Then, below the earth we come to the ninth floor, the nurseries, where the milk and honey which the milkmaids have secured is handed over to the baby ants, just hatched as larvae, from eggs. Below—floors 10 and 11—are other nurseries, where the baby ants are cared for in various stages of their growth.

Next we find the winter quarters of the ant kingdom, and on the same floor is the graveyard; for the ant city in a hill is complete even to a cemetery. Last of all is the queen's winter apartment.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

First Hospital in 370

Hospitals were originally hospitia for the reception of travelers. Among the earliest hospitals were the one founded by Valens in Caesarea in 370, and that built at Rome in the time of St. Jerome. The earliest date of a hospital in England is 1080, when Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, founded two, one for leprosy and one for ordinary diseases.

One at Jerusalem, built by the Knights of St. John in 1113, had accommodations for 2000 inmates, with an infirmary. Of the first of English hospitals was St. Bartholomew's. It was built as a priory in 1102; handed over to the citizens of [illegible] in 1547, and rebuilt in [illegible].

Bethlehem [illegible] a priory built in 1247, was given to [illegible] Henry [illegible] for the reception of the insane. This is the oldest hospital for the insane in Europe, with the exception of the one in [illegible].

Love came at dawn, when all the world was fair,
When crimson glories, bloom and song were rife:
Love came at dawn, when hope's wings fanned the air,

Love came at even when the day was done,
When heart and brain were tired and slumber pressed;
Love came at eve, shut out the sinking sun,

TYPES OF IMMIGRANTS

Some Advice to Newcomers From the Old Land

A Montreal gentleman related his experience with two types of immigrants. One, when asked what he would do for a living, said he was in no hurry. He had a little money to spend. He would visit the lakes and Niagara Falls. His money would last him for a month or two, and when his funds got low he would settle down.

The other looked for a job on the day he landed in Montreal and got one within three days. "Meeting him recently, he told me he was getting on splendidly. In the short time he had been working in Montreal he had saved $50, and hoped to add to his pile at a quicker rate during the summer."

We don't blame the first young man for wanting to see something of the new country. But "looking around" is apt to become a habit; and the money spent on a two months' holiday would be a huge comfort in the bank, and would make the young man a little more independent of his employers. Canada also is a place where labor is movable and where men are likely to see a good deal of the country in the course of their employment.

We do not by any means advise the newcomer to stick in the first place he happens to land in. This is a new and big country, with many opportunities. But the new arrival should as soon as possible get in touch with the business and industry of the country and so learn what the opportunities are. The quest for adventure and sight-seeing may be combined with employment and [illegible] result [illegible] employment.

A THREE-HOUR BOUT

The Great "Hack" Tells of His Hardest Mat Struggle

"In the course of a lengthy career as both an amateur and professional wrestler," says George Hackenschmidt, the famous wrestler, in the Strand, "I have taken part in so many strenuous bouts on the mat that I find it a matter of extreme difficulty to pin myself down to one performance as being my best. However, after carefully running over my record, I think I must give my vote to my success in the great Budapest tournament.

"In this important Continental tournament I defeated Albert de Paris in five minutes, Aimable in 25 minutes, and Vandenberg in 24 minutes. 'So far,' I remember thinking at the time, 'things seem fairly easy for me.' Then came my bout with the famous Turk Kara Ahmed. The struggle which followed I shall never forget as long as I live. For three solid hours we wrestled and wrestled, until it seemed as if the contest would go on far into the night. At one moment Kara Ahmed seemed to be possessed of a winning advantage; then positions were reversed, and I looked to be 'top dog.' At the end of the third hour we were both almost as strong as at the start, but at last I saw a favorable opportunity. With the quickness of a panther I seized it, and in a trice the Turk's mountain of shoulders were planned to the ground."

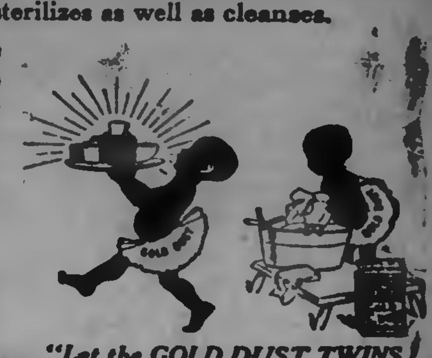
To Prevent Rust

By applying kerosene with a rag to your stoves when putting them away for the summer, you will prevent their rusting. Treat garden implements the same way when you lay them aside for the winter.



You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend, in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

being at the rate of 8.30 p.c. upon the average paid-up Capital and Reserve Fund.
There was received from Shareholders by way of Premium upon Net Stock the sum of	211,830.82
(The receipt of this sum was anticipated in 1913 by a charge against Profit and Loss Account to credit of Reserve Account so as to make that account $7,000,000 and it is now properly re-credited to Profit and Loss Account.)
There was brought from 1913, the balance of Profit and Loss Account	1,003,988.55

It is with the deepest regret that we announce the death of our late colleague, Sir William Whyte, who passed away, after a painful illness, on the 14th April, 1914. Although Sir William Whyte could not be a regular attendant at the meetings of the Board in Toronto, yet his care and watchfulness of the interests of the Bank at Winnipeg and throughout the Northwest were of great service to the Bank, and have always been highly appreciated.

Under the Bank Act (1913) you will for the first time, be called upon to appoint auditors for the Bank and to fix their remuneration.

The Head Office and Branches of the Bank, now numbering 127, have been carefully inspected during the year, and your Directors have much pleasure in testifying to the faithfulness and efficiency of the staff.

The whole respectfully submitted.

CLEARS THE HEAD, OPENS THE NOSTRILS STOPS SNEEZING, CURES CATARRH

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully; the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally, this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing Dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuff or spray. Such treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhozone the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapor of Catarrhozone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic, no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America, who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of Catarrh is to use Catarrhozone."

ENGLISH PRELATE APPEALS FOR SETTLEMENT, HOME RULE

Archbishop of York Asks All Politicans to Rise Above Party--On Home Rule Question

London, June 8.—On the eve of the reassembling of Parliament a remarkable letter appears with a question Dr. Lang not only holds an exalted from Dr. Lang, Archbishop of York. position as a prelate, but his Grace has the credit among thinking men of exceptional clear-sightedness. His views, no doubt, carry additional respects because he invariably shows extreme deliberation in putting them into print.

"Thousands of thoughtful citizens" writes Dr. Lang, "at this critical moment, appeal to members and especially leaders of all parties, to lift this grave, insistent problem of Home Rule out of the entanglements of party pride and policy, and face it afresh with resolute determination to seek peace to aid it. I venture, as one, who by virtue of his office, stands outside the region of political party, to give voice to this appeal. We feel there has been enough and to spare of manoeuvring and recrimination.

"We have watched with anxiety, indeed dismay, chances of settlement, offered only, apparently, to be refused. It seems plain that if either of the great political parties is chiefly concerned in satisfying its own pride or damaging its rival, nothing but disaster can happen to the country. We ask that the facts of the problem should be faced with an honest desire to make proposals and which will neither ignore nor evade them. For example, it seems plain if the public peace is to be preserved some from the exclusion of Ulster is an immediate necessity."

And Forty Schooners Wrecked on the Shores of New Brunswick

Quebec, June 8.—About 40 fishing schooners were lost with a loss of life numbering about 20, such is the disaster caused last Friday night, by a severe storm that swept the coast of Northern New Brunswick and Chaleurs Bay.

Twenty fishermen are reported to be drowned and of these eight bodies were taken to Caraquet, N.B., this morning. All the recovered bodies are those of French-Canadians and Acadian fishermen.

Considerable damage in property was caused along the coast and in Chaleurs Bay.

MR. SODEN'S PLATFORM ENTIRELY SATISFACTORY TO GOVERNMENT

The Hon. Dr. Pyne Thus Assures The Conservative Candidate

Mr. Soden, the candidate of the Conservative party in West Peterborough for the Provincial Legislature, went to Toronto yesterday morning to see the Conservative Executive for the purpose of securing one of the members of the Cabinet to speak for him. In order to quiet all rumors as to the acceptability of his platform Mr. Soden laid it before Dr. Pyne who thoroughly approved of it and said Mr. Soden was entitled to have a perfectly free hand in temperance matters, as the policy of Sir James Whitney is and has been from the beginning to give the people temperance legislation in accordance with ed. Sir James has repeatedly said to the people "if you want advanced legislation, send me men here to support it and I will give it to you," and Mr. Soden comes in under that provision.

Mr. Soden's temperance platform goes as far as the most ardent temperance reformer could wish and is consistent with the principles laid down by Sir James, although not with the policy actually in practice at the present time. In all other respects Mr. Soden is at one with the ing to his friends to find that he has thus received the full endorsement Government, and it is very gratify- Peterborough and of the Government both of the Conservatives of West which they support. Meetings will be held at once throughout the Riding. Announcements will be made at once through the press. The Hon. Mr. Lucas will address a public meeting in Mr. Soden's interests in the near future.

One ounce of mercolized wax obtainable at any drugstore, is sufficient to completely remove a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off early in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form a good astringent lotion should be used. Dissolve 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in this during the heat of the day or before going out for theatre or social affair, it is a remarkable skin tightener and wrinkle [illegible].

PORTO RICO COFFEE

Washington, D.C., June 8.— The coffee raised in our island possession, Porto Rico, is in great demand abroad, and the foreign market places it at the top of the price list, of coffees from all over the world, according to experts at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Porto Rican Experiment Station. However, the people of the United States have developed a taste for a different kind of coffee, and the preference of a great many people will have to be changed in order to obtain a larger market for Porto Rican coffee in this country. The cost of changing the acquired taste of the American seems too great to justify the attempt so long as such excellent prices are obtained elsewhere for the product.

During the past year, says the newly issued annual report of the department's station in Porto Rico, the value of the exports of coffee amounted to a great deal more than they ever have since the American occupation. Better cultivation and higher prices have enabled the coffee industry to show great progress, and planters are now following better practices in the selection of their seed for planting. The department's station is introducing so-called "Java" and other coffees which are yielding better than native coffee and giving a higher percentage of large and uniform grains. The coffee is grown for distribution to planters on the island and has been resulting in greater yields as well as in better prices for the planters.

Of the coffee exported during the past year $8,378,846 worth went to 970 worth went to the United States. Although today there exists a benefit of tariff, the coffee is still fol foreign countries while only $122,- lowing the old lines of trade established by tariff laws during the Spanish regime. It is a marked indication of the truth that trade established upon preference of taste for a certain product is a most difficult one to change. However, association and individuals are still striving to extend the market and to gain even a higher reputation for the coffee of Porto Rico.

The grapefruit industry which started from nothing ten years ago is now thriving in Porto Rico and promises good returns to the man with perseverance, industry, and personal supervision. Porto Rico is safe from frosts that threaten the industry on the mainland and is at the open door of the best market in the world— New York and the eastern seaboard. The grapefruit industry represents the highest type of intensive farming and is sure to increase to a much greater extent in Porto Rico as the trees which are already planted come into bearing.

There is considerable planting of [illegible] in Porto Rico and there are extensive areas yet where these trees may be profitably set out.

STEAMERS INSPECTED

Government Steamboat Inspector Issues Certificate to the Manita.

Yesterday, Mr. William Evans, of Toronto, Dominion Government Inspector of steamers, was in the city in connection with the new steamer Manita, and issued a certificate for the season. This boat is thoroughly new having been thoroughly rebuilt through the past winter. Mr. Evans complimented Shipbuilder Hickey on the splendid work he has accomplished and also Captain White on the way the boat has been fitted out. The machinery is specially creditable to Captain White and works without the least noise or vibration. The Manita can now be classed as one of the speediest and safest boats on the Trent Waters.

The steamer Water Lily which will be launched in a few days was also inspected. This popular boat will be ready for the season's work in the course of a few days. Messrs. J. W. Hickey & Sons also had the contract for reconstructing this boat. Mr. Evans spoke highly of the work done on the latter named boat.

ASHES WILL REPOSE ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Remains of Mrs. R. L. Stevenson to Repose Beside Bodyof Husband

Los Angeles, June 8.—In fulfilment of her last wish, the ashes of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson will repose beside the body of her husband on the summit of Mount Vaea, Samoa. This was made public here today on the authority of Mrs. Isabel Strong, daughter of Mrs. Stevenson Before the door of the tomb will be inscribed the last stanza of Stevenson verse to his wife:

"Teacher, tender comrade, wife.
"Fellow farer, true through life
"Heart whole, and soul free.
"The August Father gave to me."

To this tomb there will be no means of access, except a rough mountain path. When the will of Mrs. Stevenson, who died in Santa Barbara some months ago, is settled, her children, Mrs. Strong and Lloyd Osbourne, will take her ashes to Samoa. The ashes are now in San Francisco.

Grants Audience to General Bramwell Booth at Palace.

London June 8.—King George today received in audience General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, who had been requested to go to Buckingham palace to give his Majesty the details of the forthcoming International Congress of Salvationists.

The King expressed his warm hope that the congress would be productive of great and lasting good, and declared that he was a thorough admirer of the work of the Salvation Army.

PETES DEFEAT TORONTO IN A TEN INNINGS GRIND, 4-3

Quite a large number of fans were present yesterday at Riverside Park to witness the game between Peterborough and Toronto. The game opened up real snappy and the crowd were treated to an excellent exhibition of ball. Tracey started the pitching for the Petes and Roberts did the twirling for the visitors.

The game yesterday was of a different class than that we have been reading about while the team were travelling, and although a few errors crept into the game, the boys worked hard to a finish. Tracey was replaced by Sterling in the sixth innings, after Swartling battled for him. The boys pounded Roberts for eight hits, while the visitors were credited with nine. Roberts was taken out in the sixth innings and replaced by Galm. The exhibition lasted ten innings, the score being tie in the ninth, 3—3, the winning run was scored by King.

Kelly was in his usual good form and kept the boys on the jump all the time.

Today is ladies day at the Park and it is expected that a record crowd will be on hand.

DYNAMITE THROWN INTO ROOM

Kingston, N. Y., June 8.— Three sticks of dynamite thrown mysteriously into a bedroom occupied by Mrs. Rarwin Hinckley and her two daughters early today exploded and seriously injured two of them. One of the daughters, Violet Winchell, escaped unhurt, but the other, Rena Hinckley was badly burned and Mrs. Hinckley received injuries which may result in blindness.

Before the explosion Mrs. Hinckley and her two daughters were awakened by hearing something drop in the room. As they got up to investigate, a blinding explosion prove them against the wall.

The Hinckleys occupy the ground floor of the house. Other tenants in the house were thrown from their beds by the explosion and received minor injuries.

LEFT HUSBAND AFTER THREE MONTHS; NOW ASKS DIVORCE

Buffalo, June 8.—Married in 1910 and living with her husband but 3 months, Lillian Dell Lee commenced an action for divorce from her husband, Ralph Lee, in special term of County Court to-day. The plaintiff told Justice Pond that she was married in Niagara Falls, Ont., and after leaving her husband came to this city, where she has lived since. Her husband remained in Canada.

Alfred G. Landreth, clerk at the Park Hotel, testified that Lee, whom he recognized by a photograph, came to the hotel with another woman on April 3th last. The court reserved decision.

"ME AND GOD" HIS ONLY WITNESSES, PRIDE SAYS

Lockport, June 8.—Considerable amusement was created in county court today, when John Pride, colored, on trial for the alleged shooting of Robert Crutcher, also colored, at Niagara Falls, was asked how many witnesses he was likely to call. The prosecutor said he had nine witnesses and Pride, when called upon by Chas. K. Cromley, his counsel, who had just been retained to defend him and knew nothing of the case, said his witnesses were "Me and God."

Question of Church Union Has Divided Members of the Assembly

Woodstock, June 8.—That a well organised fight will be waged on the question of Church Union, was indicated this morning by the many interruptions during Rev. Dr. Clark's explanation of the finding of the Church Union Committee. Dr. Clark continued his report this morning from Saturday, and presented in detail the recommendations of the majority and the minority. When Dr. Clark was presenting his views on the minority report, interruptions were frequently heard from various parts of the assembly.

Rev. Dr. Campbell, of Montreal, Clerk of the Assembly, objected to Dr. Clark presenting views on the minority side and asserted that the minority men were better able to present the case themselves.

Dr. Clark made a powerful plea for Church Union.

Must Keep Faith.

"If we don't proceed along the lines indicated by the majority report, we are breaking faith with the Methodists and Congregational Church," he declared, "but it is common knowledge that an organization has been working since last fall to stop the movement for union."

"We have not arrived," continued the speakers, "at the stage where we are separated into party and party. I ask you not to be carried away by a feeling that you must stand by a party."

TARS OF GOOD SHIP SPAGHETTI RELEASED

Gulfport, Miss., June 8.—The eight sailors who quit the Italian vessel Gaspar S. because they couldn't make their stomachs happy with spaghetti, and wine, have been released following a hearing before Captain John Paoli, who acted for the Italian consul. Six of them went back to the Gaspar S., but two would not return. Instead of so much oil of joy and the Italian's favorite dish being the bone of contention, it was shown that no cook was provided by the master of the vessel. The best imitation of a cook was the first mate. Then an ordinary seaman was installed in the kitchen. His efforts were even worse than the mate's, and wounded by the criticism that was hurled at him he left the kitchen to take care of itself. Existence on the boat became a question of serious concern. It was spaghetti at every turn and crook easily cooked and plentiful. Eight of the tars who signed with the boat referred the captain to the articles calling for beef and other substantial accompaniments. No cook, no beef meant no work, and the master's troubles began. After the hearing he agreed to hire a cook, and forthwith rallied a crew and started his craft's nose towards Sunny Italy with a cargo of lumber.

CROWDS UNPRECEDENTED JOIN ARMY IN MOURNING ITS DEAD

Toronto Streets Massed With Citizens Saturday for Funeral of Empress Salvationist Victims; Twenty Thousand Attend Meetings

Toronto, June 8.—Crowds such as Toronto has not seen in many years on any such occasion gathered Saturday and yesterday at the funeral and memorial services held by the Salvation Army for their sixteen dead in the Empress of Ireland disaster.

The funeral procession was witnessed by well over a hundred thousand people at the Saturday and Sunday services. As early as eight o'clock yesterday morning crowds were lined up outside Massey Hall waiting for the door to open. Following the funeral of the previous afternoon the flood of humanity suddenly turned loose on the downtown section of the city, filled homegoing cars for two hours, and left the sidewalks crowded far beyond their usual Saturday afternoon congestion.

Yesterday's afternoon meeting at the Arena was attended by well over five thousand and was presided over by Lieutenant-Governor Sir John Gibson. On the platform were the Salvation Army officers his Worship the Mayor, Controller McCarthy, the Hon. Dr. Pyne, Hon. J. J. Foy, Dr. Conboy, Mr. Thos. B. Coombs, the Rev. Albert T. Hall, Rev. W. Brewing and Mr. Walter J. Barr.

While the massed bands played "Nearer My God to Thee," Commissioner Thos. McKie, Head Quarters. Staff, and the public representatives, led by Sir John Gibson, entered the Arena and with bowed heads took their places on the platform.

CAME TO GET DIVORCE BUT STORY DELAYS IT

Buffalo, June 8.—Otto Ruhman, who says he lives in New York city came to Buffalo yesterday to get a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Minnie Ruhman, but because he admitted he had heard of her alleged infidelity seven years ago and had not tried to prove it until recently, Justice Pound reserved decision until the testimony is transcribed. They were married in Hanover, Germany, in 1895.

Konrad Houseman, named as correspondent, was a witness for Ruhman He admitted having lived with Mrs. Ruhman at No. 681 Michigan street from October, 1906, to February, 1914.

"When did you first learn your wife was living with Houseman?", asked Justice Pound of the plaintiff.

"I heard it seven years ago, but didn't bother about it until last January," replied Ruhman.

AVIATOR VIDART BACK TO EARTH TO STAY

Paris, June 8.—One of the foremost of French airmen, Rene Vidart, is retiring from aviation disappointed. That there is no longer either money or glory in professional aviation is the conclusion arrived at by Vidart after four years of activity.

To celebrate his retirement Vidart looped the loop 15 consecutive times and then came to earth to remain there. He will devote his time in the future to automobile racing and to big game shooting, for after the dangers of the high air, according to Vidart, a man has lost all taste for the humdrum pursuits of life.

STOLEN GEMS RECOVERED AT ST. JOHNSBURY

St. Johnsbury, Vt., June 8.—Jewelry valued at $1600 stolen from the store of Randall & Whitcomb last week was recovered by Deputy Sheriff W.H. Worthen to-day. The man alleged to have committed the burglary was arrested, but his name was witheld. Sheriff Worthen said that the man confessed and showed him where the jewelry was hidden.

ROSY AND PLUMP.
Good Health From Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The Doctor recommended milk, half water but it was not sufficiently nourishing.

"A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cream. The result was really marvellous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and today is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen.

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least the value of this great food."

CANADA'S BIG PART AS RUGBY TEACHER

American Colleges Get Their First Pointers in Great English Game Here

According to the Encyclopedia Americana, football, developed as it now stands, was originally introduced into American colleges by Harvard, whose team, having visited Canada and played under the Canadian rules, became enamored of the style of English Rugby, and although in 1875 as a matter of consideration for the ancient rival, Yale, Harvard agreed to compromise between what was then known as American football and English Rugby, in the next year, 1876 both teams adopted the Rugby Union rules as they stood at that day.

The article goes on to point out that from the above genesis the game has evolved into the highly specialized, intricate, and scientific game of to-day.

While Rugby got a new lease of life and its name, at the great English public school, it far from originated there. It is in fact, if not the oldest, at least one of the oldest of games.

History describes a similar game popular among the ancient Greeks and Romans.

In William Fitsstephen's "History of London" (1175), the game of football is mentioned. Edward III. forbade the playing of football in 136 on the ground that it, in common with certain other sports interfered with the practice of archery. For the same reason Richard II. endeavored to abolish it in 1388.

Up to the first of the last century it remained exclusively a "common" sport never being indulged in by the aristocracy or gentry. No clubs or code of rules had been formed, and the sole aim seems to have been to drive the ball through the opposite side's goal by fair means or foul.

In 1830, on account of the ill-repute, it died out among the masses and for the ensuing years was sustained by the great public schools. In 1880, with the institution of amateur athletic sports, came a recrudescence of football. Rules were compiled and standardized, and in 1871 the first Rugby Football Union was inaugurated.

In Canada, as in England, Rugby football has had a somewhat tempestuous career. It was not until the fall of 1882 that the first Canadian Rugby Football Union was organized. W. Hamilton Merilt and Robert Campbell were appointed president and secretary, respectively. The following year saw Montreal, champions of Quebec, pitted against Toronto, champions of Ontario, in the first Dominion championship final. Toronto was accorded an ignomious whitewashing to the tune of 30 to 0.

No championship games were played during the two following years, owing to defaults. From 1886 to 1891 the union dropped out of existence. In the year following the latter date Toronto turned the tables on Montreal by defeating the latter team by a score of 45 to 5 for the Dominion honors.

MOST NORTHERN TRIBES

These Indians Live Entirely on Moose Meat

A band of Indians comes from Fort Good Hope on the McKenzie River every summer to the Yukon slope of the Rockies. There is also a band comes from Fort McPherson. These are the two most northern tribes of Indians on the American continent. They come over the mountains in about forty "sleeps," that is, according to their own way of reckoning forty days, and their object is to kill moose and dry the meat for their winter's food. These Indians live on moose meat exclusively. They do not use flour or grain of any kind, nothing but boiled moose meat.

Physically, morally and mentally the "Good Hope" Indians are very much superior to the coast or plains Indians. They resemble the Japanese very much, not only in their size and build, but also in their peculiar almond-shaped eyes. They are very strong and sturdy and are as honest as it is [illegible] human beings to be. They never quarrel among themselves and will not barter or trade in anything without the consent of their chief.

In Touch With the Infinite

The nearer you get to Nature's ways, the closer you are to the beginning of things, in lumber camp, or open prairie, the more you understand that blessed touch with the infinite which is more than legalities and rubrics and articles; and is in harmony with the will of the infinite, which you can neither cabin in a creed, nor fathom with a traditional plummet.

In One Trip

A prominent farmer brought a thousand bushels of grain to a Saskatchewan town in one trip. The motive power was supplied by a "Big 4" traction engine, which stalked majestically into the town with eight retainers in the shape of wagons heavily laden with grain.

CORRECT FOR EITHER IN-DOOR OR OUT-OF-DOOR WEAR

Since, [illegible] simplicity is the [illegible] this season many of the well-cut [illegible] showing long, straight lines, are equally as appropriate for afternoon [illegible] and matinees as for street wear. A fact that makes for economy and a saving of time as well.

The lines of the "new" figure show a more or less of a slope to the shoulders [illegible] in waist and hips and [illegible] the knees. 7709 and 7710 is especially suited to these lines, showing [illegible] does, the drop-shoulder and a [illegible] fullness at the waist. A bit of [illegible] on each side of the skirt is stylish and graceful.

The [illegible] ling of net filling in the neck and the diagonal closing of the blouse is another effective touch.

One of those quaintly figured stuffs that fairly "make" a gown is used here. The design could also be fashioned of one of the modish velours or ratines effectively. A figured charmeuse or a brocaded satin are also good suggestions if the frock is intended solely for afternoons. An attractive folded girdle in a bright, harmonious shade and an inset of the same satin at the bottom of the skirt are individual notes that give distinction.

Our Point of View

The returns are not in yet, but we suppose that the Oyster Bayed a deep-mouthed welcome as the Hon. Ted Roosevelt drew near home.

Reluctantly we have been forced to the conclusion that the individual who has been supplying most of the news from the City of Mexico is an able-bodied liar who delights in working overtime.

It may be said without a violation of confidence that a large majority of the Canadian people find the monthly grocery bill a greater source for worry than the C.N.R. bill.

Huerta's delegates to the peace conference have expressed the opinion that the dictator will have to go, but they did not say so until they were well out of Mexico, and as long as Huerta remains there they will not return.

An aviator in Ottawa is said recently to have refused to go up in the air while Parliament was in session. Probably he did not care to risk his life in a gale of wind.

A Toronto suburban paper publishes the following society note: "Mrs. Tyrus Henry White left for Elyria to spend some time with relatives there. Zed Rumford, Doc Anderson and Will Higgins spent Saturday and Sunday with Tyrus Henry White." When Mrs. White reads this she will know that Tyrus was engaged in a hot four-handed poker game, and no doubt will at once head for home.

Canada welcomed the mediators and delegates to the peace conference now being held at Niagara Falls, by suspending the operation of the customs regulations at the border. This was very gracious, of course, but the mediators and delegates would have been better pleased if the authorities had dehorned the hackdrivers and hotelkeepers.

Chicago And Noise Nuisance.

In Chicago, always reputed to be both a noisy and dirty metropolis, designs are under consideration to eliminate much of its noise and a town planning commission is working up plans to establish a civic centre with radiating boulevards which will contribute greatly to the city's beauty.

The efforts to promote silence, will attract widespread attention. The proposal is to make as large a use of rubber as possible. The gliding automobile has really pioneered the way for rubber-shod vehicles of all kinds. The motor truck has rubber tires and if this kind of conveyance can go forth armed with silent shoes of swiftness, it follows that all waggons, all lorries, all delivery carts can substitute rubber for the steel tires. The owners will have to pay more, but the auditory nerves of the citizens will be saved much wear and tear. The noisy-heeled horse must also be shod with rubber pads and the whole vehicular procession passing over brick and asphalt must henceforth go softly.

The necessary amount of silence cannot be safeguarded, however, without some attention to motor horns and/whistles. These noises, so various, so ingenious, are among the most trying of all discords known to modern civilization. Some hoot like sirens; others moan like bassoons; some grunt, others chortle, and the most objectionable of all make a noise like a dying dinosaur in a pre-historic jungle. The Chicago silence enthusiasts are going to sunstitute for the various wildbeast bellows and whistling horrors some sweet musical outburst, which will sound upon the ears of the passers-by, or of the invalids in nearby houses, like a chime of cathedral bells.

But there are noises made by pedestrians as well as by steel-clad wheels and horses' hoofs and motor honks. The Chicago reformers have also had a thought for those who wear heavy boots and plant them down resolutely on echoing pavements. They have resolved that policemen and postmen must henceforth wear rubber soles and heels. If these regular pedestrians institute the practice, the force of their example will no doubt induce all citizens to do likewise.

These devices for the encouragement of silence will go far, but much noise will still remain. Trolley cars by day and railway locomotives by night will still continue to harass the nerves of Chicagoans. Of all noises those of the night-time and especially of the early morning, are the hardest to listen to with patience. And it will take the most strenuous efforts ol Chicago's silence specialists to muffle the locomotive engine or to put a damper on the raucous rooster. But the whole movement is to be heartily commended, and it is to be hoped that Peterborough and other noisy cities will take notice.

MORE PARKS NEEDED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir.—I have been looking over our fair City lately, inspecting the improvements that are being made to our streets, also the very beautiful line of parks that are located in the centre and North end of late. We have been expanding so rapidly that I am sure our busy Mayor and Aldermen have not been able to keep up with the many needed improvements that a bright city like ours demands. No doubt they see many improvements that are necessary but cannot be undertaken at present for lack of funds. It has occurred to me that they might take a look into the future and make provision for parks for the South end of the city before land reaches a prohibitive price.

The South end and Riverside districts are developing very rapidly —in fact more so than Victoria Heights of Karwatha Gate Way. The people who live South are mostly of the industrial classes and are the backbone of the city, and they are the only people who are not provided with parks for their children to play in. It would be very pleasant for the parents of the children if they were provided with parks, and could enjoy the fine music provided by our most excellent bands without having to walk to Victoria or Central park, after a hard day's work.

HUNTING PITCHERS

The Most Expensive Department of Professional Baseball

An authority on the subject has said that pitching is 80 per cent. of a team's strength, and whether or not the pitcher plays as important a part as this, certain it is that major league managers pay more attention to the development of their boxmen than to any other phase of their work.

The making of successful pitchers is one of the biggest gambles, and it is this possibility of developing a star that fascinates and arouses the hopes of both magnates and fans. This competition for pitching stars costs the club owners thousands of dollars yearly, but it is as necessary to stimulate interest as the game itself.

Think of the money spent by the majors for scouts, sent not only through all the minor leagues, but to every village and hamlet where there is any reasonable prospect. Consider the amount of money paid for pitchers through purchase and draft, and finally the expense of the long spring training trip.

It is the gambling instinct that makes all this tremendous expenditure possible, and, regardless of past experiences, hope never dies, but each manager has spring visions that among his flock of recruits there may be another Mathewson or Walsh.

Experience, however, has taught that reputation in the minors doesn't always mean success in the majors. Sometimes the rankest outsider in the squad will show to better advantage than some high-priced minor league star.

After all, pitching seems to be a born art. Of course, there are many of the finer points of the recruits to learn, but the boy on the lots who has the physique, the nerve and the natural ability, is just as apt to make good as his more highly advertised brother from the big minors.

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD TIRES

A GOOD RESOLUTION.

The way was long, the wind was cold,
The car was new, but the tires old,
The driver sat and tore his hair,
And cursed himself in his despair,
Of punctures he had had a score,
He vowed he'd buy cheap tires no more,
And if he ever got to town
He'd get those tires of renown
That never leave you on the road
But bring you safe to your abode.
The ones that set the town on fire
The famous KELLY-SPRINGFIELD Tire.

Invention of Waterproofs

One Thomas Fearnley Wiley, of Bedford, took out a patent 25 years ago for a waterproofing process known as "cravenette," which he evolved quite by accident. It so happened that some material had been badly, or wrongly, dyed, and he directed his man to wash out the surplus color with alum. This was done, with the result that the material was so vastly improved that another alum wash was ordered. The cloth was then sent to the wetting machine, but it was found that the material, though passed through the water, came out dry! And that is how the discovery that cloth can be rendered waterproof and yet remain porous was made.

History of False Teeth

Until little more than a century ago humanity had to rub along without false teeth, of which nowadays one firm alone claims to sell more than 12,000,000 a year. The first successful maker was Giussepangelo Fonzi, an Italian dentist, who started practice in Paris in 1798, and, thanks to his skillful treatment of Lucien Bonaparte, soon made his way. After years of experiment he discovered the substance from which artificial teeth are made, and received the gold medal of the French Academy of Science. One of the earliest persons fitted with false teeth was the Empress of Russia. After Waterloo Fonzi migrated to London, and then to Madrid, where Ferdinand VII. rewarded him with a yearly pension of a thousand ducats for a set of false teeth.

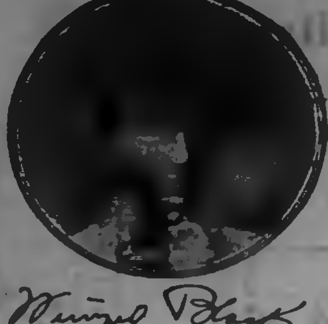
Is it Primitive and Brutal for Boys to Wish to Enlist?

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

I MET my friend at the club the other day. My friend was not quite herself, and she soon told me the reason why.

"This war," she said, "and the talk of war—it is all so hideous, so brutal, so crude; I thought we were all through with that sort of thing long ago.

"And day before yesterday my own son wanted to enlist.

"I thought he was joking at first. I couldn't believe it of him. Why, I took him to a peace congress with me when he was only 7 years old, and I never would let him drill when he was at high school.

"I couldn't bear to have him talk the gentle art of murder.

"And I thought he understood—but he didn't. He didn't understand at all. He is just as primitive today as—his grandfather, for instance.

"He talked about his grandfather and said he was proud of him for fighting in the civil war, and asked me why I kept his grandfather's sword on the wall.

"He said he should think I would be ashamed to do such a thing—and I really feared that I was wrong; I didn't realize the power of the suggestion of it.

"Oh, he talked terribly. He said he was sick of teas and tangos and automobiles and polo.

"He said he was tired of sitting in an iron cage at the bank and watching old misers grin when he told them what their balance was. He said he wanted to be a man—for once—just a plain man, like some of the fellows who died for their country's flag down there in Cuba.

The Boy's Handicaps.

"His father thought it was awfully funny; he almost died laughing at the boy and his heroics. But I didn't laugh. I couldn't. After all I've done to civilize that boy. Why, he's a member of the Brotherhood of Man Society, and he wears an Audubon badge. Isn't it terrible?"

"My dear," said the woman across the table, "it's worse than terrible. There's my boy, too—such a splendid, broad-minded, free-thinking fellow as we thought we'd brought him up to be.

"He's talked all the old rubbish about his country and honor and courage—my dear, it was shocking. I'm completely discouraged."

They were all talking about it—the terrible effect of this old-fashioned war talk on the young men. It brutalized them, they thought, and it made them so "primitive" and so "unadvanced."

I thought of the boy who wanted to enlist. I happened to know him. I never thought very much of him; he seemed an effeminate sort of creature some way—always helping his mother hand around the tea, or teaching somebody's sister a new tango step. I'm going to look at that boy the next time I see him. Somehow I want to see what he really looks like, when he's not bowing or smirking or handing tea.

The other chap—I saw him coming out of a pool room when I was on my way home from the tea. It seems to me I'm always meeting him in the vicinity of that pool room.

I wonder what he'd make of himself if he went out and was hungry once or twice a week and cold a night or two and slept on a marsh or in an open field a few times.

He's always been petted and spoiled and sheltered. How would it be with him to be a man among men? I suppose it would brutalize him terribly.

A Day to Remember.

Of course, it is all very primitive and very brutal and very old-fashioned, all this business of soldiering, and I know I ought to be ashamed of myself for the lump that rises in my throat when I see the old flag that my father fought for snapping in the free wind of my father's country—but when I got home from the tea I found a telegram waiting for me and there was news in the telegram.

Bad news, for the boy I have held in the core of my heart so long that I do not see how I ever lived before he dwelt there had enlisted. Enlisted—he, who has been ill and ailing so long; he, whom I have tried so hard to guard from every wind that blows! And all at once his hour strikes, and he is a boy no longer.

Perhaps the boy I love would be better trying to make somebody buy a piece of land that isn't worth the selling, or learning how to beat some trusting client out of a perfectly good case in court.

Maybe it will brutalize him to keep regular hours and lift up his feet and throw back his shoulders and keep step and take orders. But, somehow, I can't feel that way about it.

The boy I love will probably never get his chance to do what he wanted to do, go out and fight for his country's flag; but he tried to do it.

And if I live to be an old, old woman, I shall never think of the day when that boy was primitive and brutal enough to enlist but my heart will sing, and I shall lift my white head and walk with something as near to a proud and martial step as I can manage!

What a shame it is to be so hopelessly old-fashioned!

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am 19 years of age, though I am younger in actual experience. I have never been much alone in the company of men, and have never allowed them to hug and kiss me. Most of the boys I know are gentlemanly, though some of them often ask me to allow them to kiss me. I have asked the advice of a few nice girls I know, and they laugh at me and tell me it is no harm if you know the young man well enough. Will you please advise me?

ELIZABETH.

WHAT makes you think the girls are "nice," Elizabeth? And do you think they are wise as well as "nice"?

For my part, I do not think them either nice or wise. They take a decidedly coarse point of view, and you may tell them I said so if they should ask you.

Haven't you any brothers? Why don't you ask them what they think of a girl who lets them kiss her whenever they want to. Oh, yes, they'll want to often enough, of course; men always want to kiss any girl who isn't positively offensive.

It isn't you these boys are in love with, Elizabeth, don't think so for a minute. They are in love with the little game of kissing, and that is a very dangerous game for little girls like you to play.

There's so much risk in it. I can't bear even to think of it when I think of a sweet girl like you.

Who are these boys these other girls laugh about? And how well is the "well enough" that they know them? What do they know about them?

Where they live, and who their fathers are, and whether they have money enough to buy an ice cream soda now and then? That isn't enough, it isn't even half enough.

Keep your kisses for some one who's worthy of them, little Elizabeth. Do you remember the story of your name saint—Elizabeth of Hungary? She gave bread to the poor, and when her miser husband came and caught her with her arms full of loaves, the bread was changed by a miracle to roses.

Kisses are not so easily changed, little Elizabeth, and if they do turn to roses they are apt to be roses with sharp and cruel thorns.

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

THE VALUE OF HUMOR IN LIFE

Ann Murdock, in "A Pair of Sixes."

"Wit May Be Cultivated," Says Actress

By ELEANOR AMES

HUMOR can be cultivated. If it seems to have been left out of your make-up, don't despair. Learn how to appreciate humor even if you can't be actively and actually humorous. Some of the best judges of humor, some of the most inspiring friends of humorists are those who never do or say anything humorous, but who have a keen and discriminating idea of what constitutes humor, and are able to open the doors of opportunity to those really blessed with humor.

The dictionary gives "wit" and "merriment" as synonyms for humor. It defines it as "a disposition of mind or feeling."

Ann Murdock, who is responsible for the statement that it can be cultivated, says there is no use in defining it, for genuine humor can't stand defining. And Ann Murdock herself combines the genius of the humorist with a discerning appreciation of humor.

Over a cup of tea, sipped between a hesitation and the tango at a dancing tea, Miss Murdock, with a mischievous light in the corners of her otherwise demure eyes and an optimistic curl to her mouth, held forth on the subject of humor.

"There is really no excuse for the normally intelligent human being having to acknowledge to a lack of the sense of humor," she declared. "Humor can be learned as well as languages and art. The reason that it has not been rated a learnable thing is because the world at large has long maintained a most stupid and rigid idea of what humor is. To me the most humorous thing about humor is that it can't be defined. It simply is, and it can be learned, but it can't be taught.

"It has to be puzzled out by the individual. But it is worth puzzling about, for it is the most delightful and valuable possession, and lightens and brightens life more than anything I know of except money; and it even makes up for a lack of money.

"The man or woman with a genuine sense of humor will find comfort in misfortune.

"It is the backbone of courage. I have always declared that all wonderfully heroic and courageous persons have a fundamental supply of humor, even if they don't know it.

"A sense of humor is the sunshine of life. Any time you can laugh in your heart the battle is won.

"The best humorist is the unconscious one. The humorist who is convinced of it loses some of his reality. Better no humor at all than the made to order, displayed-for-a-purpose brand!

"How can one gain the sense of humor? Ah, there's the proof of what I have been saying. One can't give a rule for laying in a supply of humorous sense—but one can do it.

"Looking beneath the surface of life is the only way in which I can express what I mean. There is the obvious and we all see it. And there is the underlying current—and we don't all see it. And there is the humor of life—in the underlying current, in what does not appear on the surface, in the subtlety of understanding.

"We all are apt to drift through the world with our mental and physical eyes half-closed. The humorous-sensed person has his alert. He sees what is there and what might be there."

Monotonous Suburbanism.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

WHEN Mary and I were first married we had some notion of living in the bustling little town in which mother and dad and Mary's people have lived all their lives. There was, however, a little suburban settlement springing up on the outskirts of town and there we eventually went, partly because rents were cheaper, partly because we found an idyllic little house that just suited our pre-nuptial notions of what a house should be. With the beautiful idealism of honeymooning we quite ignored the daily trolley trip into business or shopping. Now I must confess the desolate suburbanism of the place is getting on my nerves.

I firmly believe this little settlement in which I live is the most suburban spot on the globe. The houses all look alike; the people all think alike; we all fuss over trivial and unnecessary things, and I've begun to believe we all look alike, stamped with a certain suburban mark that not one of us has escaped. And we all carry bundles home.

Lately I've begun to catalogue the topics of conversation in which we men indulge as we fare forth in the early morning to catch trains and trolleys.

"Hello," sings out one man, "started up your furnace yet, Peter? We're having a devil of a time with ours. Had to have it cleaned out and something or other mended."

"I've rigged up a dandy stunt for my furnace," enthuses another householder, who is somewhat inventive. "It's a system of ropes and pulleys, and in the morning I merely set my alarm for a certain time, lean out of bed, push the lever and go to sleep again. The lever operates the pulleys and turns on the fire. Then when I get up the house is as warm as toast."

Now this sort of conversation is all very well, provided we use it in occasional wedges, but for a daily diet it is deadly.

Each morning without fail a half-dozen of us who take the same car discuss furnaces and wood, the cost of coal and various other domestic things. We seem to have certain channels worn in our brains and the sight of a neighbor starts us immediately to thinking of firewood and coal, lawns and lawnmowers, furnaces and various other householding interests. There is one man who always makes me think of trees. He cleared his lawn of a dozen or so and talks daily of a lifetime supply of firewood. Our topics vary only with the seasons.

The women are no better—and, incidentally, no worse. They have sewing clubs and card clubs and a few other fussy clubs. They talk children and husbands, houses and furnaces, too. Few of them know what is going on beyond the limits of Suburbanville. Now I realize that children and husbands and furnaces and houses are essential to the wellbeing of society, but just why we must hash and rehash them over and over in a mental circle is one too many for me.

The whole truth about the matter is that we're so suburban we're beginning to gossip. Suburbanism seems to have sapped all our mental resources. Most of us have either built houses or bought them and we're setting sail on a new sea, with the result that whether or no a man has glass doorknobs put in his new house is important enough to merit an hour's exhaustive discussion.

But the thing is getting more and more on my nerves. I don't like the spirit of a new and small community. I like old houses, old towns, old streets even if they do harbor a bit of gossiping. There's a more picturesque flavor to an old town than to a distressingly new suburban village. All of our houses have cost about the same amount. I don't like that. Uniformity spells lack of individualism. I'd rather live where the life varies from a hovel to a mansion. It's more interesting. We all know just what salary everybody else is making and we know who is happily married and who isn't. I begin to feel the need of a change.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Bad Home Habits Cause You to Lose Hair

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

SOME men are so proficient and full of health that they can distinguish and divide a hair 'twixt the south and south-southwest of the left eyebrow.

On the other hand, there are many more persons who do not realize that their bad household habits of today are the sources of falling locks, baldness and gray hairs of the grown-up.

The hair of your head, like the quills of the fretful porcupine, differ from the scalp and the skin. Like rare jewels, swords and guns, they are useful and decorative, but lack red-blood nerves and lymph channels.

The only difference between the beautiful, dark, curly locks of Genevieve and the thick, coarsely textured hairs of cats, swine and certain animals is that the former are soft, smooth and elastic and called tresses, while the latter are rough, stiff and thick and termed bristles.

Of the many and various origins of falling hair, gray shades and baldness already mentioned to you, too little emphasis has been laid upon the disregard of individual combs and brushes for children, as well as all other members of the family.

Common Brush Used.

It is truly amazing and simultaneously a powerful indictment against universal, free education to find that in nine hundred and ninety-nine homes of every thousand there are to be found only one comb and brush.

That is to say, from five to ten persons use the same comb and brush and own it in common. In these days of newspapers, widely disseminated information on hygiene and preventive medicine, it might seem as unbelievable as one family using the same, single tooth brush. Yet it is not a jot more improper, unethical, as well as insanitary, to brush or comb the hair with a mother's or father's comb and brush than to use his or her tooth brush.

Practically, it is decidedly worse. It is storing up trouble in years to come. For, it must be plain, the dirt, germs and contagions in the tooth brush are destroyed by the tooth paste used, whereas the hair brush and the comb transfer the dust and microbes from Mr. Smith's scalp to little John's curly tresses without the interposition of antiseptics, germicides, mechanical asepsis, or disinfectants even of a make-believe kind.

A large head of hair may be honestly said to add loveliness to a good face and hideousness to a bad one. But this is no justification for barbers to use the same brush and comb on every next patron who comes to be barber-cured.

The Sanitary Plan.

I know one ultra-forward looking, super hygienic barber in the United States. Few have heard of him because his hanging out place is a small village. This gentleman was an orderly at a hospital, and there he imbibed knowledge that has served him well. He obviates many of the dangers of the lingering locks by supplying each patron with an individual 3-cent brush and a penny comb. These are unwrapped from an aseptic package and used to comb the customer's hair. Then they are burned up.

The cost is trivial, the reward is the preservation of a cleanly, full-grown, thick head of hair. It remains for other progressive barbers to avail themselves of the same, sanitary and prophylactic procedure thus adopted.

It should not require special legislation on the part of boards, legislatures, city councils and other such bodies to force barbers to go to school and learn these new things and to adopt them in their shops. Self-preservation and the rewards of efficiency should suffice to point out to the tonsorial tradesmen exactly what is best for them.

It was a wise inspiration that made the bard say: "He that hath a beard is more than a youth and he that hath no beard is less than a man." The rapid growth of the beard in certain climates and races in youth is also shown in the biblical command to "tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown."

Answers to Health Questions

J. S.—My eyes do not seem to grow, although everything else seems to.

Your eyes do not need to grow. If you will arrange your hair in the latest fashionable mode, you will observe the same effect as if you had larger eyes. Just as blue dresses, collars and hats make the eyes blue and gray costumes make gray eyes a deeper gray, so a proper arrangement of the face and hair will make the eyes seem larger.

1. Massage it. Keep in the sun. Sleep late and retire early. Eat lots of sweet, oily, buttery, creamy, fatty foods. Devour an extra heavy meal at night before bedtime.
2. Hydrogen peroxide, milk of magnesia and a dentist's care of your teeth should fix the trouble very quickly.

Useful Hints for the Housewife

By Ann Marie Lloyd

WHEN it is said of a young housekeeper that "she can't even boil potatoes" it is generally supposed that she has failed by the supreme test of culinary ignorance. Yet there are many more or less experienced cooks who are not able to boil potatoes without, as one witty person has said, "insulting the most useful and honorable of all garden truck."

It requires quite a bit of knowledge to boil a potato as a potato deserves boiling.

To begin with, there is one absolute rule to be remembered in cooking all green vegetables. They should be washed in cold water and cooked in boiling water. Salt should be added in the proportion of one teaspoonful to each quart of water, but whether at the beginning of the process of cooking or after the vegetables are partially cooked is a matter of choice.

It will take half an hour to boil potatoes. It may take longer. Potatoes should never be boiled at a furious bubble. They should be treated to continuous and gentle boiling.

Old potatoes should be soaked in cold water for at least an hour after being pared before they are boiled. As soon as they are tender they should be drained thoroughly, allowed to dry by shaking them in the saucepan and setting them on the back o' the range, where they are covered with a coarse towel until serving time. Then they must be served in an open dish. Never put a cover over any potatoes when they are sent to the table.

Beating is the secret of good mashed potatoes. After they are boiled, drain and shake loose in the saucepan, and then mash them with a wire masher. Add plenty of butter, a dash of pepper and salt to taste, and have the milk hot and enough of it to make the potato mixture creamy. After it is added beat with a silver fork and then heap it lightly in the dish. Never pat or smooth it.

If you want a change from the regulation mashed potatoes, try potato balls. To each pint of hot mashed potatoes add an eighth of a teaspoonful of celery salt and some chopped parsley and form into round smooth balls and fry in a basket in deep fat, or bake in butter in the oven.

Italian potatoes are delicious and add much to a dinner where there are no other vegetables.

Take two cups of the hot mashed potatoes and add a teaspoonful of onion juice, a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, the well beaten yolk of one egg, the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs, half a cup of grated cheese, a dash of paprika and salt to taste, beat thoroughly, heap in a buttered baking dish and bake till light brown.

Potato puff is a similar dish without the onion.

To two cups of hot mashed potato add half a cup of milk, two well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls butter, some salt and pepper, and beat well. Then add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, pile in a fluff in a buttered baking dish, and bake in a hot oven till it is puffed and delicately colored. Both these delicious potato concoctions are far better served in the same receptacles in which they are baked. There are attractive fireproof baking dishes to be had at reasonable prices in all shops dealing in kitchen utensils that add to the table. If you have none, wrap a snowy napkin about the dish. Even a paper napkin is permissible for the home table.

Stuffed potatoes are a meal in themselves, and a fitting accompaniment of cold meat.

Bake six smooth and uniform-sized potatoes one hour. When they are done, remove a lengthwise slice, scoop out the potato with a spoon, mash, add butter, salt, pepper, half a cup of milk, two eggs, whites beaten separately, refill skins with this piled lightly, and bake till brown and puffy.

Everyday Heroes

THE bugle calls to action, and the sound
Of martial music thrills the soldier's heart.
The tramp of feet, the roll of musketry,
Are living things in which he bears a part.
And so he marches on at duty's call,
Unheeding scarce the foe or danger near,
So thrilled he with the panoply of war
His heart, though craven, knoweth not a fear.

But in the common, quiet walks of life,
No drum or bugle sounds the earnest call;
No cheer awaits the victor if he rise,
No marble keeps his memory if he fall.
The plodding, grinding work from day to day
To gain the needful bread by which we live,
And furnish sinews strong for daily toil,
Doth merit better meed than what we give.

Not only on the crimson battlefield
Is manly courage, manly virtue shown.
To build is grander far than to destroy,
And braver far to smile o'er pain than groan.
Not many lives receive the merit due,
For none can know a brother's want or care,
Save as the rippling of the current shows
What far below in silence hideth there.

EMPIRE BUILDERS

Such Are Poets Whether of Words or of the Axe and Pick

Like the Greeks who made no distinction between thinking and doing, we who speak the English tongue were above all a practical people, who loved being and doing and the strong, free life, said Mr. F. R. Benson, the great interpreter of Shakespeare's dramas.

A transcontinental railway builder was a poet, not of words but in vision, leader of a band who carved out empire, not "writing his sorrows on the bosom of earth, making dust his paper," but in terms of pick and ax and dredge, in tunnel and train, wedding east and west. He was one who could identify himself with the living principle of all things, who saw the relation between the particular and the universal, surely a practical man for our generation, and all generations to come, and that was the meaning of poet. A concrete example was given at the Stratford-Upon-Avon festival, where people were joined in a mighty realization of the brotherhood of man, not in the pink-blooded terms of the copybook heads, but with the vital intensification of national feeling and patriotism. Mr. Benson had a vision of a great empire of English-speaking people, of which Shakespeare's drama would be one of the chief links.

In a time of strikes, a striker told him how at Shakespeare's shrine he had gathered a sense of the harmony of life, and had seen the due relation of things. He added: "Shakespeare has shown me a better way than dynamite." Another man had prayed God's blessing on the Stratford Theatre. "It has shown me in Shakespeare's plays how we British became what we are, and how we may keep so."

DANGERS IN LAUGHING

Unrestrained Mirth May Have Serious Results

Few people know what dangers lurk in excessive laughter. When we laugh our regular breathing is changed, coming in quick, short respirations, because the throat muscles are contracted. It is for this reason that, when laughing very heartily at some good joke, we have often to gasp for breath. At times we are obliged to hold our sides on account of the pain a hearty laugh causes us, owing to the partial suffocation of the lungs through the cutting off of their proper air supply.

Every muscle in the body becomes contracted during a continued fit of laughter. Often the blood-vessels in the face become congested causing it to turn red and even purple. Should this congestion continue for any length of time, apoplexy resulting in death might well occur. It is better in these circumstances to laugh until we cry, for the shedding of tears relieves the congestion of the brain. Tears caused by grief do good in the same way, and that is how, after a great sorrow, many people have been saved from brain congestion and madness by the timely shedding of a few tears.

Diseases of Trees

If you eat too much, the chances are that you will get fat and flabby. It is the same with trees. If the food they get is too easily digested the fibres of the tree turn spongy and rotten and the sap weakens. When fruit trees turn fat, the fruit is at first richer and riper. It soon becomes insipid, however. A man may keep down his fat with diet, exercise, etc. There is no cure for the fat tree.

Corpulence is not the only disease trees share with us. Many plants are subject to anæmia—clover, onions, cucumbers and melons being the chief sufferers. The remedy for this unnatural pallor is, just as in the case of human beings, iron. A dozen large nails driven into the roots of an anæmic tree will, in most cases, bring it back to health, as the acid sap eats away the iron and carries iron salts up the trunk.

There are fewer suicides among miners than among any other class of workmen.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Origin of Pocketknives

The manufacture of knives, the blades of which can be folded within the handle, was introduced into Sheffield in 1650 by Belgian workmen from the Walloon district. As a matter of fact, these knives were known by the name of "Jocte-legs," after Jacques of Liege. The poet, Robert Burns, also refers to a "faulding jocte-leg," the word "faulding," being, of course, folding. Indeed, even to the present day in Yorkshire, large knives the blades of which fold over into the handle are known as jack-a-leg knives.

So large does the saw mill industry shine in Prince Albert that it is sometimes referred to as "The City of the Silver Saw."

A SAFE SPORT

Swimming Seems to Have no Bad Effects on Its Devotees

"People who are not themselves good swimmers," says one of the leading present-day exponents of the art, "are inclined to look upon any long trip in the water as a terrific strain on the system; but swimming is no harder than walking when one has mastered a scientifically correct stroke. Take an easy, smooth trudgeon, or crawl, for instance, and one can plod along forever, resting comfortably, with practically no effort. It is only those who use faulty methods that tire.

"There are cases a-plenty on record of men who have swum continuously for 15, 20 and more hours without the least ill effect, and there is no reason for believing that a healthy youngster should be injured by a journey of a few hours, provided the temperature of the water is not too low. More than that the longevity of competitive swimmers has become proverbial. Moderation is, of course, necessary at first, until skill and stamina have been gradually developed, but after the stroke has been perfected and constant practice has been taken, an occasional long swim can do no harm. It is the submitting to hard work without preparation that leads to injury."

FAMOUS TOREADOR

Spanish Bull-fighter Bombita Had Many Narrow Escapes

Bombita, Spain's most famous bull-fighter, who retired from the dangerous game at the solicitation of his bride, made his fortune, estimated at $600,000 entirely from the ring and besides gave away great sums in benevolences.

Bombita's real name is Ricardo Torres. He was a typesetter as a youth, but soon left this calling to follow his two elder brothers into the arena. Few toreadors acquired such a great reputation as Bombita. His popularity in Spain is universal. He is chiefly famous for the grace of his thrust and for the reckless courage in giving a bull a chance. He was gored thirty-eight times, always slightly and he always saved himself by his acrobatic skill even when on the horns of the bull.

Millions in Baseball

Baseball might still be a game of corner lots and wrangles; modern organization made it into the greatest pastime in the world, and one of the greatest of to-day's industries.

To-day not less than $25,000,000 is invested in the game, at a most conservative estimate. There are over forty leagues operating under the National Agreement, in which over 7,000 players are employed. The major leagues alone pay to their players over $1,500,000 annually. Those who put money in baseball plants are assured of the stability of their investments. A greater number of college men are entering the game each year attracted by its financial possibilities.

The Reversible Falls

The notion of water falling uphill is against our preconceived ideas of gravity. It may, it is true, be induced to climb with the aid of a pump or water-tower; but, short of these aids, it always finds the descent easier. Yet it certainly falls uphill, in full view of the suspension bridge just over the St. John River, New Brunswick twice in twenty-four hours. A visitor who goes on the bridge just before low water, after a short interval of slack tide, will actually see the falls going the wrong way! The Bay of Fundy drives the proud St. John, famed for its lumber and its salmon, back into the forest of New Brunswick, and the spectator has no difficulty in realizing the simple principle of force majeure which brings about this seemingly unnatural result.

Sawdust Bread

There is a bakery in Germany that turns out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily and finds a ready market for this output. Although this "wood en bread" is intended for consumption for horses only, it is claimed by the manufacturer that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings. The sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulation, and is mixed with one-third part of rye flour. It is then formed into loaves and baked in an oven like any other bread.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A DECK OF CARDS

The Four Suits Originally Represented Classes of People

Quite apart from their use in various games, playing cards are an interesting study from historical and pictorial points of view. Take first their numerical arrangement. Fifty-two cards, 365 pips or dots, and 13 tricks, representing the weeks and days in the year and the lunar months. There are four suits, representing four classes of people as they were divided at the time the pack of cards we now use was devised by the French. The "spades" stood for pikemen or soldiers, the "clubs" for clover, typifying farmers, the "diamonds" for building tiles, representing artisans, and the "hearts" for choirmen or ecclesiastics. The "kings" and "queens" at that time were more or less correct likenesses of certain royal and noble personages. Even in our modern packs it is said that one of the "queens" is a conventionalized portrait of Elizabeth of York, who was engaged to the Dauphin of France. The "knaves" were then the King's jesters, and even these cards may be portraits. All the court cards, in fact, retain their 16-century characteristics. Cards are amongst the few things that have not changed with the centuries.

Waltzing Ostriches

One of the many strange sights on the plains of Southern Africa is a party of waltzing ostriches. When there are a number of them they will start off in the morning, and after running a few hundred yards will stop and, with raised wings, whirl rapidly round till they are stupefied or perhaps break a leg. The males pose also before fighting, and to make their court. They kneel on their ankles, opening their wings and balancing themselves alternately forward and backward or to one side or the other, while the neck is stretched on a level with the back and the head strikes the sides, now on the right, now on the left, while the feathers are bristling.

The birds appear at this time so absorbed in their occupation as to forget all that is going on about them, and can be approached and caught. The male alone utters a cry, which sounds much like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight.

A Mounted Policeman Found Many of These in the Far North

One of the mounted Canadian police, who patrol great stretches of almost uninhabited land in the northwest, discovered a band of Indians, who had breweries and were making "fire water" constantly for their own use east of the Hay River, and 600 miles from civilization. The Hay River is a thin black line running through the white terra incognita south of the Great Slave Lake.

The patrolman made a personal investigation and found a happy lot of Indians among whom "fire water" was quite as common as it used to be down in Kentucky. He found that nearly every "buck" was the proprietor of a "brewery," and that life south of the Great Slave Lake was one long and joyous spree.

A strange white man had sold the secret of making "fire water" to the Indians, and they were making a "brew" of potatoes, hops, sugar and yeast, which, when allowed to ferment, was strong enough to cause intoxication. During the warm summer months the Indans raised potatoes for this brew, but in scarcely any instance could they be persuaded to grow anything for food.

CANADA'S CREDIT IS NOW MUCH ABOVE THE AVERAGE

Business Depression Not Peculiar to This Country, But General, Says President Gordon

Montreal, June 9.—That Canada's credit is better than the average, but care must be exercised not to take advantage of our good standing on the money markets, was the opinion expressed by President Gordon, at the opening of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to-day. President Gordon said in part:

"All other problems have come and gone and have lost their significance compared with a problem that has been with us throughout the year, and which threatens to keep us enveloped in the shadow for some months to come. The business depression is a trouble we cannot afford to make light of. Every day brings fresh reminders of its existence, reminders that lead us to speculate as to its causes, its probable duration, and the extent to which our resources may be taxed in surviving it. It should be quite possible for us to associate the depression with some of the events that have occasioned it, as well as with some of the conditions and tendencies by which it has been accompanied, and so turn an account to acquiring a better understanding of our inherent weaknesses.

THE T. V. C.

The Liberals brought up again the Trent Canal report in Parliament to try and make things look better. They could not be wise. The Burleigh Falls throw-down had sunk deep into the hearts of the people. But the way of the transgressor is hard. The people know.

SOUNDS DEATH KNELL TO PLAN FOR BIG POSTOFFICE SQUARE

Government Understood to Have Definitely Decided to Erect Toronto's New General Postoffice Building on Site Already Acquired for the Purpose

Ottawa, June 9.—It is understood that the Government has decided to build the new Toronto postoffice on the site it has already acquired through expropriation.

The Toronto Civic Guild interviewed Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, recently, in regard to the purchase of the whole block upon which the present postoffice is situated, and half of which the Government has already acquired for the new building. Their proposal was to have the city purchase the remainder of the block and turn it into a great city square. However, as this would mean another long delay, while it was uncertain whether the citizens would endorse the scheme, it is understood the Government had definitely decided to proceed with its own plans.

The postoffice will be on the corner of Adelaide and Victoria streets, with the main entrance on Adelaide street. It is proposed to erect the building on both streets. Twenty-five feet back from the street line, and the space in front will be turned into a beauty space.

As soon as a decision is finally reached the work will be proceeded with. The building will cost over a million, and it is proposed to erect the finest postoffice building in Canada.

SOUL OF DYING MAN WEIGHS THREE-FOURTHS OF AN OUNCE

Boston,- June 9.—Dr. Duncan Mc- found the weight of a soul of a dy- Dougall, of Haverhill, says he has ing man. Said he: "My first subject was a man dying of tuberculosis. It seemed to be best to select a patient dying with a disease that produces exhaustion, the death occurred with little or no muscular movement, because in such a case the beam could be kept perfectly at balance and any loss occuring readily noted.

"The patient was under observation for three hours and forty minutes before death, lying on a bed arranged on a light framework built upon very delicately balanced platform beam scale. The patient's comfort was looked after in every way. He lost weight slowly at the rate of one ounce per hour, due to evaporation of moisture in respiration and evaporation of perspiration. During all three hours and forty minutes I kept the beam end slightly above balance near the upper limiting bar, in order to make the test more decisive if it should come. At the end of three hours and forty minutes he expired and suddenly coincident with death the beam end dropped with an audible stroke, hitting against the lower limiting bar and remaining there with no rebound. The loss was ascertained to be three-forths of an ounce.

"This loss of weight could not be due to evaporation of respiratory moisture and perspiration, because that had already been determined to go on, in his case, at the rate of one-sixtieth of an ounce per minute, whereas this loss was sudden and large, three-fourths of an ounce in a few seconds."

CHILDREN PARADE NO REASON GIVEN

Women's Christian Temperance Union Wants Pre-election Procession

Toronto, June 9.—It is quite probable that a school children's parade comprised of all the public school children of Toronto, will be held a day or two before the provincial elections. As the elections come on a Monday, June 29th, it is likely that the parade will take place the previous Saturday. If held, the demonstration will be under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Mrs. Ward, president of the W.C.T.U., refused to make any statement regarding the nature or purport of the parade. Mrs. W. Pugsley, a member of the organization, said that the parade was a new idea, and that it was entertained by only a few of the members.

The final decision will be made tomorrow, when the W.C.T.U. will hold the second session of their annual convention.

GOVERNMENT VOTES AID TO SUFFERERS

Supplementary Estimates to Provide Fifty Thousand Dollars

Ottawa, June 9.—The Government has decided to vote $50,000 for the sufferers of the Empress of Ireland wreck. Additional supplementary estimates to cover this amount were laid on the table of the House this morning, by Hon. W. T. White, Finance Minister. There was also an additional amount asked for, of $10,000, to carry on the inquiry into the Empress of Ireland disaster.

KEEP YOUR SKIN FREE FROM HAIR OR FUZZ

(Beauty Topics.)

Here is a harmless method for banishing hairy growths on chin, lip or cheek: Make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water; spread on hairy surface and in two or three minutes remove, wash the skin and it will be entirely free from hair or blemish. You will not be disappointed with this treatment, because only one application is required, but to be certain of getting real delatone, it is best to buy it in a small, original package.

NO TIME LIMIT TO ULSTER'S EXCLUSION

Probate Action of Lords in Modifying Amending Bill

Montreal, June 9. A London cable to The Gazette says: "If the Lords decide to postpone consideration of the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, until the Amending Bill is before them, the Government would be willing to accede to their wishes," declares the Daily Chronicle. A section of the Conservative party is urging the Lords to reject the Amending Bill, the calculation being that the Government would then flinch from enforcing the Home Rule Bill and be driven to appeal to the country. What seems more probable is that the Lords will modify the Amending Bill in such a way as to ensure the exclusion of Ulster without a time limit."

The Standard says: That while it is certain that while a decision antagonistic to Home Rule will be registered in the Lords, he Amending Bill will be modified so as to secure better terms for Ulster. These modifications will necessarily be at the mercy of the coalition majority when the Amending Bill reaches the Commons, but this course will place the ultimate responsibility for strife or peace upon the shoulders of the Government."

ADVOCATES DELAY IN CHURCH UNION

Woodstock, June 9.—Church Union was discussed at length this morning by the Commissioners to the assembly. Dr. Scott of Montreal, took up the report of the minority of the Union Committee. The anti-unionists greeted the speaker with prolonged applause. "We may be mistaken, but we ever seek the light and are ready to follow the will of God. We do not feel however, that the pressing of organic union is wise at present," said Dr. Scott. I hope and trust that the great body of christain people in our church, even those who favor union, do not favor the pressing forward of the movement." There after he went inta a lengthy history of the movement, and appealed to those in favor of union not to press the matter so long as there was a portion of the church against organize union.

COULTHURST CASE BEFORE GAND JURY

An Adjournment will be Asked Should True Bill be Found

Welland, Ont., June 9.—The case of E. Coulthurst, the Bridgeburg Deputy Returning Officer charged with altering the ballot papers for his poll at in Welland County, is before the the recent Canadian Temperance Act Grand Jury this afternoon. If a true bill is found, the defence will ask for the case to be laid over until Justice Lennox gives judgment in the case now pending in which the defence side claims that owing to the irregularities disclosed the election was void or in other words there was no election. A judgment to this effect would material affect the Coulthurst case. The adjournment will probably be until fall sitting of the court.

CHEERED MR. CALDER CON. MEMBER FOR SOUTH ONTARIO

Old War Horse Prevailed Upon to Try to Redeem the Riding--Enthusiasm at Whitby

Whitby, June 9.—In a Liberal Conservative convention of 220 members, Mr. Charles Calder ex-M.P., was unanimously nominated to contest the riding of South Ontario with W. E. N. Sinclair, who sat in the Liberal interest in the last House. The delegates, who came from Oshawa, Port Perry, Pickering, East Whitby, Whitby Town, Scugog, the Township of Whitby, and the Township of Reach, were enthusiastic to a degree, and before the convention closed, so great was the unanimity of purpose that they confidently predicted that the "old war horse" would redeem the riding as effectually as he had done in the days gone by from the Hon. John Dryden, the Minister of Agriculture in the Ross Administration.

With President Purdy and Secretary Dr. John Moore, there were on the platform a large delegation from North Ontario, who had come to lend their countenance to their Conservative brethren of the South.

NEW IMMIGRATION AGREEMENT WITH CHINESE GOVERNMENT

Ottawa, June 9.—It is understood negotiations are in progress between the Canadian Government and the authorities of the new Chinese Republic for the signing of an agreement in regard to the control of Chinese immigration entering Canada. The Chinese Government has, it is understood, intimated that it is willing to enter into some such arrangement as Japan has at the present time, which permits the entrance of 400 Japanese into Canada yearly. The agreement with the Chinese authorities may even be more rigid. At present Chinese entering Canada pay $500 head tax. The plan has never been particularly satisfactory either to Canada or Japan. The arrangement which is proposed would meet China's growing hignity as a nation and would be more satisfactory to Canada, although perhaps not meeting the views of those who believe in absolute exclusion of all Asiatics.

MAY REPUDIATE MR. DOUGHTY AS CANDIDATE IN RIVERDALE

New Conservative Convention Likely to be Held as Result of Mr. Doughty's Championing of Liberal Temperance Policy

Toronto, June 9.—With Mr. J. C. Doughty, Conservative nominee for Riverdale, a promised supporter of temperance measures of any kind brought before the Legislature; with the Liberal forces in the riding split into straight party and temperance supporters; with the likelihood of Mr. J. C. Allen placing himself in nomination even without support of any Liberal convention, the political muddle in Riverdale was still further emphasized to-day in the rumor that Mr. Doughty might be discredited as Conservative candidate, and ex-Controller Thomas Foster placed in nomination by the Conservatives of the which was made last night to run Mr. Doughty, as a Liberal as well as a Conservative candidate. A promise was obtained from him by a small delegation, to support the temperance policy of Mr. N. W. Rowell. The delegation, wholly Liberal, pledged itself to support him in return.

The enterprising temperance workers have already been disowned by the Liberal organization of their riding, and anon comes a rumor that Mr. Doughty by exceeding his prerogative in pledging support of a Liberal policy without ascertaining the desires of the Conservative electors of his constituency, whom he is supposed represent as candidate, has forced himself out of the party.

CANADIAN LOAN AN ASSURED SUCCESS

All Underwritten, and Public Lists Will Remain Open Till Wednesday

Ottawa, June 9. In the Commons this morning, Hon. W. T. White, replying to a question put by Hon. Geo. P. Graham yesterday made a statement in regard to the latest Dominion loan. He said it was for an issue of five million pounds four per cent debenture stock, maturing in 1960. The loan was underwritten on Friday last at 98, advertised on Saturday and the subscription list will be open until Wednesday. The Minister said he was unable to give the House an idea as to the public response, but the financial success of the loan was assured when it was underwritten. The twenty-five millions to be raised would be used to defray capital expenditure.

"Will that include the construction of armouries?" asked Mr. Lemieux. "No, we do not borrow money to build armouries," replied the Minister.

PETES, IN ERRORLESS GAME, AGAIN DEFEAT TORONTO, 4-3

Timely Hitting, Good Fielding and Air-Tight Pitching of Cresswell and Schettler, too Much for Visitors

A fast and clean game of ball was put up yesterday at Riverside Park to the delight of the many fans present. It being ladies' day, quite a large number turned out and the grandstand was well filled with fanettes, who were not disappointed at the exhibition of ball put up by the Petes.

Cresswell started the pitching for the Petes and in the first innings the visitors got one run. The Petes came back in their period and lashed out that old pill for three runs, and Cresswell tightened up considerable, and a close hard-fought battle for the next few innings was the result. In the sixth innings Toronto got two more men over the plate, tieing the score, 3—3.

Schettler replaced Cresswell here and gates were closed on the visitors, and the game stretched out to ten innings, when the Petes on Welsh's hit scored the winning run.

The boys did some good hitting getting 8, while the visitors had 9 hits to their credit. A feature also of the game yesterday, was that the Petes had no errors, everything being clean cut. The visitors were credited with one error.

The boys worked hard all through, and were loudly applauded time after time.

It was stated yesterday that the disputed game in Toronto last week will be played over, when the two teams come together in the next series.

Judging by the class of ball being dispensed at the Park, a large crowd will be on hand to-day, when another battle royal will be fought.

HIGHFLYER SOUGHT

Society Investigating Report That Mother Sold Child to Man

New Orleans, June 9.—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children is investigating to learn whether Mrs. Minor Keener of 602 Jackson avenue, sold her 14-yer-old daughter to J. Ross, formerly general agent of the Ashley Drug Company, leaving a number of debts unpaid.

The girl, Jessie Guice, was an unwilling companion to the man, according to her own story and that of Ross' housekeeper. "I despised and feared him," said the small, pretty child, who is now being detained at the House of the Good Shepherd.

"She would go into a nervous hysteric every day when it was time for Ross to come home," declared Mrs. Estelle Dillery, the housekeeper, who was left unpaid when Ross decamped.

With a graphaphone, a rented cottage at 2012 Grand Route, St. John and the girl, Ross made merry in New Orleans for a while and went away. Superintendent Agnew will get into touch with Police Superintendent Reynolds and try to have Ross brought back to face the charges.

"I allowed Jessie to go with Mr. Ross because he said he wanted her for a companion to his little daughter, whom he was going to bring down from St. Louis," declared the girl's mother. My sister was his former housekeeper when he came here in January and it was while she had every confidence in him. When my daughter went to visit her, Ross took a fancy to her and said he wanted her to come as a companion to his daughter. I never got a cent from him. I didn't sell my daughter and I thought he was treating her honorably.

"I used to visit my daughter. I asked him where his daughter was and he said that she was ill in St. Louis, but that Jessie might as well stay at the house and get used to it and him."

The 14-year-old girl lived at the cottage with Ross for the first of wpril. Ross' latest housekeeper Mrs. Dillery, said that he had told her the girl was his niece.

"I knew better than that," said Mrs. Dillery with a knowing nod. "Uncles don't sit around with their nieces in their laps. Mrs. Dillery said the girl slept with her.

Ross is said to have owed the woman proprietor of the cottage for three months' rent, and to have borrowed over $100 from her besides.

Ross had offices in the Audubon building, and employed Miss Marie Toujan as his stenographer.

CANADIAN GAME BEST

McGill's Coach Likes it Better Than American Football

Frank Shaughnessy, McGill's American coach, says Canadian Rugby is a better game than American football by a city block. "Shag" claims all the possibilities of the game are brought out under the Canadian rules.

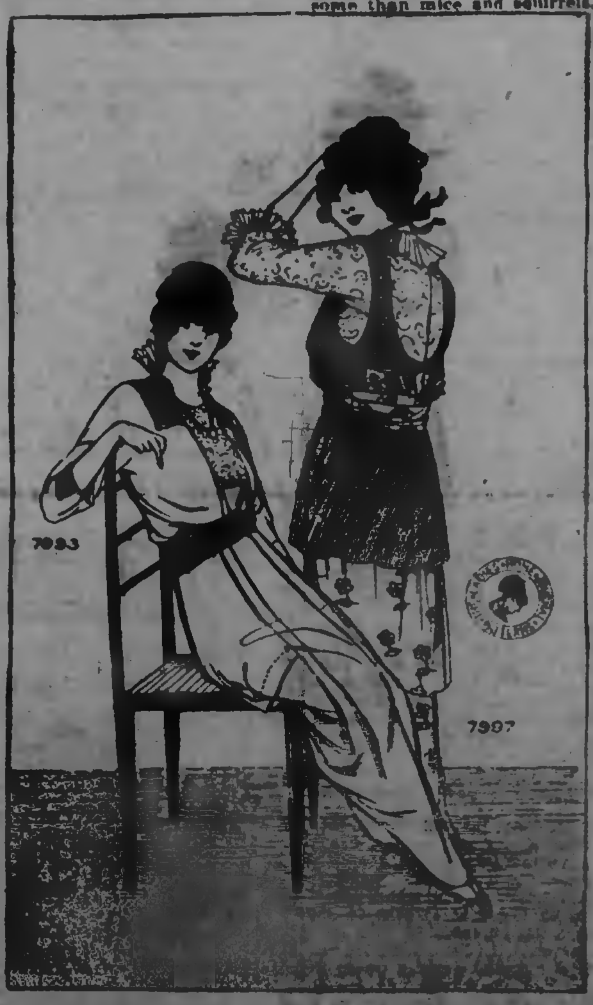
"The one defect in the laws of the game is the three-yard tackling rule, which will always be a source of dissatisfaction till it is removed. It is never interpreted twice in the same way by a referee bcause it is impossible for him to do so. The official guesses at it. I have seen wings run down under a high punt and stand as far as five yards from the back, who allows the ball to bounce, and, as is frequently the case, the leather takes a freak hop right back toward the wing men. The halfback races up and grabs the ball before the wings can get away the required distance. A fair catch is all that is needed with penalties meted out when the back is charged after kicking."

TROUBLESOME BEARS

Old Fire Rangers Classed Them With Mice and Squirrels

Mr. David Gillies, of Ottawa, a well known lumberman, received an amusing letter from one of his old fire rangers on the Upper Petawawa. For people who are afraid of bears, it affords an interesting insight into the contempt entertained for these "varmints" by the real backwoodsmen. The ranger wrote to Mr. Gillies as follows:

"Bears are a little troublesome this month. They have broken into the hut at Catfish several times during my absence, and have eaten my provisions and upset everything. I had a window nailed up with inch boards, and five-inch spikes, and they tore that off and got in again. They come at night, too, and waken me up. I struck one in the face one night as he was trying to climb in the window, and I scared another away when he started to pull down the barricade. The park men told me I should get a heavy revolver. I am not afraid of bears, but they are more troublesome than mice and squirrels."



A TRIPLE SKIRT AND AN OVERBLOUSE OFFER CHANCE ENOUGH FOR CONTRAST

Contrast is the key-note of many of our smart frocks at the moment, and, aside from the charming combinations one is able to achieve, think of the possibilities for economy! Many of the new modes suggest ways of economizing, but none of them are more practical than this combining of two or more colors and materials.

A wee bit of tapestry or brocade works wonders nowadays. It may be used for the vest, cuffs or girdle of some particular dress with pleasing result.

Faille is one of the supple silks much in favor just now. It is used in 7993. The dark brown of the silk is effectively relieved by collar, cuffs and girdle of burnt orange. A combination rich and striking.

In size 36 7993 may be copied with 4⅝ yards of 42 inch material and ½ yard of contrasting silk or brocade.

One shade of chiffon over another offers exquisite beauty of coloring. In 7997 pale blue chiffon is hung over pale pink rose printed chiffon with most dainty effect. An underblouse of shadow lace completes the frock.

THE ANIMALS' HEALTH

Dwellers in the Toronto Zoo Make Good Patients

"A long way the healthiest animal here," said Mr. P. Goode, superintendent of the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, "is the elephant. We have had her about ten years, and she has only been sick or sorry once in the last five years, and then she had only a slight cold."

Speaking generally, Mr. Goode was of the opinion that the denizens of the Zoo made good patients. The great majority of them, he was convinced, are more insensible to pain than are human beings. And they have nothing like the same apprehension of death or suffering. To this rule, however, he made some exceptions. A sick monkey, he said, was one of the most pity-stirring sights of the world. To see a monkey die was piteous in the extreme. It showed just the same kind of feelings as a human being does.

"I should say that the leopard is the most delicate of the animals we have here. He has a shorter coat than either the lion or the tiger, and a cold wind affects him. We lost a leopard two years ago from pneumonia. That is really the chief disease of which we stand in dread. On the whole we are extremely free from illness at the Zoo.

"Black and brown bears give very little trouble. They are naturally strong. And when they are feeling not quite up to the mark they will drink cod liver oil freely out of a cup.

"Beavers are healthy, as well as industrious. But they fight like fury. Where a male and female are together, and have a family, and found a colony, they are all right. But put in a strange beaver among this colony and they will kill him inside of twenty-four hours. They will cut his tail off, and tear holes in his back. And all this will be done under water. Beavers can stand any amount of pain. I have known a beaver badly mauled, and gangrene set in until half of him was really dead. And yet he would still keep on diving."

A Winged Ambulance

A hunter, of North Battleford, tells a story about a goose which he wounded and which was apparently about to fall to the ground. It was actually supported by two of its mates, who, upon seeing the predicament flew underneath the bird in distress so that their wings on the upward flap would reach the injured member of the flock. In this way, remarkable to relate, the three geese—the ambulance and the patient—reached the river in safety.

While the hunter could easily have picked off the whole three geese with the second volley, he was prevented from doing so by the remarkable demonstration of brotherly kindness in the care of the injured goose. The ingenious method which was employed by the members of this ambulance corps seems to prove conclusively that sometimes a goose is not a goose!

A fire which resulted in a large house at Westport, New Zealand, being burned to the ground was caused by a fly which escaped, a burning mass, from a gas jet into which it had flown and alighting on the window curtains set them ablaze.

Our Point of View

Harry Thaw should run for Governor of New York. Everybody seems to be doing it.

—o—

Secretary Ryan says that both Lincoln and Jefferson were $500,000,000 men. His modesty refrains from estimating his own value to future generations.

—o—

Conan Doyle says he will bring Sherlock Holmes to New York. And the "men higher up" are beginning to shiver.

—o—

"Wild Women" and "Furies" the American newspapers call the English militants. What the London "bobbies" call them has not yet been made public.

—o—

The New York Sun wants the first article of the constitution to read: "All legislatives powers herein granted shall be vested in Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and the American Federation of Labor." Why the Senate?

—o—

Ulster Resolute

Those who can dismiss with an airy wave of the hand the [illegible] of Ulster against the [illegible] the Imperial [illegible] do not count on the temperament of the people of the North. The notion expressed by some Liberal papers that now the danger of armed conflict is over is born of ignorance, says the News. The volunteers under Sir Edward Carson have proved the value of their organization, and the vigor of their spirit. They have been heartened by the undoubted fact that the army is not for the Government a dependable instrument for the conquest of a loyalist community. They have been able to secure what arms they need. They are convinced of the existence of a growing body of opinion in England hostile to the Asquith Minister and sympathetic towards the reasonable demands of Protestant Ireland. The result of the Ipswich election brought comfort. So they lie on their arms waiting for the Government to attempt to coerce them. Mr. Asquith dares not move. Even Mr. Churchill is in a chastened mood, and Mr. Lloyd George, the "Member for Billingsgate," as his opponents begin to call him, does not become more influential. The Irish trouble has not ended. It has scarcely begun.

Joint and Muscle Pains Banished by Nerviline

IT CURES RHEUMATISM

Thousands of people, chuck full of the joy of living—happy, glad, bright people, that Nerviline has cured of their pains, all tell the same wonderful story of its power to drive out the aches and tortures of rheumatism and kindred ills.

"My goodness, but Nerviline is a miracle-worker," writes Mrs. Charlotte Chipman, mother of a well-known family residing at Mount Pleasant. "Last month I was so crippled up with sciatica and muscular rheumatism as to be almost unable to a bit of housework. My joints were so stiff and the muscles so frightfully sore that I even cried at times with the pain. For years we have used Nerviline in our family and I just got busy with this wonderful, good old liniment. Lots of rubbing with Nerviline soon relieved my misery and I was in a real short time about my work as usual."

No matter where the ache is, no matter how distressing the pain you can rub it away with Nerviline. For forty years it has been curing lumbago, sciatica, back-ache, colds, chest trouble and all sorts of winter ills. Keep a large 50c. family size bottle handy and you'll be saved lots of trouble and have smaller doctor bills. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Mr. Carvell was selected by the Opposition in Parliament, to lead the attack on Col. Hughes during the passing of his estimates, and Mr. Guthrie to move for a wholesale reduction of militia expenditure. Neither met with much success; on the contrary, the Minister more than held his own against both.

His announcement that when he took office he found a debt of $4,000,000 hanging over the department, which had been incurred by his predecessor, Sir Frederick Borden, for material, not a dollar's worth of which was delivered till quite recently, although payments on account had to be made all along, was a facer from which his critics never rallied.

They denounced him for following out the report and suggestions of Sir John French, described by Mr. Carvell as a wild Jingo, but were staggered again when he informed them that Sir Frederick was Minister when the report was handed in, and had acted upon it by incurring the huge debt referred to without a murmur from his Liberal colleagues or supporters.

For the most part, the controversy raged around the construction of drill halls and the insincerity of the Liberals was made manifest when first one and then another of them suggested that a drill hall should be built in his constituency. They are opposed to militarism, but would like a full share of the expenditure.

It was ever thus. "The Grits," Sir John Macdonald used to say, "belabour me for my Tory extravagances; yet, adopting the principle laid down by the squaw, that a little too much whiskey is just enough, every man Jack of them wants a bonus for a railway in his own riding."

It is tolerably safe to say that hereafter the Minister of Militia will be let severely alone by the Liberals. They have discovered that nothing is to be made by assailing him, that he can not only defend himself successfully, but carry the war into Africa with extraordinary energy.

Japs Never Swear

A lecturer in the Edinburgh Philosophical Institute recently said that there were no "swear words" in the Japanese language, and that one seldom heard angry words, and never cursing or swearing in a Japanese crowd.

TOBACCO CULTURE ON PACIFIC COAST

Splendid Results Achieved by Irrigation Methods in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia

That tobacco culture is fast assuming the importance of a national Canadian enterprise is a fact appreciated by but a small proportion of the citizens of this country. For many years when Canadian tobacco was spoken of one immediately thought of the crudely cured French Canadian Twist, one pipe full of which was liable to leave lifelong impressions, but to-day not only has Quebec-grown tobacco been brought to superior quality but the counties of Essex and Kent in Ontario produce annually in the neighborhood of 15,000,000 pounds of tobacco, which find a ready market in a popular brand of cigars, pipe and chewing tobacco.

But now British Columbia upon the horizon as a producer of tobacco of a most superior quality. Fifteen years ago in the Okanagan Valley it was first attempted but with varying success. Seven years ago a local company formed at Kelowna putting in 50 to 70 acres, and so successful was this company in growing a superior leaf that it has given impetus to a new commercial product which will in a short time become one of vital importance to the Rocky Mountain Province.

Leaf for cigar purposes constitutes the principal crop, the varieties being Cuban or Havana, Comstock Spanish, Wisconsin and Sumatra.

There is money in growing tobacco. A good average crop of Havana runs to about a thousand pounds per acre, worth say 25 cents a pound to the producer. Wisconsin and Comstock Spanish yield heavier, fourteen to eighteen hundred pounds per acre, and bring the producer from 15 cents to 20 cents a pound. This would make a range of profits average from $125 to $175 or acre.

No fertilizer is yet required in the growing of tobacco in British Columbia, but irrigation plays an important part. This irrigation is of the simplest kind, however, and presents few difficulties. One irrigation has proved to be sufficient, and is generally done at a season when water is most plentiful. The field is thoroughly soaked before planting begins, and with careful cultivation there is then sufficient moisture stored in the soil to last the tobacco plants during their growing season.

CLIMATE AND TOBACCO

The Atmosphere Has Marked Effect Upon the Weed

If your tobacco begins to mildew, don't throw it away. It can easily be restored. But the whole of it must be treated, as one spot of mildew is sufficient to taint a whole tin or jarful.

Lay the tobacco on some muslin, and hold the muslin over the spout of a kettle for a minute. The steam will kill the fungus, and when the tobacco dries it will be as good as ever.

If your tobacco, instead of mildewing, has turned dry and brittle, use a spray. A perfume spray costs only a few pence at a chemist's. Load it with cold water, and spray the tobacco gently, having first strewn it out evenly on a flat surface.

If, when you are at the seaside, you find that your favorite cigars or cigarettes have "gone off," do not blame the local tobacconist. The salt in it makes cigars and cigarettes "sick," to use the technical phrase. Many naval men stationed in the tropics pack their cigarettes and cigars in tea, which absorbs the salt moisture of the air.

In Trifles

The trite expression, "It is the little things in life that count," is aptly illustrated by noting the fortunes that have been made out of the small inventions. Fifteen thousand dollars was the magnificent sum received by De Quilfeldt, a New Jersey inventor, for a rubber bottle-stopper which he invented. A lead-pencil rubber eraser increased the fortunes of Hyman L. Lipman, of Philadelphia, by the snug sum of $200,000; George Heaton, of Providence, R.I., used a metal staple to fasten a button on his shoe, conceived the idea of patenting the same, and now writes his cheques for six figures.

His "One-Hoss Shay"

When the history of London street traffic is written, it will probably be recorded that Lord Rothschild was the last person to ride daily through the City in a brougham. Motor omnibuses are all careful to give the blue brougham plenty of elbow room, for every driver on the road knows Lord Rothschild's carriage, and thinks kindly of the generous donor of pheasants who rides inside. Although he is now in his seventy-fourth year, Lord Rothschild is regular as a clock in his attendance in the City. About four o'clock in the afternoon the blue brougham takes him home again to Piccadilly.

WORDS THAT SPEAK

Bang—"a sudden noise like that from a gun" is the definition given by the dictionary. But the explanation is befogging and futile, for a "bang" is—well, what better describes it than that simple word itself?

So many of our most expressive words seem similarly to have sprung from a desire to form with the lips a sound mimicking the thing described. Why waste words on a definition of the word "splash," for example? You hear all the abrupt, restless heaving of the waters in that one word.

And does even a baby need to be told what "buzz" means when a bluebottle is leading a forlorn hope against the pantry window?

"Tinkle," "whistle," "whine," "gurgle," "cackle," "icy"—these are only a few of our other eloquently descriptive words.

It is also extremely interesting to note the sharp distinction drawn between the words of opposite meaning so as to emphasize their difference in sound—thus, "brisk, lazy" (or "sluggish"); "hot, icy"; "down, up"; "jolly, miserable,"; and so on.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 92.

A Bane of Bundles.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

Of course, I heartily appreciate the spirit in which Mary's people and mine shower us with gifts, but I must say I don't enjoy carrying bundles home every night of my life. Sometimes it's a loaf of bread, freshly baked, and, rather than hurt mother's feelings by rejecting it, I trot dutifully homeward with the loaf under my arm. Once Mary's mother gave me a basket of peaches, and once a watermelon, none of which conduce to the dignity of locomotion.

A few days ago a friend of Mr. Penfield's gave him a crate of Florida oranges, and, with his usual kindliness, he telephoned me as soon as he got them.

When the Bag Burst.

"Stop at the house, Peter," he said, "and I'll give you some to take home. You'll like them. They're sweet and awfully good eating."

Generosity made his vague "some" into a great many more than Mary and I needed, and certainly more than I wished to carry. Now, on this particular night, I had been doing some shopping for my wife. Also I was carrying home special work to do in the evening. Therefore, when I boarded a trolley for home, I was laden down with bundles and oranges.

The car was full of home-going shoppers. I struggled through, bowing and fuming because my hands were so full I couldn't raise my hat to the women in the car. All at once the car lurched violently around a corner and I stumbled. Whether or not the bottom of the bag was wet I don't know. I do know that by some heaven-forsaken fatality the bottom promptly left the bag of oranges and they began to roll wildly about in all directions.

Swearing inwardly, I watched them shoot down the aisle and up the aisle and into cross seats. Everybody laughed at my predicament, of course. Who wouldn't? I ventured a sickly smile, though I shall never forget my humiliation when people began to return the oranges.

"By Jove," roared a friendly idiot in the corner, "here's another, Peter. Hold your hands."

I fixed him with a malevolent glare. Quite in vain. He threw the orange to me, went on a hunt and found three more.

Still "the Camel."

"Here's three," he bawled to my increasing discomfort. "Wait a minute, Peter, if you haven't any more room in your pockets I'll put them in your hat!"

Oranges then began to appear from all sections of the car. They were passed on with a running fire of humorous remarks to me. Indeed, I was the fuming centre of all eyes. How many oranges there were in that infernal bag I shall never know, but by the time I was ready to leave the car my pockets were full and another fellow who got off at my corner had lent me the use of his pockets.

"Well, Peter," he said good-naturedly, after he had laid his fruit cargo one by one on my porch, "that was a mess for fair, wasn't it. You didn't look as if you were enjoying it. If you hadn't had so many other bundles, though, you'd have been all right. Keep you pretty busy carrying things back and forth, don't they? No wonder the fellows call you 'The Camel!'"

The Camel! I strode into the house in a towering rage.

"Mary," I burst forth indignantly, unloading oranges rapidly from all my pockets, whence they proceeded to roll about the floor, "do you realise that I am the laughing stock of the universe? Do you realise that people call me the Camel because I'm always the beast of burden from your house and mine out home here? Do you realise how I felt in the car tonight? Call your father up this instant and tell him I carry no more bundles home. I'll call up mother later."

I rebelled, but I still carry bundles. And they still call me "The Camel!"

It doesn't do to be too sure that there are no such creatures as mermaids. You may have a private opinion of certain men who claim to have seen them—generally near the equator, where the water is ladylike—but reserve your judgment. Something startling may happen to YOU. In fact, there are circumstances under which it is extremely difficult to say, offhand, whether certain creatures are mermaids or not. You may be tremendously embarrassed and may have to beat a retreat before acquiring the knowledge that would fit you to make a cold, hard, scientific report.

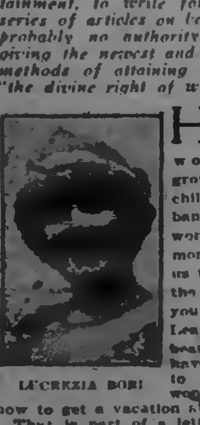
Many a good man has been ducked, and many a foolish investigator, who wanted to settle this mermaid question, has regretted his rashness. When in doubt, RUN.

Day-a-Week Vacations

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."



LUCREZIA BORI

"How is it possible for a busy woman with a growing family of children and a husband who is overworked earning money to support us to get away for the beauty vacation you write about? Leaving out the beauty, which I have long ceased to think about, won't you tell me how to get a vacation at all?"

That is part of a letter sent to me. It will take me out of the straight line of beauty discourse to answer it, but I am going to do it, for it may add a bit to the happiness of some woman, and happiness is the greatest of all beautifiers.

Will you permit me to say that, in my opinion, Americans are too serious? They work too hard and they don't know how to play. When one has a large and growing family, for which the father has to earn money outside the home and the mother has to care for inside the home, then is the very time when the spirit of play should be cultivated. No women in the world need a vacation so much as the busy mothers. They need it as much for the good of the family as for themselves.

Vacation does not necessarily mean travel into a far land, there to do nothing but loaf and change your clothes.

It means taking a play-spell. Itself means simply a change of action.

Vacations may be gained by letting go the reins of routine, if only for a day.

A very poor and busy woman once told me of a wonderful vacation she had enjoyed for two days. "Where did you go?" I asked. "Oh, I didn't go away at all," she said. "I stayed home and sat in the rocking chair by the window and ate bread and milk, so I didn't have to cook, and it was lovely."

You see, there was a woman who had the right idea of what really constitutes a vacation.

Plan during this summer, you dear busy folks who can't get away for a long loaf, to make one day out of each week a genuine vacation.

Play as hard that one day as you work the other six. If you fall asleep and the day passes in dreams, that is the vacation you most need at the moment. Besides, it is a popular beauty cure to take a day of sleep to keep the wrinkles out of one's face.

Pack a big basket with plenty of wholesome and simple food, dress the kiddies in clothes that can't be spoiled, turn the key in the home door and board a trolley car and get out into the green country where there are pure, sweet air and fields of waving grass and blooming flowers, and you will find the pack of care slipping off your shoulders and the frazzled ends of your nerves knitting together. And the simplest lunch becomes a feast, eaten in the peace and freedom of the country, with the songs and flutterings of the birds and bees for a cabaret.

Besides, it is as surely a vacation as if you went to the railroad station and bought a ticket to Some-Hurst-by-the-Sea and tried to outdress and outdance every other woman there.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

Every Sunday night when we girls go walking, two special boys follow us on the streets. We do not like them, but they insist on going with us. Would you go with them? We are both 16 years of age, and are high school students.

Do you think it proper for girls of 16 to get married? CHUMS.

I WONDER if you girls really think. think what you say you think, when you write letters.

If you two girls do not like those two boys, keep away from where they are.

Why should you go with them?

Now, girls, you know well enough that you're only pretending about those boys; if you didn't want to see them you'd choose some other time besides the very hour they're sure to be out on that special street for your special walk.

Stay in the house a few evenings; you won't die or fade away like withered leaves or do anything else tragic and terrible, and what are your mothers doing letting you think of marriage at 16.

Keep your brains for your studies. Don't fritter them away on a lot of silly nonsense about the boys. There's plenty of time for that later on.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office

Great Novels in a Nutshell

Victor Hugo's
NOTRE DAME

Condensed by
AUGUSTA SHELBY

Gringoire, a threadbare poet, disappointed by his failure to win the place of "The Pope of Fools"; Esmeralda, a gypsy girl of witching beauty and lissome grace; Claude Frollo, a priest; Quasimodo, the bell ringer of Notre Dame, a hideous monster, a red-haired, tusked hunchback of herculean strength; Capt. Phoebus, debonair and handsome, and Gudule, the recluse nun, are, in order, the principal characters of Victor Hugo's immortal dramatic romance, "Notre Dame."

The scene is laid on the 6th of January, 1482, in Paris, in the Place de Greve. The celebration of the "Day of Kings" and the "Feast of Fools," the great popular holiday of the year, was drawing to a close. Gringoire, the poet, was looking for food and shelter for the night.

In the centre of the Place de Greve, in the flickering light of a bonfire, Esmeralda, with a white goat at her heels, was dancing.

Her bared shoulders, her golden corselet, her multi-hued skirt, and her wondrous nymph-like grace made her appear like a beautiful vision. The priest, Frollo, watched her entranced. She had strangely fired his heart. She caught sight of him, mimicked the preaching of the Maitre Charmolue, and when Frollo murmured "Sacrilege," she made him a grimace and disappeared in the crowd.

That night she was attacked by Quasimodo, Pope-elect of Fools, and one of his companions. Gringoire tried to save her. Quasimodo threw him aside. Capt. Phoebus de Chateaupers appeared and swung her to safety into the saddle of his charger. Whereupon she thanked him, slipped to the ground and fled.

Gringoire was left in the worst part of Paris, where no man's life was safe. The Truands, denizens of the section, put a rope about his neck and dragged him to the market place to hang him.

It was said his life would be spared if one of the Truand women would wed him. No one would. There was a cry, "La Esmeralda! La Esmeralda!" The lovely gypsy approached the executioner and said she would marry the poet and save his life.

The hunchback bell ringer and the priest were united by two loves. They loved Notre Dame. Likewise they loved Esmeralda. They hated all rivals in this latter love.

Esmeralda Rescues Gringoire.

Sister Gudule, emaciated recluse, in her cell, watched the gypsy girl with hatred. Twenty years ago she was a beauty. Her life was ruined and her baby girl was stolen by gypsies and the horrid hunchback Quasimodo left in her place.

Again and again she would hurl insults and curses at the innocent Esmeralda from the window of her cell.

Esmeralda met Capt. Phoebus in secret. Frollo spied on them. As the lovely girl threw her arms about the captain's neck and told of her love, a strange livid face appeared before her, a claw-like hand grasped a poinard, the captain fell in a pool of blood and cried "malediction," as Esmeralda fainted. When she recovered she was arrested on a charge of murder. Vainly she protested her innocence. She was sentenced to be hanged. In her cell the priest visited her. He told of his love, of the crime committed for her sake, he begged for pity, for mercy.

"What of Phoebus?" she asked.

"He is dead," answered the priest.

"Then why talk to me of living?" was her reply.

Esmeralda stood in the shadow of the gallows. The priest begged her to relent. "Begone, demon, or I'll denounce you," was her final answer.

The executioner made ready for his deed.

Above and beyond his head Esmeralda saw Phoebus, the man she loved. They had all lied! She called to him and he turned away with a shrug of indifference and she fell senseless to the ground. Before they could raise her to resume the execution, Quasimodo rushed in with the cry, "the sanctuary!" and carried her to the church, where she would be safe, for none would profane the church by taking her from it to the gallows.

Gringoire and Frollo, in disguise, visited her and induced her to fly with them. When she was out of the protection of the church and saw the hated face of the priest, heard his protestations of love, felt his hated kisses, she fought against him, and threatened to tear his "gray hair and throw it in handfuls in thy face."

Mad with baffled rage, Frollo dragged her to the cell of Gudule and threw her in, crying, "Gudule, here is the gypsy woman! Take your revenge."

With wild, maniacal laughter the recluse taunted her with the loss of her child, and showed the lovely Esmeralda a baby's silken shoe, all she had left.

"Dost thou know where its mate is?" she demanded. Silently Esmeralda drew the other shoe from a bag she wore about her neck. "My daughter!" cried Gudule, and embraced her.

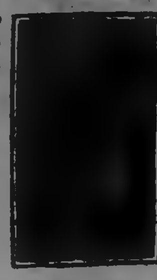
Then came the soldiers to arrest Esmeralda. The mother fought in vain. The walls of the cell were beaten down, and Esmeralda again was taken to the gibbet. Gudule followed. She sunk her teeth into the hand of the executioner. He flung her back. She fell—dead.

As the white form of the unhappy Esmeralda was carried up the ladder Frollo leaned over the parapet to watch, a grim smile on his face. Quasimodo sprung to his shoulders, and the priest fell into the abyss dead. Quasimodo, seeing Esmeralda die, leaped after him, murmuring as he jumped, "Oh, all that I have ever loved."

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How to Save and Improve Your Children's Eyesight

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

A YOUNGSTER'S eyes should receive attention the very minute it is born. This is because there is always a chance that they may harbor a few germs of the terrible disease known as ophthalmia neonatorum. In adults, though they often make a lot of trouble, they seldom invade the eye, but in new-born babies this organ is their favorite abiding place.

In two days, or maybe three days, the baby's eyes grow red and begin to discharge a creamy pus. The upper lids swell and fall over the lower ones. By and by the infection extends to the eyeball and the child's sight is permanently impaired, if not entirely destroyed. A generation ago nearly half of the blind people in the world had lost their sight in this way in infancy. Today it is possible to cure ophthalmia neonatorum before it has fairly set in. The method is very simple and consists solely of dropping two drops of a 1 per cent. watery solution of silver nitrate into each eye of the new born child. The silver nitrate is a powerful antiseptic, and it kills the germs instantly. In itself it is utterly harmless to the eye. This should be done immediately after the child is born.

Washing the Eyes.

The child's eyes need constant attention for several weeks after birth, but the services of a physician are not necessary. Perfect cleanliness is the end to be attained, and frequent washing is the means to that end. Instead of plain water, it is best to use a solution made by dropping a teaspoonful of boracic acid (not common kitchen borax) into a cupful of water that has been boiled and then permitted to cool till lukewarm.

Before washing your baby's eyes, cleanse your hands thoroughly with soap and warm water, and after that dip them in a basin containing a gill or so of peroxide of hydrogen in half a pint of water. Then tear off a bit of sterilised absorbent cotton, dip it into the boracic acid solution and tenderly mop the baby's eyelids. Never touch a child's eyes with a rag. In the nursery, indeed, absorbent cotton should be used instead of towel and rags whenever it is possible.

In early infancy an infant's eyes are exposed to the twin dangers of neglect and coddling. See to it that neither direct sunlight nor strong artificial light shines into your baby's face, awake or asleep, but do not make the mistake of shading it too much. The eyes of all of us, in later life, must take their share of heavy accidental strains, and so they must be trained to bear the burden.

They Should be Exercising Their Lungs and Legs in the Parks.

As the child begins to run about and explore the world, the strain upon its eyes begins to grow serious. If it is of an alert, inquiring mind it will tackle the English alphabet very early, and essay to master the art of reading. This spirit always pleases parents vastly, but it is well to discourage it. A child under 6 can derive nothing but harm from poring over books, even when the type is large and the pictures are alluring.

Neither should it be permitted to strain its eyes by attempting to write, or by engaging in any game or handicraft employing small objects.

Get Needed Glasses.

I sometimes believe that the kindergartens and baby classes to be found in every city and town are the greatest of all enemies of Young America. They drag into the stuffy classroom youngsters who should be exercising their lungs and legs in the parks, and they put into practice questionable theories of education. Condemned to serve as a subject for this sort of pedagogical vivisection, it is no wonder that many a child grows restless or sluggish. Nine times out of ten a physical examination of the backward or unruly child will reveal enlarged tonsils, massive adenoids, bad hearing or faulty vision.

If your child is irritable, has headaches, squints his eyes when his attention is attracted, holds his book close to his face, or seems otherwise uncomfortable at his studies take him to an ophthalmologist at once. The oculist who offers to examine eyes free will not serve as a substitute. The proper examination of a child's eyes requires professional skill of a high order, and this is only to be found among men of long training.

If you live in a small town it is best to seek advice in the nearest large city. Your family physician will give you a letter to the right man, and if you are wise you will remember that the latter's comparatively high fee will be money well invested. It stands to reason that a competent specialist must be well paid for his labors. His education was very expensive, and it was not until long years of good work with little pay had proved his capacity that he was able to set up shop as an expert.

If this ophthalmologist prescribes glasses for your child, have them made at once, and see to it that your child wears them as he directs. Most children object to glasses, and parental vanity often supports them in their protests; but it is obvious that this is not an argument. Taken in time, there are few defects of vision that cannot be permanently corrected.

The curriculum of the average public school is planned for the entirely normal child, and its drain upon the resources of this child is always pushed to the limit of safety. The child with defective vision is not a normal child, and should have its studies arranged accordingly. Instead of being sent to school at the age of 6 or 7, it should be kept at home until it is 12, and its periods of book study should be short.

Until it is 9 years old a child should spend no more than three hours a day at its studies. At 9 another hour may be added, and at 10 the customary five hours may be safely attempted. This should be the limit for boys until they are 14, and for girls until they are 12.

When your child studies or reads at home, let it do so in the daytime, and see that it sits somewhere where the light can strike its book over the left shoulder. In writing, if the light comes from the right the hand casts a shadow, and this causes a peculiarly severe strain upon the eyes. Until the child is 10 years old it should read nothing but large type, and no more than a dozen pages a day.

Common Eye Maladies.

Stray germs and flying dust cause most of the minor eye maladies from which children suffer. A typical disease of this sort is conjunctivitis, or "pink eye." It is caused by the lodgment of germs in the inner lining of the eyelid, and its symptoms are familiar to every one. Inasmuch as there are many varieties of germs capable of producing it, it is very common, and frequently appears in epidemic form. At its mildest, it is a simple infection which disappears after a few days. At its worst, when it is caused, for example, by the lodgment of diphtheria germs in the eye, it may become extremely serious.

The treatment is ordinarily confined to irrigation with mildly antiseptic washes, administered with a dropper. Sometimes it is necessary to apply ice compresses, or to combat the tenacious germs with strong drugs. In such cases, of course, a physician must be summoned, since it is very hazardous for inexperienced persons to deal with the human eye. In ordinary cases the boracic acid wash I have described will afford relief. The patient should be kept in a darkened room until the pain ceases.

The so-called "sty" is nothing more or less than a small pimple upon the edge of the eyelid. It usually comes to a head and discharges its pus in a few days, and after that it quickly heals. When a sty happens to be uncommonly large or painful it may be necessary to have a physician lance it, but ordinarily a mild mercury ointment will afford all the aid that nature needs. When styes appear frequently the child's general health needs attention.

A very painful eye malady is caused by the stopping up of the tiny ducts which carry the tears from the eyes to the nose. When the bodily machine is working normally, just enough tears are secreted to lubricate the eyeball. The eyelid, in the act of winking, spreads them over the eye, and the waste runs down the nasal ducts to the nose.

What "Sniffling" Is.

When dust irritates the eye, or some powerful mental impression stimulates the tear-making glands, tears flow in extraordinary quantity and the eyeball is suffused. They come so fast, in fact, that the nasal ducts can't carry them all off, and they run down the cheeks. But, all the same, the ducts do their best, and so, when a child weeps, a part of its tears escape by way of its nose, and it "sniffles."

If these ducts, by accident or disease, are clogged up, the tears needed for the ordinary lubrication of the eyeball run over the lower lid and the patient has "watery eyes." To remedy this a surgeon must be consulted. He will pass a series of probes through the ducts, beginning with one as fine as a needle, and ending with one as large as a small leadpencil. This will clear and stretch the ducts and restore them to their old usefulness as drains of the eyes.

The surgeon is needed, too, to correct crossed or squint eyes. This disagreement is due to a faulty balancing of the eye in its socket. The muscles on one side pull harder than those on the other, and as a result the eye turns. The remedy consists in splitting the more powerful muscle. This weakens it and thus equalises the pull on both sides.

Answers to Health Questions.

J. K. S.—My neck is of a brown color. Why is this? My face is pale and I'm thin.

Evidently you lead too quiet and too much of an indoor life. Your face should be burned by the sun. Learn to row, swim, fish, sail, dance, play tennis, sleep out of doors, if possible, gobble up as much meat and eggs, milk and cream, butter and green vegetables as you can. For your brown skin use borax water and tincture of green soap.

S. G. S.—Can you increase the height by stretching the spine? What will build a thin person up?

If you mean exercises, such as stretching by physical culture, trapeze performing, swimming, rowing, bicycle riding and the like, you may succeed a bit in adding to your height.

STABLE FLOORS

Cement is Best But Should Have Plank Covering For Cows

The stable floor is a prolific source of trouble unless it is properly made. One may go into many a barn and find the floors reeking with filth although they look clean to the casual observer. The old-fashioned plank floor that was laid on top of the ground allowed the moisture and the filth to work through the cracks, making mudholes that were just about as pure as a cesspool from which the odors and gases arise in the stable, especially during hot weather. This same floor may be swept and spotless as stable floors are considered, but it can never be cleaned until conditions beneath are remedied.

All plank floors are not like this, but many of them are and that in itself is sufficient to condemn the general use of this material for such purposes. Furthermore, with the prices that now prevail one can hardly afford to put such a valuable commodity as a good plank under the cows.

The cement floor is as nearly ideal as anything known to dairymen at this time. It is practically germ proof, it can be washed, it does not allow for any seepage of moisture, there are no unsightly cracks, all of the manure can be saved and the barn can be kept cleaner and more free from stable odors.

Naturally the cement floor is not most ideal for the cow's feet; it is not the best place for her to stand unless it is covered with plank or cork brick or blocks, but the cement offers the right foundation for this covering and it is necessary if one would have the best stable floor.

There are twin mountains that stand like sentinels to guard the city of Vancouver which are called "The Lions" for some say they resemble the recumbent lions sculptured by Landseer that stand in Trafalgar Square, London.

A HUGE UNDERTAKING

Before the building of the C.P.R. tunnel, five miles long, at Rogers Pass, B.C., in connection with the double-tracking work between Calgary and Vancouver is complete, it will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. Thirty feet of boring per day is the estimate. Sometimes railway tunnellers make as much as forty and fifty feet per day, but, again, when they strike a difficult piece of rock they are lucky if they make thirty feet in the day. It will take three years to complete the bore, from which about 250,000 cubic yards of material will be taken out by way of the pioneer tunnel. One of the features of the work, which will be of the greatest interest and value, considering that it means the piercing of the heart of a great mountain range and is on a parity with the boring of the Alps many years ago (a feat which held the world breathless), is the erection of model villages at the two portals of the tunnel at a cost of $50,000. The floors of the houses at Glacier are to be eight feet from the ground, with bridges to connect the houses with the work. The undertaking is full of picturesque possibilities. The men will be poised in mid air, so to say. The immemorial silence of the everlasting hills will be broken by a great utilitarian organization which, although it may poetically affirm that the Olympian gods have taken up their abode in the Rockies, has its eye on the dollar. For three years cut off from the world, working by shifts day and night, the mountain will be pierced bit by bit until, after 1,095 days and nights, daylight will creep through the blackness of the long passage and the tunnel will be completed. This is the biggest single feature the railway company has undertaken.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

CARVING CAMEOS

This Delicate Process Was Not Known to the Ancient Greeks and Romans

The carving of shell cameos is a comparatively modern art. The Greeks and Romans, although they made cameos out of layered agate knew nothing about shell carving, possibly because the Mediterranean did not supply suitable shells. When shell carving [illegible] many different kinds of shell were tried, but all were found faulty because of size color or lack of permanence except one variety of the hermit shell. Of this variety, [illegible] out of many shells [illegible] the making of a [illegible] even [illegible] outer layer [illegible] surface.

The [illegible] carving the [illegible] requires great skill and delicacy. If the shell is to be carved as a whole, the artist takes advantage of the fact that the coloring of the lower layer is richest next the mouth of the shell and the ridges on the last whorl are thick enough to permit deep carving. For commercial purposes the shell is usually cut into pieces with a tin wheel, running water and emery powder.

The piece that is to be carved has to be shaped with a small grindstone and the surface has to be smoothed and cleared of imperfections. A piece of paper cemented to the back keeps the shell from cracking and is used for fastening a working handle to the cameo.

After the design has been drawn on the outer surface with a pencil it is cut in the soft white outer layer with steel engraver's (much like a wood engraver's) tools. The naturally colored inner layer, which becomes the background, requires polishing and developing with pumice and acid, rubbed in with a boxwood stick.

The whole process must be carried out with great care, because the shell is very fragile and can easily be broken or corroded by the acid used in polishing.

ORIGIN OF GOLD NUGGETS

Experiments Show That Their Structure Resembles Meteorites

An attempt was made by an investigator in Australia to discover how gold nuggets originate. The first thing done was to cut, slice and polish nuggets with the sole purpose of finding out just what was the nature of their structure.

Close observation revealed the fact that there is some curious points of resemblance between gold nuggets and meteorites. Both when polished and etched with chlorine water, exhibit a crystalline structure. In the case of meteorites the lines thus exhibited on the etched surface are called Widmannstattian figures, and their presence is said to be one of the most invariable characteristics of those metallic bodies that fall from the sky to the earth.

But it is not meant to be implied that gold nuggets have fallen from the sky because they exhibit a crystalline structure recalling that of meteorites. The resemblance is apparently only superficial, and the crystals of the nuggets differ in form from those of the meteorites.

Another curious fact is that when a nugget is heated in a Bunsen flame, explosions take place on its surface. Blisters are formed which continue to swell until they burst with a sharp report and bits of gold are violently scattered about.

It is evident that the nuggets contain either gases or some liquids or solids which are easily converted into the gaseous form, the expansion of which produces the explosions.

Wood Buffalo in the North

"There are fully 500 head of wood buffalo west and north of Fort Smith, which is on the Great Slave river, in the extreme northeast corner of the province of Alberta," said A. J. Bell, guardian of 3,000 Indians of the Yellow Knife, Dog Rib, Chipewyan and Cariboo Eaters tribes. "The buffalo in the northern district have every mark of resemblance to the bison of the plains, but constantly living in the heavy timbered country has made them much wilder and unapproachable than the prairie buffalo. As these animals are protected no killing being permitted, there should be a rapid increase in their numbers."

OPTICAL TELEGRAPH

This Serves as a Telephone For Deaf People

An optical telegraph intended to fill the place of the telephone for talking with a deaf person has been invented by a deaf and dumb married couple. It consists essentially of a keyboard, as in a typewriter, through whose keys single electric currents pass. In each circuit is included an incandescent lamp with a flat surface, bearing a letter of the alphabet or a Roman numeral. Pressing any key causes the corresponding lamp to glow. Thus words and sentences are spelled out and numbers are formed.

The keyboard can be operated as fast as that of an ordinary typewriter, so that with practice communication becomes very smooth and rapid. Each station, of course, must contain both a sender and a receiver, and these may be in different rooms or in houses a long distance apart.

The instrument can be conveniently used for conversation between a deaf person and a normal person who is ignorant of the finger language. The silence with which the device is operated is a very important point in its favor. This feature might make it especially useful where quiet or secrecy in transmitting information is desirable, as in sending war news or secret instructions in business houses. —"Literary Digest."

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!
Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.
Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.
Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.
Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

New Automobile Head-lamp

A new automobile head-lamp which represents a radical departure from present designs has made its appearance in France. The lamp has the shape of a human eyeball and turns in its socket in exactly the same manner as the eye. Two small clamps controlled by thumb screws from the interior of the car hold the lamp in position in any desired direction while the handle itself is used in turning the light rays to the side they are needed.

Gas

Who first used the word "gas," and why? Merely because of the supposed resemblance of the product of burning carbon to the "chaos" of the Greeks. "This spirit, hitherto unknown," wrote the experimenter Van Helmont in 1648, "I call by the new name gas, and I call it so because being untamable, it is scarcely distinguishable from the chaos of the ancients." A glimpse at modern gas devices will show how far removed from untamability is the gas of today.

Local Man Referred To

Lindsay Warder: Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of Peterboro, who is an aspirant for the membership in the interests of the Reform Party for the county, was in town to-day attending the cheese board. His political venture did not seem to stimulate him by way of elevating the price to any noticeable extent over the home buyer.

Two Unpopular Candidates

The vote for parliamentary honors had been very close, and on the day after the election one Irish citizen was questioning a friend about the result. "How is it, Mike," he said, "that in so many votes it should be neck and neck betune th' two min?" "Well, I'll tell ye, Pat," said Mike. "They're both very onpopiller min, and, if ye knowed wan, ye'd be sure to vote fur the other; and both of thim are well known, do ye mind?" "I do," replied Pat, solemnly.

Things Much Worse Than Here

Yesterday a local family received a letter from a former local citizen now residing in Port Arthur. The writer said that times are a thousand times worse in that city than in Peterboro. He noted that although Port Arthur is a seaport town, right now in the busy season, hundreds are out of work. An epidemic of burglaries is feared. Last week a workman out of employment committed suicide from despondency.

Bees Fly Amuck

Lindsay Warder: Mr. Pettit, of Reaboro, shipped a carload of bees through town to Georgetown, Ont., but while the car was standing on the siding in the vicinity of the Lindsay Library & Office Fittings Co's factory a large number of honey bugs made good their escape. Being hungry they soon lit upon the unsuspecting pedestrians and several citizens were stung. Chief Short issued instructions to the Grand Trunk authorities that the car must be moved to some other section of their yards.

NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT HOME RULE

London, June 9. Directly the House of Commons reopened today Mr. Asquith was asked by Lord Robert Cecil concerning future proceedings in regard to Home Rule. The premier however, would furnish no information, saying it was impossible at present to make any statements.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ROYALTY PAYING MILITANTS FOR IMMUNITY FROM ATTACK

Papers Found by Police at Suffragette Headquarters Indicate That many of Nobility Subscribe to the Militant Fund

London, June 10.—Police raids on the suffragette headquarters yesterday resulted in the discovery that several of the Royal family, including the Prince of Wales, have been regular contributors to the militant funds while the Queen tried to contribute, but her offer was refused.

These contributions does not mean that Royalty favors the militans. On the contrary, it really amounts to paying for immunity for the persons and property of the Royal Family from militant attacks. When the raids were made and lists of subscribers found, the Government hastily announced that it would immediately begin prosecutions on the charge of supporting a criminal organisation but the minute examinations disclosed among the subscribers several Royalties, including the Duchess of Tech, the Duchess of Fife, Princesses Teck, Christian and Royal, and still further investigation showed immunity payments made in the name of the Prince of Wales. He so frequently argued with his father and mother in favor of suffrage that there was uncertainty as to what category his contribution came under.

Queen Offered to Pay.

It was also learned that the Queen offered a subscription of 35,000 if the militants would agree to stop annoying their Majesties, but this subscription was refused, the militants being unwilling to lose their most valuable advertising privilege. Among the others in the list are the Duchesses of Portland and Westminster and the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Essex and Lady Cunard.

A certain class of hostesses in London have been left conspicuously alone by the militants. Detective agencies which since the season began have had female detectives at every social function to guard against militant outrages, told the police that they were never called by American hostesses.

Charged Blackmail.

When the Royal names were found on the list, the Government had to give up the idea of prosecutions of subscribers, but it is now considering prosecution of the militants for blackmail. The Royal and noble subscribers, however, seem unwilling to be complainants and witnesses and without their aid nothing can be done.

Of course, many subscribers are strong supporters of militancy, but they also are safe as the Government cannot prosecute them and refrain from prosecuting the others. So the militants seem to have scored on the Government once again.

On another page will be found an advertisement of the Southwest Petroleum and Development Company, Limited, offering $150,000 treasury stock of $1 par value at $1 per share.

On this company's Board of Directors are W. S. Herron, director of the Dingman Oil Company of Canada, Henry K. Reed, C.A. General Manager of the Alliance Investment Company and other reputable Calgary business men.

The Financial Times of Montreal, says: In allowing this advertisement to be put before our readers, we feel satisfied that with such a Board of Directors those who are inclined to participate in what must obviously be a venture will be protected to the extent that their money will at least go into the drilling operations which will be necessary to prove the company's property. It must be understood that though we believe that this particular company is to be operated upon constructive lines, we can in no way vouch for the ultimate success of the company. We are impelled to make this announcement owing to the great number of stock-jobbing propositions which are being presented almost as going concerns.

PRESBYTERIANS WOULD DROP NAMES OF RETIRED PASTORS

General Assembly Asked to Revise the Presbytery Rolls --Church Societies Unite

Woodstock, Ont., June 10.—The addition to the Presbytery roll of the names of several retired ministers, opened up a discussion at the Assembly to-day. Principle Scrimger, of Montreal, objected to the addition to the roll of names of ministers who were not in active service.

"In the United States," he declared, "the name of every man who has been ordained in this ministry is on the roll whether he is selling real estate or whether he is engaged in other business."

The rules of the Presbyterian church at present state that a retired minister who is living in the Presbytery where he labored may be put on the roll but if he lives outside the Presbytery he loses that privilege. The synod of the Maritime Provinces asked that the rule be changed.

Would Swamp District.

It was asserted that if the names of retired ministers were added to the Presbytery roll in the district where they had taken up their residence after retiring, some of the Presbyteries would be swamped. Toronto is a favorite place of residence for retired clergymen, according to some of the commissioners, and Pictou, N.S., was said to be another.

A LOCAL FACTORY

Mr. A. Murty's Factory Throws Light on the Manufacture Of Cigars

Yesterday a Times representative had occasion to visit Mr. A. Murty's cigar factory on Hunter street. It would seem a pity that the local press does not, in their admitted zeal towards booming Peterborough, describe more frequently just what is made in this city.

To resume, in the Murty factory is carried on every branch of the cigar industry. Big bundles of imported Havana leaf, called "Carate" containing four ties of the fragrant leaf, big fan-shaped bundles of the choicest Sumatra leaf, used as wrappers, big bales of U.S. leaf used as binders, are to be seen. At the benches sit expert cigar makers, rolling by hand, the "Rose Leaf" and other brands made in this factory. Possibly there is not a greater expert in choosing raw leaf than this same little Peterborough manufacturer.

The "stems" of all the tobacco leaves referred to are stripped off by boys and the stems are sold to local green houses for burning to destroy bugs.

Before any of the leaves are converted into cigars they have to be soaked in water. Mr. Murty explained that Canadian grown tobacco is poor because no tobacco properly matures until the seed develops and here the season is too short to admit of this.

There is a good cafe aboard.

IMPOSSIBLE TO SEE ACROSS THE STREET

Pest of Flies Makes Walking on the Streets Dangerous to Life

Prescott, Ont., June 10.—Although it is a common occurrence at this time of the year for this district to be pested with shad fly, it appears to be an exceptionally pest this year. When the wind is from the east, it is almost impossible to see across the streets. For some mornings past it has been necessary to sweep the flies from the sidewalks, otherwise it would be dangerous to pedestrians on account of the millions of flies having been crushed and forming a regular slippery path. Ten days at the most is the life of this particular fly and the unusual phenomena is attracting outsiders to witness the rain of flies.

SEVENTY-SIX HUNDRED BABIES DIED IN ONTARIO IN ONE YEAR

Half of the Little Ones Could Have Been Saved, Says Dr. Hastings

Toronto, June 10. "One reason why progress in public health and preventive medicine work has not been more rapid in the past is that deaths from preventable diseases lack that tragic interest which surrounds deaths from accidents," said Dr. Hastings in his report to the Local Board of Health this afternoon. He touched upon the Empress of Ireland victims, and went on to state that in Toronto in 1913, 1,877 infants under one year of age died, of which at least one thousand died from preventable disease. In the Province of Ontario in 1913, 7,600 infants under one year of age died, of which one-half at least might have been saved.

Tragedies of the Home.

"There is always something tragic about a railway wreck or a steamship wreck that appeals to the public sentiment—but the hundreds, yes the thousands of tragedies that occur in the homes of our large cities every year creates no comment, either by the press or otherwise," said the doctor.

"I use the term 'tragedy' in this connection advisedly, as every death from a preventable disease is certainly a tragedy, and is either a murder, manslaughter, homicide, infanticide, or suicide."

FATAL FIRE SWEEPS THROUGH TENEMENT

Five Persons Are Burned to Death and Many Seriously Injured.

New York, June 10.—In a fire early to-day that swept through the five storey tenement at 90 Essex street on the lower east side, one man three women and a child were burned to death, eight persons were so seriously injured that they had to be removed to hospitals, and many were rescued by firemen.

The flames started on the ground floor and gained so rapidly that only a few of the tenants escaped by the stairways.

DIVORCE GRANTED TO FAMOUS SINGER

Madame Schumann-Heink Succeeds in Her Action Against Husband.

Chicago, June 10.—Mme Ernestine Schumann-Heink was granted a divorce yesterday from her husband, William Rapp, Jr., whose ardent epistles to Mrs. Catherine Dean, of New York, were the sensation of the suit.

CIRCUS A GOOD ONE

Robinson Shows Not the Biggest, But Performance is First Rate.

Perhaps small boys, widely experienced in circuses, are able to say that such and such a circus is better than others. But to the average circus fiend the last is the best of all. At any rate, the crowd that bulged the big tent yesterday afternoon and evening to see Robinson's big show was just as agitated with joy as most. Children were many in the murmuring, fluttering throng, but grown-ups were there in many hundreds.

There are animals in scores at the big show, wild ones in cages, and miraculously tamed and educated ones doing turns right in the ring at the beck of dashing ringmasters and tinselled ladies. Some heart-smothering trapezework makes the children yell with wonder. There is a white horse that does a tango round and round the ring with his partner on his back. There are wobbly elephants performing such civilized duties as shaving and drinking buckets of beer. And then there are clowns, white-washed and polka-dotted, who take a lively interest in the doings of everything, and who are continually getting into mischief.

PROMINENT PAVING EXPERT IS NOW IN PETERBOROUGH

Mr. Fallahee, of the Toronto Bitumenous Paving Co. is a guest at the Oriental Hotel. Mr. Fallahee is here to await the opening of the tenders for local street paving. Mr. Fallahee told The Times that his firm, unlike others, is willing, in fact anxious that the city, should it so desire for the sake of economy, may do the grading, base and curb and gutter work. Mr. Fallahee has been seventeen years in the paving business, during which time he has risen from the job of office boy to the position of District Representative.

Mr. Fallahee seems to be enthusiastic over the merits of his firm's paving and will be glad to be interviewed, at the Oriental by members of the Board of Trade or by any responsible citizen.

NEW OCEAN LINER LAUNCHED

Bremen, June 10.—A new steamer belonging to the North German Lloyd Co., which was designed for the American service was launched yesterday. It was christened "Zeppelin" by Count Zeppelin. The steamer is of 16,000 tons, has a length of 569 feet accommodation for 500 cabin passengers, 500 second-class and 1,500 steerage passengers.

HYDRO BOARD GIVES TORONTO A WEEK TO DECIDE REDUCTION

After That, Announce its Own Decision; Not Free Agents --Must Bow to Will of Ontario Body

Toronto, June 10.—Unless the City Council decide before Wednesday next what position with regard to the ordered rate reduction they wish the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission to take, this latter body will announce a decision on its own initiative, according to a communication received by Mayor Hocken from Mr. H. H. Couzens, general manager of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Company. The letter reads:

"Re Rate Reduction:

"Gentlemen,—We have noticed from the newspaper reports that at the discussion which has taken place in the Council in connection with the above, the suggestion was made that the Commissioners should settle this question on their own responsibility without reference to anyone.

"We desire to make it clear that we are not free agents in this matter, owing to the fact that power has been vested by special legislation in the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to order new rates even if the introduction of such rates should involve the Toronto Hydro-Electric System in a loss.

"The final responsibility for making good any loss that may be incurred rests with the citizens, and the Council being the duly authorized representatives of such citizens it was deemed desirable that an opportunity should be afforded them of passing judgment on this matter prior to any public announcement of the policy of the Commissioners.

"The Council will realize that the time has come when a definite declaration must be made, and the Commissioners beg to advise that unless instructions are received from the Council to the contrary by Wednesday next, the 17th inst., or unless the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario decide to amend or postpone the order in the meantime, the Commissioners propose to make public course of action they propose to pursue."

BAD FIRE AT HEARST MANY PLACES BURNED

Ten Stores and Nine Residences in New Town Destroyed

North Bay, Ont., June 10.—Hearst, on the National Transcontinental Railway, west of Cochrane, had a serious fire last night. Ten stores and nine residences were destroyed. A light rain which started during the progress of the fire helped materially to check the spread of the flames. Details are not to hand as there is no telegraphic connection and only an indifferent contractor's telephone service. Hearst is one of the new towns springing up along the G.T.P., and is the most northern outpost of organized community in Ontario.

PETES DROP THIRD GAME OF SERIES WITH TORONTO, 8-1

The Petes had another off day yesterday, which reminded the fans of the streak of last week. But the boys cannot win every game and they did well to take two of the three from the Toronto team. Bob Sterling was off color yesterday and allowed the visitors to pound the pill out for eight runs before he was replaced by Tracey, who closed the gates and no more scoring was done until the 9th innings when the Petes scored their first run. On the other hand, Aubt pitching for Toronto had the Petes guessing all the time and pitched a good game.

The score stood 8-1 for Toronto.

Hamilton will be here to-day for the balance of the week, when three good games can be looked for.

The Typos baseball team are requested to be on hand at Riverside Park after the regular game, for a workout.

DELAY SALVAGING WRECK OF EMPRESS

Cannot Raise Bodies of Victims Without Elaborate Equipment

Rimouski, Que., June 10.—A delay of over a week in raising the bodies now lying in the sunken hull of the Empress of Ireland, was decided on by Mr. William W. Weatherspoon, the salvage expert retained for the Canadian Pacific Railway for this work. Equipment of an elaborate nature must be brought out from England before it would be safe to undertake the task, which has been made very difficult by reason of the depth of water above the wreck and its coldness.

GREAT FORTUNE IN OIL

The Interprovincial Oil and Gas Company's Property

The attention of investors is called to the advertisement of the above Company, to be found elsewhere in this issue. The Interprovincial Oil and Gas Company is composed of Calgary's business men of high standing. This is in itself ample guarantee that investors will have a square deal.

The following will be read with interest: Botterell wires: Visited the Dingman well yesterday with a party and that oil folowed for ten minutes at the rate of 160 barrels an hour. After short demonstration, they closed the well so that operations could be proceeded with on the other well being drilled.

PRISONER ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE BY FIRE

Sets Fire to Cell, But Flames Are Discovered in Time.

Montreal, June 10.—Joseph Beauchamp, one of the two alleged bandits being held for trial next September, on a charge of murdering Constable Bourdon at St. Laurent, last night tried to destroy his own life at the Bordeaux Jail, where he is incarcerated. He piled his mattress, table and chairs against the door of his cell and set fire to the pile. The smoke attracted attention and the flames were speedily put out.

LIBERALS WILL NOT CONTEST PRESCOTT AT THIS ELECTION

Prescott, Ont., June 10. At a meeting of the Liberal Executive held here to day, it was decided not to place a candidate in the field in this particular election. It is understood that this will leave two Conservatives in the field, the present member G. Howard Ferguson and F. S. Evanson.

TO HELP NATURE SHED A BAD COMPLEXION

Beauty devotees are enthusiastic over the beautifying qualities of mercolized wax. Nothing discovered within recent years accomplishes so much, so quickly, without harm, at such small expense. The principal reason for its wonderful merit is that it works in harmony with physiological laws. Instead of hiding complexion defects, it removes them. It actually takes off the aged, faded, sallow freckled or blotchy cuticle, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience. It is Nature's way of renewing complexions. When the natural process is retarded because of deficient circulation or nerve tone, mercolized wax comes to the rescue and hastens the skin shedding. The new complexion which appears is a natural one, youthful, healthy, exquisitely beautiful. If you've never tried mercolized wax, get an ounce of it at the drugstore, use at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning.

Another natural beautifying treatment—for wrinkled skin—is to bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. This is remarkably and instantaneously effective.

BIG YACHT RACES COST IMMENSE SUMS

Some Reasons Why America Cup Chasing is Purely a Rich Man's Game

Very few persons not directly connected in some way with marine matters understand why it costs so many thousands of dollars to produce a yacht to challenge for or defend the America's cup. An experienced writer on yachting gives the principal reasons for such a large expenditure of money. In the first place, the contest for the cup is an international affair regarded by yachtsmen as of such great importance that the best design, material and workmanship must be had at any cost, in order to properly defend that time-honored trophy. When the contracts are signed for the construction of the yacht, the price agreed upon includes, of course, the designer's fee, which although the success of the boat depends principally on his work, is generally the smallest sum expended.

The builder's first payment has to be expended almost immediately for material, the latter generally making sub-contracts with sailmakers, sparmakers, plumbers and others. Some of these furnish the material and install it in the yacht. The first step in the construction of the modern cup racer is the molding of the lead keel. For this some ninety tons of lead are used. A wooden trough is built of the size and shape required, into which the molten lead is run from an elevated position. Hurry orders are sent out the moment the contract is signed to firms that furnish steel so that by the time the keel is run some of the frames are generally on the way to the ship yard. Being received in straight lengths of angle iron, they are made hot at the ship yards, placed upon what is known as a bending platform and by means of wedges and pins are bent to the shape required by the designer's plans.

A long flat piece of steel called the keelson, reaching the entire length of the yacht, is first fastened to the lead keel by long bolts, then the stem and stern posts are set up, the stern post being the part of the frame to which the rudder is later attached. The middle ribs are generally the ones first fastened to the keel and keelson, the deck beams which are fastened to the upper portion of these frames being put in place at the same time. Twenty inches is the average space between all frames and as soon as the frames are all in place the riveting of plates begins. A yacht may have as many as 140 frames and 80 deck beams.

A UNIQUE POST OFFICE

A Letter Takes a Day to go From One Side to the Other

Probably no other place in North America has a post office of the unique proportions of Beebe Plain. There a simple wooden building shelters the offices of two countries. The structure is cut diagonally by the Canada line, being almost equally divided by the imaginary boundary. The northern half contains the post office of Beebe Plain, Canada, and the southern half the office of Beebe Plain, Vermont. They are separated only by a ten-foot corridor, using this passageway and the same door in common. George H. House, postmaster, looks after the mail of the two offices. As a result of red tape in the postal regulations regarding the transfer of mails a letter mailed at the Vermont office for the Canadian office across the hall travels 200 miles before delivery. A letter posted at Beebe Plain, Vermont, for Beebe Plain, Canada, will go south on the Boston and Maine Railroad from Beebe Junction, Vermont, to White River Junction, 111 miles on the same route, and thus continues its way to Sherbrooke, Que., thirty-four miles further. There it is again transferred and returns to Beebe Plain, Canada. That is, after a ride of twenty-four hours and going 290 miles it arrives at its destination, ten feet from where it started.

EATEN BY A BEAR

A Half-starved Polar Bear Invaded an Eskimo Village

Dillon Wallace, an Arctic explorer, went to Labrador to place a bronze tablet at the head waters of the Susan River, where his companion, Leonidas Hubbard, died of starvation in 1903. He succeeded in finding the camp, but could not erect the tablet as it had fallen out of his canoe to the bottom of the Beaver River. Not to be outdone, however, he laboriously chiseled upon a rock: "Leonidas Hubbard, jr., Intrepid Explorer and Practical Christian, Died Here October 18, 1903."

At an Eskimo village called Nartartuk he found the Eskimos astir over a tragedy. An elderly man named Korah, who had come to the village with his 16-year-old son Jonas to spend the night, woke up in the morning to find a big Polar bear standing over the half-eaten body of his son. The Eskimos went after the bear and killed it. When its body was examined it was found to be half-starved. Its attack on Jonas created great surprise, as no one could remember a Polar bear being driven by hunger to come down to a village and kill anyone to eat.

In Toronto, there are two blocks in the business section of the city which compose the richest strip of property in Canada. The land alone is worth $16,000,000, while the buildings are worth $9,500,000.

GAYEST OF PLAIDS AND TARTANS APPROVED BY DAME FASHION THIS FALL

The continuous cry is for "something new," "something different," so we have plaids this season combined with plain stuffs for frocks and suits. Ofttimes the entire suit is of plaid with plain trimmings; then, again, the jacket is plain and skirt of plaid or a smart little plaid blouse accompanies a plain skirt. Touches of the brighter of these plaids afford extremely smart trimmings for plain dark suits and dresses.

Typical tartans are used, blue and green being one of the favorite combinations. Velour checks are smart also, and there are numerous fetching black and white combinations. Two of the most striking of Poiret's tailored models were checked—one, a black and white, had the edges bound with beige leather; the other, a checked green and yellow, was banded and trimmed with green cloth.

Blue and green khmet plaid with trimming bands and vest of Russian green cloth would be charming for 7991-7992. The blouse shows a long, plain, set-in sleeve. The peg-top skirt is distinguished by the smart cuff hem and the yoke effect.

To copy this design in size 36 it needs 2½ yards of 36 inch material with ⅝ yard of contrasting material for 7991; 7992 requires for size 24 3¼ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 7991—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 7992—sizes 22 to 32.
Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

SIGNIFICANT NAMES

There is a Marked Difference in Place Names in Ontario and Quebec

The place names of Ontario and Quebec frequently reflect the historical background of the respective peoples. Journey through Ontario and you are confronted with names of counties, townships, towns and villages lifted almost bodily from England, as in Middlesex, Lincoln or York. Go through Quebec and we meet the names of French Kings, Governors and explorers, not to speak of innumerable saints held in close reverence by a devoted people. In Ontario we find in the nomenclature a solemn march of heroes, Governors, poets, philanthropists, statesmen, discoverers and martyrs, connected with the expansion or glory of England, such as Sir Isaac Brock, Sir Guy Carleton, General Haldimand, Governor Hamilton, Governor Hope, General Prescott, the Duke of Richmond, Lords Durham, Sydenham and Aylmer, Governor Simcoe, Sir Charles Bagot, Hilton, Collingwood, Wellington, Nelson, Raleigh, Hampden, Palmerston, Pitt, Harvey, Franklin, Wilberforce and Macaulay, with such reminders of victory as Blenheim, Trafalgar, Vincent, Waterloo and Sebastopol.

In Quebec how different are the scenes called up by the names of cities, rivers, counties and parishes: Champlain, after the founder of Quebec; Chicoutimi, the first French Viceroy; Montmagny, who succeeded Champlain. Two officers of the Carignan regiment, St. Louis and Richelieu, perpetuate the Grand Monarch of France and his long-trusted Minister; Frontenac, Vaudreuil, and Beauharnois were three of the most able and energetic of the French Governors of Canada, while Bishop Laval, Generals Montcalm and de Levis, Cardinal Richelieu, Charlevoix, and other celebrities are similarly remembered. As to the names of saints, the calendar and Acta Sanctorum seem to have been ransacked, and not even the most obscure recruit of canonization overlooked.

FIRST WHEAT EXPORTED

Shipment of Less Than 1,000 Bushels Was Sent From Manitoba

On Oct. 21, 1876, the first commercial shipment of wheat out of Manitoba was made from Winnipeg. The shipment was made by the pioneer merchants of Winnipeg, Higgins and Young, and the 857 16 bushels of hard wheat shipped to Steele Brothers, seedsmen of Toronto, was for seed purposes. The price paid in Winnipeg was 85 cents per bushel.

It took a number of farmers in that day to make up a shipment that would be considered hardly worth the while of any modern Manitoba farmer. The wheat was collected in small quantities from farmers in several districts near Winnipeg and sacked by Higgins & Young.

The invoice, in the fine copper-plate hand-writing of David Young, is dated Oct. 13, 1876, indicating that the shipment was made up and ready for shipment several days before it was actually started on what was then the long journey to Toronto. The freight rate in that day was just 35c cents per bushel.

Our Point of View

The Mona Lisa thief, sentenced to one year for his act, bought publicity cheap.

Summer has landed upon us at one jump and with both feet, and everybody will agree that her feet are rather hot.

—o—

Oregon reports the first really "rare" June day. On Thursday that state experienced a mind-winter storm with snow and hail.

A 12-year-old boy was killed in New York recently by a horse car—a rapidly vanishing type of fatality.

And yet Paris is not perturbed over the action of the Vermont, U. S., women, who in convention assembled have demanded dress reform.

—o—

Prince Rupert, born in 1906, and now claiming only 5000 inhabitants, already boasts a 15-story hotel — the skyscraper again as a manifestation of civic pride.

Painful Swellings Reduced Musclar Strains Ended

Such Troubles Now Quickly Rubbed Away by Powerful Remedy.

If you have any muscles that are strained and weak, that are frequently subject to rheumatic pains; if you have any painful swellings that refuse to go away—get busy with Nerviline. This is the very sort of trouble that Nerviline is noted for curing quickly. "I have proved Nerviline simply a wonder in reducing a hard, painful swelling. It followed an injury received in my left leg and caused me great pain and discomfort. The muscles were strained and sore, and no other remedy gave the ease and comfort I got from rubbing Nerviline. There is a soothing, pain relieving power about Nerviline that touched the root of my trouble. Nerviline reduced the swelling, it destroyed the pain, it brought my limb back to perfect condition." The experience of Mr. Bowen, whose home is in Middlesex, is not unusual. Thousands are proving every day that muscular pains of every kind, chronic rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia and sciatica will yield to Nerviline when nothing else can possibly cure. Nerviline is an old-time family pain remedy, used nearly forty years with great success. The large family size bottle costs 50c., trial size 25c., at all dealers.

RECORD WOOD BUFFALO

Enormous Animal Was Shot by Radford Near the Salt River

Harry Radford, an explorer who was afterwards murdered by Eskimos, told how he killed the largest wood buffalo known.

"I traveled by boat to Fort Smith on the Great Slave River. There is a large salt deposit some twenty miles from Fort Smith, and attracted by this (which they are very fond of licking) all of the remaining wild buffalo of the North American continent are to be found in the vicinity of the Salt River, as the stream running through this salt belt is termed. When March came, with its days of longer daylight, I went after my buffalo. Taking two native trackers I set out in snowshoes for the Salt River. We came across various buffalo tracks, but they were all of comparatively small size and therefore uninteresting to me, as I was after a record specimen.

"The second afternoon we came upon the spoor of a band of twelve animals among the tracks of which was one of unusual size, indicating that its author was a very large animal. We tracked the band for about two miles, when it was found to have divided, eight of the animals going south and the remaining four (including the large one) traveling northwest. We again took up the trail for three miles, to a point where a further separation had taken place, and the owner of the large hoofs had gone on accompanied by only one female.

"The spoor we now followed was very 'fresh,' and I was seized with a feeling of great nervousness and excitement. However, I succeeded in travelling on with silence and circumspection for about half a mile, when the trail led to a small clearing, in the middle of which stood, perfectly still, an enormous bull buffalo and a cow.

"Yes, there at last, after nine months of hopeful and expectant waiting, stood the prized object of my dreams, looking even more magnificent and imposing than I had pictured him in fancy.

"The moment was an agony for me, but by a supreme effort I controlled myself, dropped on one knee, and, aiming carefully at the heart region, fired. The bull did not move. I fired again, and, with a frightful bellow, he fell on his side and lay struggling. Still fearful that the injuries inflicted might not be vital and that the prize might yet escape me, I fired three more shots, after which the beast lay quite still.

"I had the carcass taken to Fort Smith by horse sleigh and, having procured the scales, found that it tipped the beam at 2,259 pounds, easily a world's record."

THE HEIGHT OF MAN

Measurements Show That Average Stature Remains the Same

It appeared from the results of scientific measurements made in France that the average stature of man is neither increasing nor decreasing. The skeletons of the men who inhabited France at a period when Europe was the home of lions, elephants, rhinoceros, hyenas, and reindeer, are of nearly the same size as those of the French people to-day.

Yet the surroundings amid which these early men lived were remarkably different from those enjoyed by their successors. The best abodes were caves, and to hold possession of them they had to wage warfare upon such fierce beasts as the saber-toothed tiger and the cave bear. Without our modern weapons it would seem that they should have possessed superior bodily powers, but there is, it is said, no evidence that they did. They had human cunning, however, which always prevails over brute strength.

Later came the ancestors of the Gauls and Franks, and they seemed to have slightly exceeded the cave men in stature, and also to have been a trifle taller than their modern descendants.

One interesting fact shown by the measurements is that there has been a perceptible gain in the stature of women as compared with that of men since the days of the tiger fighters in France.

Nearly 200,000 Scottish persons emigrated from Scotland during the past four years. This number is equal to two-thirds of the population of Edinburgh, or nearly to the combined population of Grimsby, Ipswich and Reading.

SPOTS ON THE SUN CAUSE TORNADOES

Sun Spots Bring Changes of Temperatures Which Often Mean Storms on the Earth

Investigations at the Santa Clara University, California have proven to the satisfaction of weather experts that sun spots are responsible for great storms on this globe. They cause changes of temperature which affect the earth's atmosphere where it is most sensitive—at the equator and the poles. This, in turn, starts a whirl of air that develops in speed—and you have a great storm.

A sun spot has instant effect on two currents of air or whirls in the air, one from the north pole going south and one from the equator going north. The storm is the battle between these two currents when they meet. That battle may take place so high in the air that there is little or no effect felt on the surface of the earth. Or they may meet on a battle plain near to us and a violent storm—generally of tornado tendencies—ensues.

There are two general storm paths in the world—one north and the other south of the equator. The northern path starts at the equator and moves northwestward so long as it remains south of the 30th parallel. Once across this line it turns and travels northeast until it spends itself or reaches the polar regions. The same condition holds good with the southern path, except that the original direction is southeast and the change is to the southwest.

Sunspots having started air whirls from both ends of the path, the tendency of the southern whirl, being warmer, is to rise and of the northern whirl to stay close to the surface. If the northern current [illegible] enough as it usually is in the winter time, [illegible] lost. Anything that will send the southern current higher into the air will shield the country directly in front of it from the violence of the change of atmosphere it causes. Thus a mountain range will sometimes shoot the disturbing element so high that while a severe storm will take place on one side of the mountains, the other side is not affected at all.

A long stretch of flat country, however, will permit this southern current to settle down, if it happens to be very heavy, and so get closer to the earth. This explains the tornadoes and blizzards which occur in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The great lakes serve as a deflector of the currents in this country because of the excess of moisture in the air over these great bodies of water and the consequent heaviness of the atmosphere at these points. For that reason the storms on the lakes are greater and more frequent in winter than in summer because the northern current, which freezes and removes this moisture, has the easier time. The southern current being warmer and lighter naturally passes over the lakes at a high altitude, although, of course, it sometimes creates big disturbances.

There are exceptions to these conditions, of course. These are caused by purely local disturbances of the atmosphere which must be reckoned with to produce certain effects—which might change entirely the character of the effect of the battle of the upper air currents for supremacy, causing a severe storm or no storm at all.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NO MORE ASSUMED NAMES ON THE ENGLISH TURF

The decision of the English Jockey Club to abolish the use of assumed names on the turf does not meet with universal approval. Many aristocratic owners, including our former Governor-General, Lord Minto, who both owned and rode as Mr. Rowley, have in the past availed themselves of the opportunity afforded thereby of indulging in their fondness for horse racing without disclosing to the world their active participation in turf-pursuits.

Before the late Lord Falmouth took to running horses in his own name he raced under the assumed name of "Mr. T. Valentine," and his colors in 1860 were the same as those subsequently carried for his Lordship by so many classic winners, "black, white sleeves, red cap." The late Mr. Edmund Tatersall in the "seventies" raced under the assumed name of Mr. Somerville; "Mr. Acton," was the assumed name of Baron Lionel de Rothschild, and many other instances could be cited.

The practice of using assumed names was doubtless open to abuse, but as the names had to be registered at Messrs. Weatherby's, the Jockey Club were fully aware of the identity of every person using one.

Origin of Pocketknives

The manufacture of knives, the blades of which can be folded within the handle, was introduced into Sheffield in 1650 by Belgian workmen from the Walloon district. As a matter of fact, these knives were known by the name of "Jocte-legs," after Jacques of Liege. The poet, Robert Burns, also refers to a "faulding jocte-leg," the word "faulding," being, of course, folding. Indeed, even to the present day in Yorkshire, large knives the blades of which fold over into the handle are known as jack-a-leg knives.

So large does the saw mill industry shine in Prince Albert that it is sometimes referred to as "The City of the Silver Saw."

To Whiten a Table

If the kitchen table becomes stained and blackened, try cleaning it with bathbrick. Crush the bathbrick—taking care not to make it too small—damp the table with hot water, and sprinkle with the bathbrick. Now make some soapsuds and scrub the table in the ordinary way, using a fresh supply of water for rinsing. The table will look beautifully white after this treatment.

"If Britain had not sent us the money we would not have had three transcontinental railways," said E. R. Wood, in an address. "Instead of carving out new provinces we would have had the mounted police still watching cattle thieves and keeping whiskey traders away from Indians. Instead of Niagara propelling our street cars and turning the wheels of industry in Toronto we would have had the Falls in their original wasteful grandeur and a small city here with antiquated services."

The Modern Stenographer, High Type of Womanhood

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THERE is a certain brand new play written around a brand old idea, cleverly written, too, and well acted, so they say. I hope it will be a failure.

I hate the idea that makes the whole plot of the play. The heroine is a sweet, young stenographer, who can't get a living to save her life, unless she's willing to lose her soul to do it.

I'm always hearing about that kind of a stenographer. I've never met one, and I couldn't count the number of stenographers I know in anything less than hundreds. They are sensible, clever, honest, self-respecting women, old or young as it happens.

Where are all of these business men who won't have anything to do with a girl if she's decent?

Are they your friends? Is your husband that sort of man? Do you believe this sort of story about your father? Haven't you heard your brother say a thousand times that no girl could hold a job in his office unless she knew her business and attended to it strictly?

The heroine of this new play all about the poor working girl and how impossible it is for her to be decent and draw a salary says:

"When my boss tries to get me to let him kiss me and I won't do it, what does he do?

"Tell me I'm a good girl, and he respects me for it? Not he.

"He offers me a million, and if I won't take it he says 'somebody else has beat me to it, and has given you two millions.'"

None Outside of Plays.

A million! Dear me, little sister, you come high, don't you?

Now if you'd said a $3-a-week raise, it might have sounded just a trifle more like business. Men who pay $1,000,000 for a kiss are not apt to be money kings, or any other kind of kings.

I never heard of one before, outside of plays. Did you, little Miss Stenographer?

Women do most of the courting in this world, as a matter of fact, and the simplest, silliest, most brainless little girl in the world can keep any man who is even halfway decent at arm's length—if she really wants to do it.

And she needn't be always saying "sir," and "how dare you," either.

When it gets to the "how dare you" stage it's the girl that's to blame every time.

The sort of man who won't have a stenographer unless she will let him hold hands with her is so easy to recognize that you would know his name and address if you met him at an old-fashioned sheet and pillow case party.

This sort is easy enough to manage. He can be laughed out of his nonsense the very first time he tries it. And any girl who has sense enough to learn shorthand will know how to do it without taking any course of lessons in any school but the school of her own tact and purity of heart.

Another kind is a wolf with fangs. If you get into a wolf's den by mistake, there's just one thing to do—scream as loud as you can and run faster than you ever thought you could.

The Right Title.

The other sort, the villain in the play kind—I don't believe there's one alive outside the play.

And if there is, any little 18-year-old stenographer, who gets up at 6 in the morning and blacks her own shoes and mends her own gloves and irons her own fresh little blouse, can handle and does handle him every day in the year in every city in this country, and comes out smiling and with clear and honest eyes.

"So much for so much"—you've named your play wrong, Mr. Author.

"So little for so much" is that play's right name, and any good, practical stenographer who understands men as well as she understands any shorthand system will tell you so without a "thank you, sir," for the insinuation you make against the common sense of the whole race of self-supporting women.

Stop the first stenographer you see and ask her.

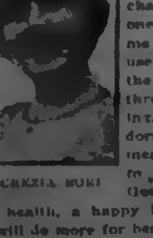
And remember what she says when she answers. It will be worth while.

My Best Beauty Lotions

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."



LUCREZIA BORI

WHENEVER I get a letter asking advice I feel encouraged. I feel that I have the chance to help some one, and it pleases me to be thought useful. I believe in the quest of beauty through right living, and heartily indorse all legitimate means of adding to personal charm. Good air, good food, good health, a happy heart and exercise will do more for beauty than pastes and creams. But there are creams and lotions that will beautifully supplement the result of right living. Those that I know to be good I shall always be glad to tell about. Every letter I get helps me, for it lets me find out the needs of the women I want to help.

A "Girl Reader" asks me what to do for superfluous hair on the face, and if there is any remedy but the treatment by the electric needle. Here is a depilatory said by many to be the best and the safest:

Three ounces of sulpheret of barium
Twelve ounces of water.

Mix into a paste with cornstarch and apply to the hairs. Allow it to dry, and when it is removed the hairs are more than apt to go too. Barium is a poison, and should be kept out of reach of every one but the one using it, and then it must be used carefully. If it irritates the skin apply zinc ointment afterward. This may be purchased in small quantity at the drug store.

"A. C. L." asks for a paste for whitening the hands in short order. Here is the best one I know, and is to be applied at night and loose gloves drawn over the anointed hands. Apply it generously:

One ounce of powdered myrrh.
Four ounces of honey.
Two ounces of yellow wax.
Six ounces of rosewater.

Melt the wax in a double boiler, and while it is hot stir in the myrrh. Beat well, and add the honey and rosewater with a little glycerine so it will spread smoothly. After bleaching remember the hands will tan or burn all the easier.

"Mrs. A. N. Jackson" bemoans her "too, too solid flesh," and asks for some quick remedy. I don't know any. Fat seldom accumulates quickly. Why expect to remove it all at once? Diet and exercise. It is the best remedy. Deep breathing helps, for oxygen consumes adipose. Cut your food allowance in half, and don't drink with your meals. Eat all the fruits with the exception of bananas, and all the green vegetables, dandelions, tomatoes, lettuce, spinach, watercress, string beans, cabbage, almost all of the summer vegetables with the exception of peas, and all salads without oil. Eat all lean meats except pork and veal. Walk all you can and take plenty of baths.

"Katherine" wants a powder for burning feet. Here is one that is so delightful I am sure you will use it all during the summer for perspiration for the hands and feet:

Starch, 200 grammes.
Florentine orris, 150 grammes.
Alcohol, 20 grammes.
Phenic acid, 10 grammes.
Essence of violet, two grammes.

Dissolve the phenic acid in the alcohol, add the violet, and lastly the starch and orris root. Mix it thoroughly, rubbing out all lumps. It is a splendid toilet powder.

WHAT FACING A CAMERA MEANS

JANE GREY, OF THE "NEARLY MARRIED" COMPANY.

"You Must Relax to Get a Likeness," Says Actress.

By ELEANOR AMES

HAVING your picture taken is a different operation than it was in the old days when the man behind the camera placed his victim bolt upright in a straight-backed chair, fastened a clamp on the back of his head that kept it in the most unnatural and uncomfortable position, stuck a card at a crooked angle on a stick and stuck the stick quite out of the normal range of vision, and, with a smirk as spontaneous and expressive as was ever painted on a wax dummy, bade the unhappy sitter "look pleasant" and "smile a little."

But getting a really natural likeness depends as much upon the subject as it does upon the artist.

Jane Grey is said by camera artists to be almost an ideal subject.

She never makes a disappointing picture. Her photographs are not only artistic compositions, they are excellent likenesses.

And while she is a decidedly attractive and charming young woman from the standpoint of the beauty critic, she is no more perfect than are other women whose photographs are dismal failures.

Miss Grey gave me some hints on how to take a good picture, and the first was the rather startling command to "relax and become unconscious." "For," she continued, "just so long as one is conscious she will never get a good picture." Then, catching my puzzled expression and the sound of the phrase at the same moment, she laughingly explained that she meant "un-self-conscious."

"You, who are having the picture taken, are the very person you want to forget about," she explained. "We always look more natural when we are unconscious of ourselves. Learn to put your trust in the camera man. Of course, you may tell him which side of your face shows the best side of your character, but even that he will find out if he is an expert.

"Thoughts are reflected in the face. The camera proves this. It has an uncanny genius for recording what is behind the mask. So be careful of your thoughts when you face the camera.

"Relaxation is necessary for grace and ease of posture. The one essential when you pose for a picture is not to have any pose if you want to recognize yourself when you look at the finished picture.

"Have an easy posture and a placid mind. Think of the play, the trip you took last summer and that funny man and his amiable wife and the wife's mother with her double chins and her generous treatment of the world. What a dear, old, unselfish woman she was!

"Or the latest book and the way in which the heroine worked out her problems in spite of all difficulties. Think of your best beloved friend or your dearest enemy, or your new poodle—think of anything and everything and everybody but your own self.

"And when the right expression flits across your face, as it will when you are sitting at ease and only your mind is busy, the slide will work, all unknown to you, and the winsome smile or the gleam of mischief, or the suspicion of sadness, which is the real 'YOU', will be made captive. Then the picture will be a success."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear [illegible] to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 93.

At the Movie.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

WHETHER or not my pretty wife's thoughtlessness is the result of age or temperament I don't know, but she has at last had a lesson so terrible that I think its effects will be lifelong. Nor shall I myself forget it for many reasons.

Mary, with an evening of pleasurable excitement ahead, invariably grows somewhat flighty, and permits anticipation to crowd most other things out of her head. She sings and bustles energetically about, wasting a great deal of time and forgetting a great many things she wanted to remember.

I remember as we closed the front door that night I asked her if we had forgotten anything important. We nearly always did, and I had grown into the habit of asking.

"Certainly not!" said Mary, promptly. "What was there to forget?"

"What can't you forget?" I suggested mildly.

"Well," admitted Mary slowly, "I do forget to order soap and matches at times, but they're not really important."

"Matches," I said, "are mighty important, especially when you have to carry paper tapers about from room to room as we did last night."

Mary flushed a little and I went on seriously.

"You know, Mary, it is time you tried to train your memory a bit. You can discipline your mind to it if you try. You do forget awfully important things. It's an irresponsible habit of mind—"

"Oh, Peter, dear!" exclaimed my little wife fretfully, "don't grow psychological for goodness sake. I hate it. And you're always lecturing me. Besides, I'm terribly interested in this moving picture film, and I want you to tell me more about it."

The film we were going to see was a very famous one—a wonderful array of pictures to be exhibited in our local Opera House. Mary was radiantly expectant as we took our seats. Womanlike, however, the first thing she did was to scan the audience carefully with a view to ascertaining its exact social calibre. That for the instant was of more importance by far than the initial scene of the film.

In our town we have a habit of determining social caste by who goes to the Opera House and who doesn't. The people who smile languidly when you mention our vaudeville house are the elect socially. If they happen in there by accident once in a while—why we all regard it in the light of slumming and smile indulgently. As for the prosaic, middle-aged man who goes once a week to laugh at our second-rate shows—we deprive him of a segment of his reputation by admitting that he's that most heinous of mortals, a first-nighter.

Tonight our local society was pleased to appear in force. I could see Mary was more content when she discovered that she was not a pioneer in her interest. Mary isn't brave enough to come strongly out for her inclinations without some support. And the more aristocratic the support the better she is pleased.

We watched Nero burn Rome for a whim; we watched the torture of the Christian martyrs, which I fancied was a little too gruesome for even picture production, and we were really having a very pleasant time of it when a man touched me on the shoulder.

It was a man I knew merely in a business way.

"There's some one out in the lobby inquiring for you," he said. "I'm afraid there's something wrong—"

"Oh, dear!" squealed Mary with an instant flash of that hysteria that so irritates me, "what—what is it, Peter?"

"How in thunder can I know until I go out and find out?" I demanded. And rising in some irritation and disgust I hurried out to the lobby.

There was a neighbor of mine waiting for me, and he looked pretty grave.

"Peter," he said, "you'd better get home as quick as you can. There's the devil to play. There was a terrific explosion in your house a little while ago, and there's a crowd around it now, though nobody wants to enter unless you're there."

Mystified and alarmed, Mary and I went home.

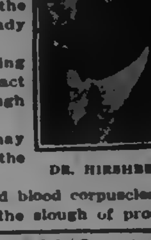
Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Your Lips Are Red; How Their Color Changes

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

MOST maidens fair carry their hearts on—not their sleeves—but their lips. If you ask some connoisseurs of feminine beauty where lies woman's fondest charms, they will unhesitatingly point to the lips.

Lips are purple, bluish, whitish, reddish and deep vermilion. Like the purple of narcissus flower or the frost of an early spring night, the chaste lips of my lady must match the beauty of her soul.

Her lips, ripe and alluring, must grow like tempting cherries. The kiss, which poets rhyme with bliss, in fact as well as verse, is said to draw the whole soul through the lips as sunlight drinketh dew.

A sharp eye, by a flash from the ruby lip, may determine your health and your mood. The lips are the vestibules of the vital palace.

If your flow of blood is sharp and full, if your red blood corpuscles are jaundiced, pale, anaemic, or otherwise wallowing in the slough of prostration, the lips soon show it.

The talk of a woman's lips may tend only to penury, and a man of unclean lips may be a hissing and a mocking. Yet the size, thickness, breadth and tint of those natural, unvarnished parts indicate various gradations of vigor and debility.

Briefly, the lips mean much more than they show. Pouting, puckering, bowing, whistling and making the lips into circles assume, to be sure, only a local aspect, yet they are really the indices and sign posts of happiness or the blues.

Various and many, indeed, are the ugly substances that may be used to beautify the lips. Unlike the harmless ones of the outer flesh, many of these are easily licked from the lips by the ever-wagging tongue. Absorbed with the saliva, they may play hob with the stomach and work mischief to the inner tissues.

A touch of saffron, cudberry or the various other harmless rouge-like pomades to glorify the lips may add a wealth of color. Yet the waves, curves and outline, not to forget the expression of the lips, go further to enhance their beauty than shades, hues and tints do.

With that she dashed her on the lippes,
So dyed double red;
Hard was the heart that gave the blow,
Soft were those lips that bled.

The deepest of red lips, those of profound scarlet, are often the very ones that need medical attention most. "Cyanosis" and "chronic polycythemia" are names given to disturbances which exhibit full, blooming, red lips.

Everything is relative. Even the thick, luscious, kissableness of lips are as much in the observer's eyes as in the observed one's lips. Colors, too, are associated with the absence or presence of pearly lustre of the teeth.

Poor teeth make even the cheeriest of lips look less beautiful than they are. On the other hand, snowy teeth make the lips that are less red look scarlet.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A young gentleman to whom I was introduced about a year ago is paying me very lover-like attention, and tells me that I'm the only girl in the world for him.

I care for him very much, but I have heard from other girls who know him that he has paid them the same attentions, and by their talk he appears to be nothing but a flirt.

If these rumors are true, what would you advise me to do?

I am 18 years of age. BIRDIE.

DEAR "Birdie," if I were you I should spread out my wings and fly just as fast as I could—far, far away from the gay deceiver.

The gay deceiver never makes any one gay but himself.

He'll make you weep if you have anything at all to do with him.

And what advantage is such a chap as that to you or to any one else?

He's just a conceited fool, who wants to write his insignificant name on the heart of every girl he meets.

Don't let him write it upon yours.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care this office.

The Wise Shepherd Boy :: By VERNON MERRY

ONCE there lived a great King who was always looking for bright children. When he found one, he would make him or her a present, a small reward for faithful study in school.

One day he heard of a shepherd lad who was wonderfully smart, so he sent for him.

When he arrived the King said: "If you can answer three questions, then you shall be as my own child and live with me in the royal castle. First, I want to know how many drops of water there are in the ocean."

"Oh, King," said the boy, "if you could have all the rivers in the world stopped up so that not a drop would run into the sea, then I might be able to tell you how many drops the ocean contains."

The King asked the second question: "How many stars are there in the heavens?"

"Give me a large sheet of paper," said the boy. "If I make a lot of holes with a needle close together, then whoever tries to count them will be dazzled. If, however, it were possible to count these points, still it would not be easy to count the stars."

"How many seconds of time in forever, which we call eternity?"

The boy did not hesitate. "There is a great mountain near here," he said, "many miles high, many miles long and many miles broad. If a little bird would go once in every hundred years and with his beak peck away a morsel from the mountain until the whole mountain is gone, not even then would one second of eternity be passed."

The King was delighted, as were all his noblemen.

"You shall be my son," he cried. "And you shall go about the kingdom teaching other children and grown-ups, too, what may be learned even while tending sheep."

PROMOTERS GOT CASH

That is Why Automobile Road Racing Slumped

Automobile road racing appears to be doomed. For the past five years there has been a gradual decline in the interest in this branch of the motor racing game, until at present the outlook is very discouraging for those identified with the sport.

There are several contributing causes for the decline of road racing. A few years ago promoters of road races and 24-hour contests were able to charge an entry fee of $1,000, and from fifteen to thirty cars would be entered by the manufacturers. Special racing crews were maintained by many of the motor car factories, and the annual appropriations for the racing departments of the manufacturers aggregated thousands of dollars.

Promoters garnered all the financial benefits from this arrangement, and the only return for the makers was the publicity following the event, of which the winning car obtained the lion's share. To an unsuccessful manufacturer, a big race meant a direct loss of from $5,000 to $10,000. From a commercial standpoint this enormous outlay was without any real commensurate returns and one by one the manufacturers dropped out of the racing game, disbanded their crews and turned their attention to putting an improved car on the market.

Market for Flax Fibre

As a considerable quantity of flax is harvested in Canada every year, the attention of firms interested may be drawn to the market in Leeds, England, for flax fibre. Spinners there have followed with close attention the development of the growth of the flax plant in Western Canada, and are desirous of receiving shipments of the fibre if it can be obtained on competitive terms with supplies from other sources. Some three years ago a few small trial shipments of unretted flax fibre were sent from Canada. Mr. J. M. Mussen, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds says consumers express their readiness to give their consideration to offers that may be received at any time from Canadian firms interested in seeking export markets for this fibre.

APPEAL TO STUDENTS

Rev. Hugh Pedley Urges Them to Have High Ideals

"'Always be the best.' That is a splendid inscription to have over any university platform, be—not only do—be the best' was the central teaching of Rev. Hugh Pedley's sermon to University students. "There are men who set the standard in the community in which they live, into whose presence you cannot come without feeling the influence that issues from them," he said. He advised the students to put themselves under the influence of [illegible]. "There are few voices and many echoes. It is a great [illegible] a voice; there are voices th[illegible] echoed around the world, and [illegible] not ceased with the passing of centuries. It is not the quantity or reach of the voice, but the quality: if there be music and truth in the voice there will be music and truth in the echo." He further urged the young men and women to realize the importance of their individual influence in setting the moral standard. "You will be scattered like seed throughout this Dominion; let your characters be stamped with that which is noble and pure, the highest standard and ideal of all."

There are twin mountains that stand like sentinels to guard the city of Vancouver which are called "The Lions" for some say they resemble the recumbent lions sculptured by Landseer that stand in Trafalgar Square, London.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅝ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SPORT SACRIFICED

Money the Only Consideration in Professional Baseball

Organized baseball seems to be on the verge of losing its last vestige of sport for sport's sake, according to W. J. MacBeth, a New York sporting writer. The commercial end of the enterprise overshadows all else. The magnates are out for the money and make no bones of the fact. The lust for gold is as deeply rooted in the minor leagues as in the major organizations.

The two big circuits depend upon patronage for financial gains. Because of this it is necessary for them to secure the very best talent to display before the public. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are expended every season by each club in the National and American Leagues for the sole purpose of fortifying for the future. Every club owner has several highly paid scouts beating all around the country in search of likely looking "bush" [illegible]. Some have as many as six sleuths under salary. Besides these, there is a grand army of amateur sharps who do business on a commission basis. This policy c [illegible] ear extravagance is all well enough for first division aggregations; the end more than justifies the means. But it is a serious drain upon the pocketbook of the unfortunate holders of second division franchises.

Because of their weaknesses, second division clubs in the major leagues call for the greatest expenditures. This makes their lot all the more severe. The money is put up on a sure gamble, because a club away down in the race is lucky to make interest on investment. The leading teams which might well afford to speculate in talent, have not the same crying need to do so. But those leaders usually string along in a sort of "dog in the manger" fashion and often corral most promising talent which they cannot possibly use, just to keep it away from some lowly rival that might utilize it to the disadvantage of the strong.

At the meeting of the license commissioners last night, the application of Elliott & Co. for the transference of their shop license to Charles R. Nixon was granted.

An Ancient Car

Yesterday as the circus procession went by it was followed by an automobile recently brought here by a well known business man. This car is of, possibly the age of the Battle of Agincourt, 1215 or Cressy 1346. However, the small boy thought it was part of the procession and cheered vociferously. The car came here from Belleville.

Lindsay Citizens Get Busy

Lindsay Warder: A number of citizens responded last night to the call of the firemen for gratuitous services to assist in diggin a drain from Adelaide street into the agricultural park, a preparatory undertaking in connection with the big firemen's demonstration to be held in town July 30th next.

Defendant Wins Out.

A session of the County Court was occupied with the hearing of the case against Thos. J. Harrison, who was charged with threatening to shoot Chas. A. Beatty, then acting as Sheriff in the execution of a writ of possession. This constituted the only criminal case docketed for the session. Prisoner was discharged.

Where is Douro?

A few days ago a Scotchman arrived in the City. His friends here entertained him. He was the night of arrival taken to the home of a friend living in Douro. When the Hielander woke up next morning he looked out of the window and seeing nothing but fields and woods, asked, "Hoot mon, but where is Douro?"

To Boycott Lindsay Butchers

Lindsay Warder: Mr. Jas. J. Ward, of Ops, informed The Warder that owing to the drastic measures the town council of Lindsay had taken by imposing a fine amounting to $5 upon him for some damage his cattle had done to the boulevard while being driven along Lindsay street last week the farmers of Ops are about to establish a society which will agree to cut off the sale of beef from Lindsay butchers for one year or more.

When the Party Walked

A motoring party arrived in the city yesterday morning from Lindsay to attend the circus. The words "motoring party" however are only in part correct. Their car broke down eight miles the other side of Bests Station. They had to use "Shanks Mare" to the station whence they came via G.T.R. One member of the party yesterday remarked to a Times' representative "Darn an automobile that breaks down"!

No Race Suicide Here.

Don't mention anything about race suice in "this neck of the woods." As a south bound car stopped yesterday morning at the Circus grounds by actual count eleven women stepped off. Every one of the eleven carried a baby in arms, and some led other pledges of love. Every mother in the party looked happier than a suffragette who had just destroyed a mail box containing $50 sent to a widowed mother by her absent son.

An Old-Timer Here

Mr. Francis Johnston, of Harwood, was in the city yesterday for the circus, coming by the good ship Geneva. In conversation with the Times, Mr. Johnston noted that he lived in Harwood before the old bridge of the Cobourg-Peterborough railroad, since destroyed, was built. Mr. Johnston, more than 11 years ago, drove the father and mother of Mr. Fred Blastorah, proprietor of the Palace Hotel on their wedding trip to Cobourg. He also noted that he drove a former well known wealthy resident of Cobourg to Gore's Landing. On the way, just after leaving Cold Springs, a wheel came off. His fare, who had been celebrating his, the fare's birthday, or some other event, insisted on Mr. Johnston continuing the journey. They limped into Gore's Landing with the injured shaft worn as thin as a knitting needle.

He Says He Told His Neighbors

AND THEY TOLD HIM TO TRY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mike Rudy, Young Manitoba Farmer Sick for Two Years, Tells How He Got a New Lease of Life.

Camperville, Man., June 10.—(Special).—Cured of Kidney and Heart Disease of two years standing, Mr. Mike Rudy, a well known young farmer living near here, is telling his neighbors that he owes his new lease of life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For two years," Mr. Rudy states, "I suffered with a terrible pain in the small of my back and shoulders. I took many different medicines, and was under the doctor's care, but nothing seemed to do me any lasting good. Finally heart disease was added to my troubles.

"Hearing Dodd's Kidney Pills well spoken of by my neighbors, I decided to try them. To my surprise and relief one box cured me completely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Rudy because his troubles all came from sick kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a kidney remedy, pure and simple. If you have pain in the back, rheumatism, lumbago, gravel or diabetes, your kidneys are wrong. You need Dodd's Kidney Pills.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Comparatively few farmers were in the city for the circus yesterday.

A private tip, publicly expressed to our readers is, during this hot weather don't drink ice water.

A Lindsay blacklister has been fined $13.75 for falling off the water waggon.

The date of the annual social in connection with the Church of the Sacred Heart has been fixed for July 14th.

The local Street Car Company is to be congratulated on the admirable way they handled the crowd yesterday.

Lindsay's new Chief of Police is now to be paid $1050 a year, and the night cop $750, each to provide his own uniform.

Robinson's Circus yesterday had the smallest, but best of its size, aggregation of animals ever shown under canvas here.

The registration of those who are entitled to vote and are not on the voters' list, began yesterday and continues during the balance of the week.

Judging by what an E.E.C. says, a fatality has occurred in the family of Mr. Morrow Boyd. The deceased is no relation to the Morrow family here.

The first Well of the Company will be drilled on this property and a rich strike of valuable oil is anticipated.

COMPANY'S PROPERTIES:

The Southwest Petroleum and Development Company, Limited, controls approximately 4,220 acres of Oil Lands situated South and West of the City of Calgary. The Company also owns the surface rights of the North One-half of Legal Sub-division Sixteen (16), Section one (1), Township twenty (20), Range three (3), West of the Fifth Meridian.

FIRST WELL:

The first well of the Company will be drilled on the above-mentioned Legal Subdivision, which is just west of the famous producing Discovery Well of the Calgary Petroleum Products Company, Limited, (the Dingman Company), and arrangements are being made to have this proceeded with.

The following are the Company's holdings, with details and locations: (1). The South One-half of Section Thirty-four (34), Township Twenty (20), Range Two (2), West of the Fifth Meridian. Three Hundred and Twenty acres (320).

(2). All of Section Four (4) Township Twenty (20), Range One (1), West of the Fifth Meridian, Six Hundred and Forty acres (640).

(3). All of Section Eleven (11) Township Twenty-nine (29), Range (6), West of the Fifth Meridian, Six Hundred and Forty acres (640).

Maps may be consulted and further information secured at the office of the undersigned.

The Company's properties are all carefully selected and were picked out at leisure by the original holders (from whom the Company has purchased) long prior to the recent striking of oil in quantity. The vendors of these leases are accepting approximately eight per cent. of the purchase price in cash, and the balance in stock of the Company, for their holdings. This is an evidence of their confidence in the value of the various properties as Oil producers.

The advantage is apparent of such a favorable agreement, as it leaves the Company free to apply incoming funds, to development work and legitimate expenses.

DIRECTORS:

In Companies of this nature the standing and integrity of its Directors and Officers are more important if possible than in the case of any other kind of Company. A brief reference, therefore, to the personnel forming this Company's Board is given, viz:

W. STEWART HERRON, PRESIDENT:

Mr. Herron located the present Dingman Discovery Well. He is a Director of the Dingman Company (the Calgary Petroleum Products Company, Limited), in which he is the largest individual shareholder. The lands of The Southwest Petroleum and Development Company, Limited, are all well known and approved by Mr. Herron, as indicated by his acceptance of the Presidency of the Company. Mr. Herron is the pioneer, who commenced the development and discovery of Oil in the Alberta Oil Fields.

A successful business man and a most exacting and careful investor.

The price of the shares is par, $1.00 pershare, and no shares will be sold below this rate.

LIMITED AMOUNT:

The 150,000 shares now offered were secured by the undersigned against strong competition from leading Financial Firms of Calgary, Vancouver and Montreal. It is expected this small offering of shares will be rapidly taken up.

ADDITIONAL SHARES:

Purchasers of the present issue of Treasury Stock will have the right to purchase share for share at par in any subsequent issue of aforementioned Treasury stock.

STOCK EXCHANGE:

Active trading in Oil Company shares has prevailed since the big strike of oil was made in the Dingman Well last month and such trading will be regulated and held on a proper basis by a regularly established Stock Exchange which is now in process of organization.

CURRENT SELLING PRICES:

The stocks of all Companies drilling in good districts are selling at a premium; some of them at many hundreds per cent. advance over the original price, and it is confidently expected that the shares of the Company will show a substantial advance immediately drilling operations are under way.

ENORMOUS POSSIBILITIES:

The enormous possibilities of big profits are apparent, and the Company has a Board and Executive composed of men of undoubted integrity and ability. The Company's lands are carefully selected, and apart from the necessary cash disbursements for securing leases and other moderate legitimate expenses, the shareholders' money will be expended for the purpose for which it is subscribed, viz., the drilling and development of their properties.

The Company's Prospectus refers to the drilling of the first well, as stated above, in close proximity to the Dingman Discovery Well. I am now advised by wire that the Directors have decided to drill another well at the same time on the West Half of Section 36.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY ANSWERS

VERA B: Your skin will grow soft clear and smooth after a few applications of a plain almozoin jelly-cream made at home as follows—Put 4 tablespoonfulls glycerine into ½ pint water and in this dissolve 1 ounce almozoin (which you can buy at your druggist's). Apply a thick coat of this to the skin before retiring, then wash off in the morning and use more of the jelly cream before massaging. This gradually dispels the wrinkles and lines and banishes pimples, blackheads and the "muddy" oily look. The almozoin jelly cream is greaseless and will not grow hair.

MRS. A.T. You may not require glasses. Get from your druggist 1 ounce crystos and dissolve in one pint water. Then put a few drops in the offending eye several times a day until inflamation and soreness have vanished. This crystos eye-tonic is especially good for granulated eyelids, and using it strengthens the eyes and gives to them a youthful sparkle.

ADELINE: The reason for that dryness of hair after your shampoo is because that kind of soap irritates the scalp's tissues and makes them over-sensitive. Canthrox will correct this, for it is a tonic as well as cleanser and is so stimulating to the blood vessels and scalp tissues that the danger is entirely eliminated. To prepare your shampoo, dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water, then pour it slowly on the head as you rub briskly. This dissolves every trace of dust, dandruff and excess oil and after rinsing, the hair will dry quickly and evenly.

LUCY G: Loss of weight is a serious matter and calls for prompt action. Get from your druggist 1 ounce hardene and put it, together with ½ cupful sugar, into ½ pint alcohol, then add hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. This simple home remedy increases your appetite and gently cleanses the system of impurities; restores a healthy condition to the vital organs. When this is done your weight will be normal and the glow of health will be upon your cheeks.

MRS. A.R.J.: I make a good lotion that is very helpful to my skin by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, to which is added 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine which will soon correct that oily, sallow "wornout" appearance of your complexion. This simple lotion is soothing and healing and imparts a velvety smoothness and natural loveliness to the complexion not possible with powder and rouge. You will like the spurmax lotion because it is easily applied and cannot be detected when on.

LUCILLE: I always use a plain quinzoin hair tonic, made at home by pouring 1 ounce quinzoin into ½ pint alcohol, then adding ½ pint water. Rub a little well into the scalp twice a week and you will soon rid the scalp of dandruff and restore the hair roots to health. The regular use of the quinzoin tonic will restore the former glow and even color to the hair and make it soft, long and fluffy.

MRS. M.N.T.: Your excess weight can be easily and quickly reduced by taking this parnotis treatment, made at home, as follows: Put 4 ounces parnotis (which you can get at your drugstore) in 1½ pints hot water and strain when cool. Take a tablespoonful before meals until weight is where you want it. No harm results from the use of the parnotis treatment, and the flesh is left solid and the skin soft and smooth.

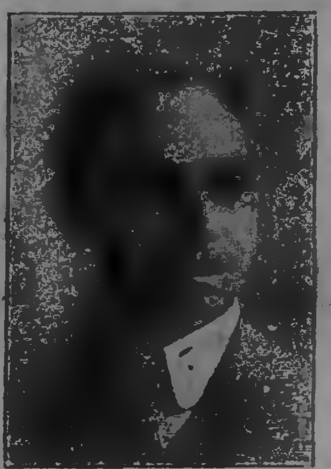
VOL. XLI, NO. 137 FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 12, 1914 PRICE TWO CENTS

Rousing Conservative Meeting Last Night at the Opera House

Splendid Addresses Delivered by Hon. J. J. Duff, J. H. Burnham, M. P., E. A. Peck, the Candidate and Others --Enthusiastic Reception of Mr. R. J. Soden



R. J. SODEN
Conservative Candidate.

The mass meeting in the Opera House last night, in the interest of Mr. R. J. Soden, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for West Peterborough, was attended by an enthusiastic gathering of representative Conservatives, who demonstratively manifested their unqualified endorsation of the candidature of West Peterborough's nominee and the policy of the present Provincial Legislature. The utterances of the several speakers were punctured with vociferous commendation of a clean Government, and progressive temperance legislation under the leadership of Sir J. P. Whitney. The main issue touched upon was that of temperance, with abundant evidence in sight to show that the Conservative administration had fostered local option and moral reform without using the temperance cry as a political football for campaign purposes.

Mr. Soden, in a clean and manly speech, with the courage of his convictions, asserted that his temperance policy in the abolition of bar, club and shop licenses, whereas the Liberal policy would leave the shop in business. He contended that more harm emanates from the dispensing of liquor from shops than from any other source.

The attitude of the meeting was a flattering one to Mr. Soden, and presaged victory for his esteemed leader, Sir J. P. Whitney and himself in the coming elections.

MR. JAS. KENDRY.

Mr. Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., President of the West Peterborough Conservative Association and an old-time favorite, made a very acceptable chairman. On behalf of the W.P.C.A., he endorsed the candidature of Mr. Soden, and was optimistic of the return of the Whitney Government by a bigger majority than ever. Mr. Rowell's policy of abolish the bar, he considered worthless without abolishing the bottle. In his experience as a License Commissioner, he would say that the shop licenses should share the same fate as those for bars.

MR. E. A. PECK, M.L.A.

Mr. Peck, the present local member in the Ontario Legislature, on rising was greeted with hearty cheers.

Mr. Peck referred in part to the remarkable record of the Whitney administration. Mr. Whitney feels sure of the people of West Peterborough. This has been shown by the evident confidence exhibited by the people in sending local candidates to Toronto, by handsome majorities. Mr. Whitney is confident that West Peterborough will again send a Conservative from this riding.

The speaker referred briefly to the great progress made by the Hydro Commission in Western Ontario and is confident that at an early date this city will be able to obtain similar results.

The speaker also referred briefly to the Compensation act passed recently and the benefits the working man will get from its adoption, ensuring as it does a reasonable compensation for injuries.

R. J. SODEN.

The Conservative candidate was received with quite an ovation, demonstrating his popularity with his party. He thanked the attendance with which he was favored in the opening meeting of the campaign.

"I am particularly pleased," he said, "with the attendance of the ladies. It shows that the interest of that portion of our population which always exercises its influence for the betterment of moral, social and political conditions in this province has been aroused and that the ladies of the City of Peterborough are giving their sympathy and co-operation to the very effective Government of Sir James Whitney and to my own candidature.

"I also wish to thank those male supporters of the party and of myself who have honored us with their attendance, both in the body of the building and on the platform. I owe particular thanks to Mr. Peck, the Hon. James Duff, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Burnham and Mayor Buller, who have volunteered to give their party and myself their support with voice and action in the contest upon which we have entered.

"I feel that you would wish to hear from me more particularly regarding my own stand and the attitude of the Government on the much vexed question of temperance legislation. I purpose, therefore, to deal with this question at some length and in order to do so will be compelled to go into the particulars of the local conditions which affect it here in the riding of West Peterborough.

"Some short time ago, a convention of the Temperance League of the City and County of Peterborough was called to decide on the course of action to be taken by them in the coming Provincial elections. Although I was unable to attend the morning session of that convention I did attend the session of the afternoon. I found there men of both political parties, many of them earnest, sincere, single-minded, on the question of how best to mitigate, or remove altogether, the evil of the liquor traffic. When I entered the convention I found that the chairman was about to put to the assembly a motion regarding the stand of the convention on this very important subject. Wishing to vote on this matter so that it might not be charged that I had shirked my responsibility I asked that the resolution about to be put be read to the convention. This at first was objected to on the ground that it would take too long to read the motion. This objection, however, being overcome in a short time and the motion being read, I found that the wording of it was such that it covered only the abolition of the bar and the club licenses and such other progressive legislation as might from time to time be brought up by the different parties in the Legislative Assembly at Toronto. I, therefore, asked why the shop licenses had been left out of the motion and was answered that the motion covered the policy. I then asked if I were to understand from that that the policy referred to was supposed to be the policy of the temperance party of the County of Peterborough or some other policy and stated that my understanding of the demands and aspirations of the temperance party, not only of this County and City, but of the whole Province of Ontario, were the total abolition of the bar, shop and club licenses, viz: of everything that came within Provincial jurisdiction, and then I moved an amendment to the motion about to be put to the effect that the motion instead of reading abolition of bar and club licenses and the furthering of all other progressive temperance legislation should read the abolition of bar, shop and club licenses. This amendment was strenuously objected to by some members, so strenuously in fact, that as the delegates contesting it rose to express their views I was forced to consider why the opposition came so strenuously since the amended motion covered only what all honest, sincere temperance advocates have taken as their standard of excellence in Provincial legislation.

Seeking the cause I was forced to note that the delegates who opposed the amendment were in every instance of a different shading of politics to myself. So apparent did this become that I asked whether I were to understand that I was in a convention of temperance delegates, or whether by any chance I had stumbled into a political caucus. Eventually the amendment was submitted to a vote and to the credit of that Temperance League be it said that it was carried with only three dissenting votes.

During the morning session of the convention at which I was not present, it would appear that my name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the nomination of the Conservative party. One of the gentlemen, a Liberal by the way, at once went to a friend of mine to assure him that if Soden received the nomination he would not be acceptable to the temperance party.

This was told him within an hour of the statement being made, and though the gentleman who made the statement now denies that he made it, my friend to whom he told it affirms his making it. I mention this matter to show that with some men who have been prominently identified with this movement locally there lies behind and beneath all their temperance professions a very deeply ingrained objection to the Conservative party and a fixed conviction that temperance men can only exist within the Liberal party.

Following this convention came the convention for the choosing of a Conservative candidate. At that convention, after my nomination, I made the following statement:

"There has entered into the politics of the Province of Ontario a question which is not a political question at all. It has been used too long as a football in party politics. It concerns a man and his conscience.

"Personally, I believe in the abolition of the bar, the shop and the club licenses and will allow no person to dictate to me as to how I shall vote on this matter."

This statement as made by me was and is an expression of my own beliefs on this question.

This, however, would not seem to satisfy some temperance people who claim that they had a right to demand of me a signed pledge which would leave me in the position of nothing more than a voting machine with no right to scrutinize or watch for pit falls which might be laid as they have been before by wily politicians.

To my mind the abolition of the shop is of the utmost importance. It sells liquor in packages, easy of transportation without detection so that it may be conveyed with comparative security into territory already dry no matter how alert may be the Government officials in endeavoring to maintain and enforce the law in such territory. What do we find is the complaint in villages such as Lakefield, in townships such as the Monaghans, Otonabee, Smith and the adjoining territory of West Peterborough? It is this, that the shop is the most deadly menace to the enforcement of the law in such districts, that it labels many districts which have been voted dry as wet districts, not from any lack of enforcement of the law, but because of the ease with which parties visiting centres where the shops are in existence are able to secrete and transport considerable quantities of liquor into these dry areas.

Again, what is the situation in the cities? The shop supplies, in most cases, I will admit, unwillingly and unknowingly, yet not the less certainly, blacklisters with the liquor they are able to obtain. For instance a man is placed on the blacklist and unable to procure liquor at the bar, but some unscrupulous person not on the list himself, goes to a shop where he obtains a flask or bottle as the case may be. This unscrupulous person buys from the shop, the shop not having him on their list as a black lister supplies it as they are allowed to do according to law. This person takes the liquor away with him, secretly meets the man on the blacklist and together these men consume this liquor until the blacklister becomes intoxicated and in many cases winds up in the courts.

Watch the records as shown at our own police court and you will find that in nearly every case the man got drunk from a bottle and not from a bar.

Again, I claim that the shop is a worse disturber of the Sabbath home than is the bar. On Saturday night those who indulge too freely supply themselves with their liquor not from the bar or the club but from the shop. If you do not believe this you have only to use your own powers of observation on a Saturday evening, when the time is drawing towards the hour of closing, viz: towards seven o'clock, or in your Sunday morning walk, if you happen to pass as I do and as you all do, places where considerable wide strips of grass intervene between the pavement edge on the inner side of the boundary of the properties by which you pass, cast your eye over these on a Sunday morning and count as you pass the number of empty bottles which you will find in say a length of half a block. Almost beside my own home there is a striking illustration of this and I myself have counted frequently from six to as many as nine empty bottles in width of a half a block. How did they get there? Those who bought them bought them at the shop. They were sold according to law, they were bought according to law.

Had these men been compelled to buy their liquor at the bar the last drink they could have obtained would have been at seven o'clock, and it is reasonable to suppose that they would have at least awakened considerably soberer if not altogether sober on the Sabbath morning.

Nor is this the worst feature of the shop licenses. The shop is the supply depot for the women drinkers of the cities, towns and villages whose numbers I regret to say are being lamentably increased [illegible] by year. Gentlemen, I am not making these statements unadvisedly. They are true. Absolutely. If you do not believe them investigate. Watch during the week and particularly again on the Saturday evening the shops of the cities and villages. Count, if you will, the number of women who seek the shop as their source of supply and then answer me truthfully as to whether what I have said is not actual fact and not fiction. The shop is the source of supply, and where the shop does not exist, as in the country, inebriate women are the exception and not the rule.

Again the shop is a greater menace to the boy than the bar. The hotelmen and their bar tenders have to be exceptionally careful in this particular as the law imposes a very severe penalty on sales to minors, and the law, at least under the Whitney administration, is carefully, rigidly and justly enforced. (Cheers).

Why, then, may I ask, is Mr. Rowell in his policy treating the shops so tenderly. Surely the facts that I have stated to you must have come under his observation. I do not wish for one moment to say Mr. Rowell is insincere. I do not know Mr. Rowell personally, but I do wish to say this, that it would appear from the fact of his leaving the shops out of his policy of abolition as if he were either influenced by a lack of accurate knowledge as regards conditions within the Province, or else is influenced by some factor beyond his control but within his own party.

Would it not be just as easy in framing a policy to abolish the bar to at the same time include the shop. I might almost say, less machinery than would be utilized in enforcing the law after the act of abolition had been passed would suffice to ensure the closing of the shops as well as the closing of the bars. I believe in the abolition of all three, but contend that to be effective, permanent and safe legislation for temperance men to support, the law should include all three. I have not deviated, nor do I intend to deviate one hair breadth from the position I took at the Conservative convention on this matter; but I must insist on being at least a free agent in the conduct of my own beliefs. I must insist on this not only because that in pledging myself to vote thus, and thus, and thus, specifically I not only would be forfeiting my own manhood I would be forfeiting the right of my sincere temperance constituents to through me make sure that the best and farthest advanced temperance legislation obtainable would receive my support.

I contend that the platform on this matter that I have adopted, viz: the abolition of the bar and the shop and the club licenses, is the platform which temperance men consider most advanced.

It has been stated in certain quarters that I cannot deliver what I promise. Gentlemen, I do not pretend to be able to outvote the whole Legislative Assembly in Toronto. I have only one vote, but I have that assurance from a party who have never yet broken a promise to the temperance people.

"How does the matter stand with my opponent. He has signed a statement in favor of abolishing the shop. Does his signed statement correspond with the policy of his leader who says he is not in favor of abolishing the shop but is in favor of abolishing bars and clubs? Seeing that Mr. Gillespie has chosen, perhaps unthinkingly, to outstrip his leader in this race, let me ask him, if returned is he prepared when his leader, Mr Rowell, introduces his motion to abolish the bars and club licenses, to rise in his (Mr. Gillespie's) place and move an amendment to his leader's motion to the effect that the shops be included and abolished together with the bars and clubs?

Gentlemen, it is for you to judge which of us, Mr. Gillespie or myself, have taken in this matter the right stand and to poll your votes accordingly.

Let me turn to the instance of a gentleman, a leader of this movement in Peterborough who professes to be most sincere and single minded in his attitude towards this question and whom I believe thinks he is. Let me read you a little interview which took place between this gentleman and another only last evening:

"I want to ask you a question, Mr. Cowan, but I think I know the answer already. Supposing a straight liquor man were to come out in the Liberal interest and that a strong temperance man for the Conservatives, would you vote Conservative?" He evaded this by saying that he would have to take into account the other issues before the people. I replied that he had refused to discuss

Duke of Connaught Will Not Be Governor-General For Further Term

Ottawa, June 11.—Not the slightest credence is to be put in the story emanating from Quebec, that the Duke of Connaught will act as Governor-General for two more years, and that the appointment of the Prince of Teck will be cancelled. Nothing is known of the story in Government circles, and it is described as a "dog day yarn.".

PREMIER ASQUITH TO INTRODUCE HOME RULE AMENDMENTS BEFORE LORDS PASS MEASURE

Upper House Will Have Free Hand on New Bill and it is Assumed Permanent Exclusion of Ulster Will be Demanded

London, June 11. Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons to-day his intention of introducing the promised measure to amend the Irish Home Rule Bill before any further progress is made by the House of Lords with the second reading of the main measure. The Unionists thus have won the day, with their insistent demand that he should take this action.

The Lords will be entirely free to change the amending bill as they think proper, and it is generally assumed that they will insert provisions for the unconditional exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the Irish Home Rule Bill, and also for the protection of the Protestant minority in the rest of Ireland.

The Unionists in this way will be enabled to test how far the Government and the Irish Nationalists are prepared to go in the direction of a compromise.

The new bill is not likely to be brought into the House of Lords before the week beginning June 21.

EAST PETERBORO' ELECTION

Mr. Thompson Holding Successful and Enthusiastic Meetings.

Mr. James Thompson, the Conservative candidate for East Peterborough, is holding very successful meetings in various parts of the riding, and there is every indication that he will be returned with as large if not larger majority than before.

Last night he addressed a splendid meeting at Graystock, and will hold another at Stewart's, Otonabee. Mr. Thompson evidently is taking no chances, and will contest his campaign vigorously till the end.

PETES WIN AGAIN

A very fast and clean game of ball was played at Riverside Park yesterday, when the Hamiltons played the first game of the series with the Petes. Hamilton opened the scoring in the first innings with one run and with Belting tossing the ball the gates closed against Hamilton. In the third, the Petes took a turn at scoring and Moly Hoses how them boys swatted the pill, making four hits and three runs. The balance of the game was closely contested neither team getting a man over the plate. Belting pitched a fine game and was held up by Catcher Kelley in good style.

The score was 3-1, for the Petes.

FIRST WHEAT EXPORTED

Shipment of Less Than 1,000 Bushels Was Sent From Manitoba

On Oct. 21, 1876 the first commercial shipment of wheat out of Manitoba was made from Winnipeg. The shipment was made by pioneer merchants of Winnipeg, Higgins and Young, and the [illegible] bushels of hard wheat shipped to Steele Brothers, seedsmen of Toronto, was for seed purposes. The price paid in Winnipeg was 85 cents a bushel.

It took a number of farmers [illegible] day to make up a shipment [illegible] would be considered hardly worth while of any modern Manitoba [illegible]. The wheat was collected in [illegible] quantities from farmers in several districts near Winnipeg and [illegible] Higgins & Young.

The invoice, in the fine [illegible] hand-writing of David Young, [illegible] Oct. 12, 1876, indicating that the [illegible] ment was made up and ready for shipment several days before it was actually started on what was then the long journey to Toronto. The freight rate in those days was just 35c cents per bushel.

WIND AND PLANTS

Experiments of German Professor Show Interesting Facts

A rather surprising degree of influence of the wind upon plant growth and crops was shown by the experiments of Dr. Oscar Bernbeck, a German professor of agriculture. Severe gales tended to produce deformity, giving a twisted and knotty shape to twigs, and ordinary winds diminished the energy of growth of sprouts through the increase of transpirations and alteration of circulatory conditions, and had a drying effect that in some cases caused serious injury to both soil and plants.

Under a wind of thirty-three feet per second the ground lost three or four times as much water as on protected land. On ground sufficiently moist, strong sprouts were but little affected, but on some soils the growth with no wind was three times as great as with a wind of thirty-three feet per second.

It was evident that the usual moderate wind of Germany—ten to twenty-five feet per second—may lessen the yield of exposed land more than half.

Protection is to be sought by various kinds of wind shields, such as walls and hedges, and especially by planting forests on neighboring hills.

NEED OF POLITENESS

Time to Revive Usages of Chivalry, Young Germans Think

A number of young men of good standing in the German capital, displeased by the growing lack of chivalry to be seen in men's treatment of women, formed a league pledged to practice and encourage politeness in public places.

Members of the league obligate themselves, for instance, to surrender their seats in street cars to women and the aged; to offer assistance to women at street crossings and in other places of peril; and to revive so far as possible, all the little niceties of deportment which went into eclipse about the time that women began to compete largely with men as wage-earners.

The objection to chivalry is that it is only skin deep; that along with extreme politeness may go the most substantial injustice. That, of course, is true. But isn't it better to have the injustice with politeness than to have neither justice nor courtesy? Courtesy costs so very little, and it is so nice!

The Boy Scout movement has elements of usefulness in this direction; but a courtesy league for elders, as in Berlin, might also serve a good purpose in our careless age.

THE TOUCH OF DRAPERY ON GROWN-UP GOWNS MARKS JUNIOR MODES AS WELL

As long as materials are so supple and clinging, their very touch suggestive of folds and drapings, draped gowns and wraps will continue modish.

For the woman whose dress allowance is somewhat limited it is wise to choose a dark, soft silk for the luncheon or afternoon tea frock. It may be worn much oftener than a light shade and will be found generally more satisfactory. Moire, silk poplin, one of the soft taffetas or charmeuse are all suitable, and many of the soft drapey wool stuffs make up most attractively.

A crow-blue taffetas with a self figure was used to develop 7979. The wide girdle of a lighter blue affords an effective contrast, and the gathered guimpe of figured tulle is practical, as it is a simple matter to replace it when soiled.

There is just a touch of drapery on each side of the skirt, and the [illegible] is a peasant design [illegible] in the [illegible]

This model may be cut [illegible] with 5½ yards of 36 inch [illegible] ½ yard of tulle.

The "dress-up" frock of the little miss has its bit of drapery [illegible] be seen in 7996 [illegible] silk with a touch of [illegible] ery at the belt and [illegible] be used with this design [illegible] results. [illegible] yards of 36 inch material.

Our Point of View

In the light of the recent disclosures it seems to us that the name of the Canadian Northern Railway ought to be changed to "The Sucked Orange."

—o—

Hark from the Tombs (the New York prison) comes a doleful sound. It is Becker proclaiming his innocence of the murder of Rosenthal.

—o—

Sir Wilfred Laurier says that he will continue to fight against Premier Borden's policies. He did that years ago, when he was in power, and everybody knows what happened to him at Armageddon.

—o—

We take the liberty of advising the officials of Cleveland that if they expect to get taxes out of our old friend John D. Rockefeller it will be the part of wisdom to first chloroform him.

—o—

It is said that a number of prominent members of the Ottawa House propose to spend some time during the summer vacation in addressing political meetings, which shows that nothing is so restful to a tired politician as a chance to talk.

—o—

John Redmond and his bunch of Irish agitators whose voices have been loudest for war on the Ulster patriots, and who claim that they are prepared to give their blood for Irish Home Rule, have not so far shed anything except prespiration.

The Panama Canal has not been formally opened with a flow of hot air and champagne, but commerce is already moving through it in barge lines quite as smoothly as though the ceremonies had been pulled off in due time and ancient form.

The Schools of Rome

Rome has over 500,000 people, most of them belonging to the Roman Catholic Church; and yet in Rome there are 50,000 children attending public schools. In the recent election the "clerical" party prevailed, and at once it was decided that the catechism should be taught in the public schools, but only to those children whose relatives ask for it. And out of 50,000 children, all baptized into the Roman Catholic Church, all belonging to Roman Catholic families, and all reckoned in the Roman statistics as Roman Catholics, only 1,103 asked to receive teaching in the catechism.

Arming Ireland

The statement by Mr. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists that his party countenanced the enrolling of volunteers in the South of Ireland to oppose the Ulster volunteers, opens up a very formidable prospect for the future of affairs in Ireland. If Mr. Redmond is correctly reported, it means that Ireland will soon be divided into two hostile military camps, and the danger of a clash will be much increased.

The British Government must soon deal with this question seriously. Mr. Redmond would never have approved of the arming of the Nationalists so long as he had full confidence in the British Ministers, as regards their ability both to grant Home Rule and to keep the peace in Ireland. The gun-running episodes apparently have alarmed him, as they have proclaimed the futility of the Government's position. A strong hand is needed in Great Britain and none of Mr. Asquith's Parliamentary victories have shown him to possess it outside of the restricted arena of political manoeuvring. If Ireland, north and south, is to become an armed camp, it is impossible to exaggerate the seriousness of the situation, and the longer the present uncertainty drags on, the greater will be the danger.

the other issues on the platform but had overshadowed them all with the temperance issue. He then said he did not think he would vote Liberal under those circumstances, but would not like to say he would vote Conservative. However, if the position of the parties were reversed he thought he would change over.

This gentlemen is one of the men who is opposing my candidature on the basis of my not having signed the letter presented to me by the executive of the temperance party. I may say that this stand it would seem is frequently taken where Conservatives, well known temperance men take the field against Liberal candidates and state their temperance position.

This, gentlemen, covers what I have to say on the local situation here, except that I reiterate the statement made at my convention, viz: that the temperance issue is not and should not be a political issue, that I believe in the abolition of the bar and the shop and the club license and will allow no person to dictate to me as to how I shall vote on these matters.

Mr. Soden resumed his seat amid prolonged applause.

HON. J. J. DUFF.

Hon. J. J. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, was accorded an enthusiastic reception. He referred at length to the brilliant record of the Whitney administration, too well known to need extended reference, which Government has given the greatest workable force behind temperance in enforcing the license act. While the Liberal party humbuged the people, the Conservative party has delivered the goods. When the Conservatives came into power there were 2800 bars in Ontario, there are now 1600. Under Liberal administration there were 28 local option districts, there are now 350. There has been no election scandal under Whitney, while in expenditures no room for complaint has been found. In the sale of school books a saving of $1,000,000 has been effected, and an increase of from $75,000 under Liberal rule to half a million yearly for colonization roads at present date provided. He characterized the old Ross Government as one of graft, ballot stuffing and looting, of which Mr. Rowell was a staunch supporter. He contended that people could decide how to vote without interference from clergymen, who lose their usefulness the moment they enter party politics. He characterized the Liberal temperance policy as a party football, and hoped all Conservatives would line up behind Mr. Soden and Sir J. P. Whitney for clean honest administration. (Prolonged applause).

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

Mr. Burnham, on rising, was received with prolonged applause. He began his remarks by saying that it was always a great pleasure to him to address an audience of Peterborough people because they took a keen and intelligent interest in the welfare of the nation. The difference between great nations and nations that are not great is the difference between a people that take an intelligent interest in its own affairs and a people too lazy, indifferent or selfish to do so. elections, although considered a nuisance, are like a great many other things necessary if not always welcome. Election time was a time when the people got a chance to speak and the voice of the people declared at the polls is the greatest achievement of the human race in the development of civilization and of popular rights. While partisanship is more or less of a view parties are an absolute necessity because they are the frame-work upon which are hung differences of political opinion. Partisanship on the other hand is that quality of stupidity which makes men blind adherents to a mere name, and often finds them following a flag that is an emblem of disgrace rather than honor. We must first of all decide whether the measure advocated by a party or by a candidate is a right one. If it is a wrong one the better the candidate who advocates it, the more clever he is, the more far-seeing, the more likely is he to do damage by means of the measure, but if the measure be a right one then even if he is a weak man, the candidate cannot go far astray. Therefore we adopt as our motto "Measures, not men." There are, however, many cases in which measures are really not to be taken as such. For example, when applications are made to Parliament for all sorts of grants such as land grants, money grants, monopolies and the like. Apparently the measure is well enough, but as a matter of fact it is really a robbery of the rights of the people. That is the time when it is absolutely necessary for the people to have firm, straight and strong men as representatives, otherwise the results will be disastrous.

The effect of this wholesale fleecing is seen as a rule only in the general condition of the people. A nation, which by virtue of its immense natural resources should like the heir to a great estate be above want finds itself sometimes fleeced by its own trustees and all the people know about it is that, although they thought they were wealthy, they find that their taxes are high even for the necessaries of civilization such as education, roads and bridges, waterworks, power, etc. An example will suffice. The people of Ontario did not know that the water power of Niagara going to waste, was worth to them not less than five million dollars a year. A vast income in itself. As soon as it was discovered that electric power could be transported easily, capitalists applied for Niagara power. The so-called trustees of the people at Toronto, however, handed over some of this power to private individuals, for a song. Then the people of the Province got alarmed over it and for that and other reasons threw the Ross Government out of power, whereupon Mr. Beck and Mr. Whitney wiped out that iniquitous policy and developed Niagara power for the benefit of the people. Here we have in this one instance a people retaining property to the value of five million dollars per

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

Facing Realities.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

THE building inspectors came out in the morning and condemned my little home as utterly unsafe. The daily papers printed pictures of it, and spoke charitably of Mary's having forgotten the gas heater, but, all in all, we suffered a notoriety far from pleasant. After a time it died out, as even sensations in a country town will, and Mary and I were face to face with certain facts. I must buy new furniture. That in itself would commit us to debt, for we were living up to our means. And we would shake the dust of suburbanism from our feet and take a little apartment near mother and dad.

Vain Regrets.

Mary gave up utterly. She cried a great deal, and grew so nervous and hysterical that I did not know at times how to pacify her.

"To think, Peter," she would exclaim shuddering. "It was all my fault—just—just because I would forget things. If—if I hadn't forgotten to turn off the gas heater the boiler wouldn't have exploded, and we'd have our home still. And the cat wouldn't be dead."

It was odd how the sight of that dead cat on the sidewalk had seemed to impress the tragedy more on Mary's mind than anything else. What an abnormal gift of sympathy women possess!

"Well," I would answer hopefully, "let's not worry any more about it. We'll take a little apartment in town and begin all over. To be perfectly truthful, dear, the suburban atmosphere of this place has been getting horribly on my nerves for some time. We'll soon forget this experience and be none the worse for it."

But it was destined to have an effect on my life that I was not to forget.

After Mary was quite herself again we hunted up a cozey little apartment in town and bought furniture again as in our honeymoon days. There was really very little of value left in our cottage. Most of the furniture had been pretty well wrecked. Here and there, to be sure, were pieces of furniture that we had polished over and fixed up, but for the most part the terrific explosion of the water heater had done deadly work.

Beginning Over Again.

Mary and I talked things over very seriously one night after our little apartment was quite in order.

"Peter," she said, "I—I've laid awake nights thinking of how this dreadful thing is all my fault, and I—I want to promise you that I—I'm going to begin all over again. The flat's new and the furniture's new, and I'm going to turn over quite a new leaf. I won't forget soap and matches or anything."

There was such a wistful desire to atone in her eyes that I felt a lump in my throat.

"Don't worry, sweetheart!" I said cheerfully. "Let's rather think how pleasant the apartment looks. It's like another honeymoon."

Which pleased Mary mightily.

"You don't hate me, Peter?" she whispered.

"Certainly not," said I. And Mary and I shook hands with a feeling that we were beginning over again. As, indeed, we were.

After all, I must not blame Mary so much. Looking back over her idle, frivolous girlhood, shielded from all knowledge of the things that would have fitted her for wifehood and womanhood, what was there to help her steer her course aright? She fancied I was merely to replace her mother's care and protection. There was no realization in her pretty conception of our idyllic relations that I wanted her for a stanch, true partner of weal and woe, not as a pretty playmate who'd shirk when she was tired. Her mind was filled with dresses and the acute sentimentality with which every girl colors her dreams of marriage.

Now at last we are beginning to face realities. Mary is beginning to think.

BUTTERFLIES ✻ ✻ ✻ By Michelson

Copyright, [illegible], by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. [illegible]

WHEN one butterfly looks at another it is difficult to guess what each of them is thinking. The human butterfly, fluttering through life, sipping here and there, of most eccentric flight, and seemingly hard to catch, maybe has a sincere admiration for the dainty thing that is making believe, just as the girl might, that it is going to alight.

If that other flutterer in the air really could think, what do you suppose she WOULD think of the bigger, glittering, glowing, noisy girl butterfly who is watching her?

Both may seem very foolish, and both may be very wise, each in her own way. You can't tell about butterflies. You know they come out of a chrysalis—a WONDERFUL piece of magic. Maybe you had better not be too sure as to what magic may yet happen to the girl butterfly. Some one may hold out a hand to HER. After she is CAUGHT she may change marvellously.

Newest Hats for Summer

By Madge Marvel

THE all-white hat is replacing the all-black one for midsummer wear.

Big flowers, enormous peonies, roses, pond lilies are used for trimming. Horsehair lace is sometimes draped over the crown and allowed to extend in a little frill at the edge of the brim. The sailor shape is most popular. White chip seems the favored straw. Where color is used on the white hats the hat itself is often of shadow lace over a wire frame, and the trimming is in pale tints of broad satin ribbon, pale pink, blue, lavender, while the flowers used are big and faintly tinted.

They are charming hats to wear with light summer dresses, and after the reign of the black hat give a particularly attractive appearance to all women. There are many variations of the sailor shape in these chip models. The high-crowned, narrow-brimmed shape is seen, and is either trimmed with two narrow, tall, white wings, or three enormous, bigger-than-life roses set around the crown, almost obscuring the brim, while one tall rose nods at the centre back of the hat.

The larger sailor, which has some of the lines of a "picture hat" with its greatest length from back to front, may have a curve of the brim at one side and the massing of big posies around the crown with the height of arrangement in front. I notice many of the white hats have white foliage for the flowers, no color at all being allowed to creep into the trimming. The Watteau hat, which one might reasonably have expected to be the very style to rage in the summer season, seems less desirable than some of the models which are less picturesque but much smarter.

Lace shapes which suggest the poke are being shown with the back, where the brim is upturned, filled in with pale pink blossoms and a broad ribbon of pink satin arranged across the crown.

White lace over pink tulle with clouds of pink tulle for trimming make a veritable dream of a hat to top a summer frock. With the all-white hat comes the all-white veil. The sheer lace veil with very delicate patterning is favored for the straight-brimmed hats and is worn hanging free, fastened merely at the back to the edge of the brim, and falling evenly all around.

More and more one notices the wearing of the mask veil, as the bit of sheer net ending at the nose is called. It is many years since we have worn our veils this way. The revival has a certain charm. The mask veil must be thin and carefully adjusted. It must cover the tip of the nose and must not be drawn tightly. And the wearer with an attractive mouth will find it more becoming than the one whose mouth is not her best feature. The secret of this type of veil being at all possible lies in the care with which it is adjusted. It must not be drawn upward toward the back, but placed about the face and hat with the lower edge perfectly even way around to the back of the head. Otherwise it gives the impression that it is used to tie the nose on the face.

Ruffs of white tulle are favored as accompaniments for the white hats and light dresses. Indeed, all wearing apparel for the summer, aside from the linens and fabrics for morning wear, have this inconsequential airiness, which is delightfully appropriate to the needs of the season.

Champagne is a shade that has crept quietly back into sartorial favor and is appearing in many of the exclusive blouses of chiffon or batiste and in the crepe, voile and chiffon gowns. There is a soft shade of yellow which combines effectively with champagne, and a certain clear green and a dull blue which add to its loveliness.

Attraction Lost.

"Is [illegible] still devoted to Mrs. Fright[illegible]?"

"[illegible] seldom speaks to her. Her husband is deaf, you know."

Great Novels in a Nutshell

Charles Dickens'
OLIVER TWIST

Condensed by
HELEN S. GRAY

OLIVER TWIST was born in the workhouse, his mother dying at his birth. So Mr. Bumble, the beadle, who invented names in alphabetical order for orphans under such circumstances, named him. The inmates were half-starved, so that the place would not be too attractive. When he was 9 years old, Oliver was taken on trial apprenticeship by an undertaker, but was so ill-treated he ran away to London.

On the way he fell in with a pickpocket, the Artful Dodger. Seeing that the boy was friendless and starving he invited him to share his lodgings, which proved to be a den of thieves in charge of an old Jew, Fagin, who disposed of stolen goods. Every day he drilled the boys in picking pockets.

Oliver did not understand the situation until he was on the streets one day with the other two boys and saw one of them pick an old gentleman's pocket. On being discovered they darted around a corner into a doorway. Oliver ran, and was therefore taken for the thief. He was caught and haled into court, and was just being sentenced when a witness arrived who said he saw another boy commit the theft.

Oliver was so terrified he fainted. The old gentleman, Mr. Brownlow, was a very kind-hearted man. He called a carriage and took the boy home with him, where he was ill for a long time with a fever. He had decided to question him the next morning about his past history. Meantime he sent him out on an errand. On the way he was seen by Nancy, one of the gang of thieves, claimed as her lost brother, and marched back to Fagin, who was in terror lest the boy should betray them.

The thieves decided to initiate Oliver by having him help in a burglary Bill Sikes was about to execute. A slender boy was needed who could crawl through a small window and unlock a door. The butler awoke just as Oliver was dropped through the window by Sikes, and had resolved to run through the house and cry out and awake the owners. Bill and his accomplice made their escape. Oliver was hit by a bullet. The owner, Mrs. Maylie, and her adopted child, Rose, believed Oliver's story. They nursed him back to health and became fond of him.

When Fagin read in the newspapers of the failure, he went in quest of Sikes; but he had not yet returned. Some inadvertent words he let fall aroused Nancy's suspicions. She followed him home and overheard a conversation he had with a man named Monks. She heard Monks agree to pay Fagin a certain sum if Fagin got Oliver back again, and more if he made a thief of him. Subsequently she saw Monks at Fagin's and overheard still more.

Mr. Bumble decided to marry the matron of the workhouse, a widow. His proposal was interrupted by her being summoned to hear the dying confession of an old woman, who said she stole a gold ring from Oliver Twist's mother some 12 years before, which bore the name Agnes, with a blank space left and a date. She gave the pawn ticket for it to the matron. Monks afterward bribed the matron to let him have the ring and destroyed it.

Fagin Accusing Nancy of Having Betrayed Him.

Men who intimidate others, it so happens, frequently marry women they are afraid of, and before whom they are meek and submissive. So with Mr. Bumble. One of the most amusing parts of the book is that describing him vanquished in domestic frays and held up to ridicule before the paupers. Hearing some old women gabbing over the wash tubs one day he went in, and, to show his authority, ordered less noise. His wife appeared on the scene just at that moment and demanded to know what business it was of his. Threatening him with a bowl of soft soap, she drove him out.

Nancy, who had always felt a friendly interest in Oliver, went to Rose Maylie and told her all she knew about Monks's designs against Oliver. Because of her attachment to Bill Sikes, a brutal criminal, she refused to forsake the life she was living when offered a chance by Rose. The next time Nancy tried to slip away to see Rose, Bill locked her in. Fagin was present, and, noticing how anxious she was to get out of the house, became suspicious and had her watched. The spy overheard a conversation in which she refused to betray her pals, but told all she knew about Monks. Fagin represented to Sikes that Nancy was betraying them all. Enraged, Sikes killed her. He was haunted by his crime until, brought to bay, he accidentally strangled himself in trying to lower himself from a roof with a rope.

As soon as Oliver recovered from his wound at Mrs. Maylie's he went to hunt up his former benefactor, Mr. Brownlow, but found he had gone to the West Indies. Later Oliver ran across him on the street. He and Rose called, and Rose told him all she had learned about Monks.

Mr. Brownlow was greatly interested, and succeeded in catching Monks. When the latter saw that Mr. Brownlow knew all about him he confessed everything. Monks's father and Mr. Brownlow had been warm friends. Mr. Brownlow had been engaged to marry Monks's father's sister, but she died before the wedding day. Monks, which was an assumed name, was Oliver's half-brother. His father's first marriage proved very unhappy, ending in a separation. Subsequently he fell in love with a beautiful girl, Agnes Fleming, by whom he had a son, Oliver.

A relative died and left Oliver's father a great deal of money, but he himself died shortly after. He had settled a generous annuity on both his wife and Monks and bequeathed the rest of his estate to Agnes and her son, Oliver, on condition that the latter during his minority should not be guilty of any public act of dishonor or wrong. If he should be, the property bequeathed to him should go to Monks.

On hearing of her husband's death his wife went to the scene at once and destroyed the will. A letter he had written to Agnes Fleming, in which he spoke of the gold ring he had given her with the blank left in the name and of her approaching maternity, she saved for evidence. Monks's confession as to Oliver's birth and the ring was corroborated by Mrs. Bumble, a pawnbroker and two old women paupers. Rose Maylie was Agnes's sister.

Fagin was arrested and executed. Monks, in return for his confession and making restitution to Oliver, was not prosecuted. Mr. Brownlow adopted Oliver.

Words of Wise Men

Honorable industry always travels the same road with enjoyment and duty, and progress is altogether impossible without it.—S. Smiles.

Under this sycamore tree, with the sound of the clear river Dove in our ears, with the odor of the May flowers freshly around us after this gentle shower, and in the sight of these meadows gold and silver, the overflowing of nature for the delectation of all quiet and contemplative anglers, we do well with that our life is so much in walls and so little here.—Izaak Walton.

The most cultivated minds are usually the most patient, most clear, most rationally progressive, most studious of accuracy in details.—James Martineau.

History instructs us that this love of religious liberty, made up of the clearest sense of right and the highest conviction of duty, is able to look the sternest despotism in the face, and, with means apparently [illegible] to shake principalities and [illegible].—Daniel Webster.

The test of every religious, political or educational system is the man that it forms.—Amiel.

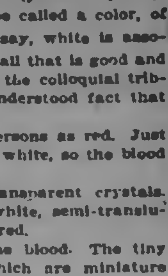
It is curious to observe the triumph of slight incidents upon the mind; and what incredible weight they have in forming and governing our opinions, both of men and things, that trifles light as air shall waft a belief into the soul, and plant it so immovable within it, that Euclid's demonstrations, could they be brought to batter it in the breach, should not all have power to overthrow it.—Sterne.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Your Blood "Animals" Protect You from Illness

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).



DR. HIRSHBERG

WHITE is the color, if it can be called a color, of purity and truth. That is to say, white is associated in human thought with all that is good and true. "As pure as the driven snow" is the colloquial tribute of street speech to the usually understood fact that "white" brings to mind "perfection."

The blood is regarded by most persons as red. Just as the snow is wrongly thought to be white, so the blood is mistakenly called red.

Briefly, snow is a motley of transparent crystals. Blood, at the same time, is mostly white, semi-translucent, opaque, in spots, and straw colored.

Yet there is a red element in the blood. The tiny little discs called red corpuscles, which are miniature Chinese pennies when viewed under the microscope, contain the scarlet stain called hemoglobin. Hemoglobin is like a magnet. Just as the little horseshoes pick up and let go of needles, pins and small metallic articles, so the hemoglobin, or vermillion element in the sanguinary stream seizes and releases oxygen and other gases.

Nature's Own Warriors.

When the wobbling, rolling, gyrating red corpuscles roll merrily along in the channels of veins and arteries they are either blue from loss of oxygen to the greedy-gut tissues, or blushing a cherry hue from the oxygen present. Literally, they are not an ultra-marine blue unless some poisonous gas or drug, such as illuminating gas, acetanilid, phenacetin, antipyrine or similar toxic thing, has replaced the much craved oxygen.

Notwithstanding these vermillion corpuscles, let it be noted that the vital stream of life is whiter, transparent or more lemon-tinted than brick colored.

One of the most aggressive, active members is the white corpuscle, called by physiologists the "leucocyte." Leucocytes, unlike the red unit which tosses and rolls with the ebb and flow, the flotsam and jetsam of the serum, are independent and self-impelling little bodies.

Indeed, you might, without stretching the truth, call them animalculae, or creatures which live along with you and co-operate with all the vital forces.

In fine, the leucocyte is a power, if not a law, unto itself. It takes up the cudgels of the body and fights many battles for you.

When your internal fabric, your membranes, your delicate structures, your flesh or blood is set upon by the marauders of disease, to wit, germs and microbes, molds and fungi, the white corpuscles rush to the defence like Funston's men to the Vera Cruz waterworks.

Plainly, then, one of the many and various functions of the leucocytes is to combat those plagues and enemies of health, bacteria.

Actually you may observe it for yourself. If a drop of salt water is warmed a bit, bacteria dropped in it, and active, heated leucocytes are mixed with them, a battle royal will take place.

Life-Saving Sight.

A muckle of matter from the head of a boil will show the same thing. There you will be amazed and overjoyed to see the busy little white corpuscle stretching out a part of itself—much as a drop of water on a window pane stretches out and fuses with another nearby drop—and really gobbling up, as a snake does a rabbit, as many microbes as it can reach.

It is more than an inspiring sight. It is a life-saving one. Without this wonderful provision of nature higher animals would long ago have died out.

Dr. Philip Hanson Hiss, a bacteriologist, formerly of the Johns Hopkins and Columbia universities, has just put these important facts to practical use. By an ingenious method he succeeds in stirring up and concentrating the leucocyte of rabbits under their ribs. This copious quantity of massed white unites are then still further concentrated by whizzing them around on a horizontal wheel called a centrifuge.

Now they are warmed up and injected in persons sick with erysipelas, pneumonia and other maladies known to be shy of white corpuscles. There are some human distempers which reduce the leucocytes. Erysipelas and malignant pneumonia, tuberculosis and typhoid are among them.

Of 16 patients with erysipelas inoculated with these rabbit leucocytes, less than 1 per cent. died—an extraordinary improvement over older forms of treatment.

Moreover, the duration of the malady was shortened from many weeks to about three days. This is looking forward medically with a flourish.

Answers to Health Questions

G. T.—What is good for a severe pain in my shoulder? Have not been able to work for six weeks.

This may be due to a torn muscle or ligament, to gall stones or various things. Put the shoulder in a plaster jacket for three weeks.

F. S.—1—What benefit does the human body derive from salt? 2—Have constant ringing in my right ear. Had adenoids and tonsils taken out. Ear drum is entirely gone. Is there any remedy? 3—Of what benefit are enemas?

1—Salt is one of the many necessary constituents of lining tissues. Too much of it, however, plays havoc with health.

2—Ear and throat surgeons are at times able to correct this defect.

3—They are as good and as bad as any artificial aid to constipation. Natural measures are superior.

Delicious Fig Dishes

ONE of the most delicious preserves is rhubarb marmalade with figs, which will be found welcome served with cold meats:

Five pounds of rhubarb and five pounds of sugar. Cut the rhubarb in small pieces and sprinkle the sugar over and let it stand over night. Cut four lemons in fine pieces and chop with them a pound of figs. Use both pulp and peel of the lemons. Add to the rhubarb and boil several hours until it is quite thick. When ready to remove from the fire add two teaspoonfuls of Jamaica ginger.

Figs, finely chopped, may be added to plain fritter batter, fried brown in deep fat, dusted with sugar and served with any sauce.

When you want something a little different for the Sunday dessert, try fig ice cream.

To make two quarts, mix one quart of cream with two cups of sugar and partially freeze. Add two cups of fig marmalade (which may be purchased at any fancy grocery store), the juice of one lemon, a teaspoonful of lemon extract and the whites of four eggs which have been beaten to a stiff froth with the invariable pinch of salt added and finish freezing. Some like the addition of a teaspoonful of Jamaica ginger extract, but this is largely a matter of personal preference. Ginger flavor blends peculiarly well with the rich sweetness of figs.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

Your answers to girls' questions are so good that I thought I would write to you.

The girls around my own age do not like me, although they are always nice to me when I am with them. I am 18, a stenographer, and I live at home. People older than myself seem to like me, and old ladies and gentlemen do like me, I know.

Boys of my acquaintance all tell me their troubles and ask my advice; they tell me about girls, although, of course, I do not let them mention any names, and do not let them run girls down. The girls do not approve of the friendly way I talk to the boys who, they think, belong to them.

I do not care particularly for the companionship of people, and when I am home in the summer I get out to the woods or away by the beach where I can be alone.

What will I do? Am I not supposed to hold any conversation with any one that my girl friends do not wish me to talk to, or will I just be natural?

My brother's friends talk to me in the same way as any other friends themselves.

ALMOST HOPELESS.

NOW, Almost Hopeless, what are you so hopeless about? Nothing of the least importance that I can see. If you do not care for companionship, why do you worry when you do not get it?

You like the woods and the beach and "all outdoors" better than you do people, and you show it, and people don't like it, that's all.

You are probably cleverer than the other girls you know, and you are deeper and have more sentiment and more heart, and they don't understand you. You're like a hen with a red ribbon around her neck; all the other hens want to tear you to pieces.

But don't you let them do it. Never mind whether they like you or not; you like them, and be nice to them and don't let them see if they bore you, and they'll like you all right.

You'll probably marry some man older than yourself and be happy with him and make him happy.

In the meantime just go on and be natural and wholesome and agreeable and you'll be happy.

Only don't think too much about yourself. That's fatal.

Annie Laurie

NOVEL LEMON SQUEEZER

Jaws Press in Upon Bisected Fruit and Drain It Dry

An ingenious little lemon or orange squeezer that can be carried in the pocket has been invented. It is a compact device but will do its work just as thoroughly as one of general use. A flat wedge-shaped metal box has an outlet at the wide end. A pair of jaws are enclosed in the box with their inner ends pivoted on the same pin that holds a swinging lid to the implement. The outer ends of the jaws have finger clips and a spring keeps them normally apart and resting against the sides of the housing. A lemon is cut in half and placed between the jaws, which are then pressed together and the lemon squeezed dry, the juice running into the tumbler or whatever receptacle is waiting for it, through the outlet already mentioned. When the squeezer is not in use the lid can be pushed over it.

HEIGHT OF HIGHLANDERS

Gordon Regiment's History is of Much Interest

In a new book on the origin of the Gordon Highlanders, Mr. J. M. Bulloch, who has devoted much labor to investigating the records of the Gordons, reproduces the particulars of the first muster of the Gordon Highlanders.

This famous regiment as is well known, was raised by the Duke of Gordon in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and Mr. Bulloch is inclined to shatter one of the most pleasant romances connected with it. He throws doubt on the authenticity of the story that the Duchess of Gordon secured many recruits by giving them a kiss as well as a guinea. She visited the country fairs wearing a Highland bonnet and a regimental jacket.

The complete record of the first list of the Gordon Highlanders has been preserved, with full particulars, and it is interesting in these days, when there is so much said about the deterioration of the race, to note that the height of the first Gordon Highlanders drawn from the healthiest section of the people in Scotland, was less than the height of the average "Tommy" of to-day. Mr. Bulloch says the average height of the Gordon recruits was 5 feet 3 2-3 inches. In the British army to-day the average height of the recruit excluding those under 18 years of age, is 5 feet 6.2 inches. Only five men in the whole list of the original Gordon Highlanders exceeded 6 feet in height.

WHAT IS PROGRESS

Every Scientific Invention Has its Human Side

Now and then some prophet looking only at the mechanical side of progress cries out that there is no real benefit in it. But the mechanical cannot be separated from the human side.

Compare the case of the immigrant of to-day with that of his predecessor of fifty or a hundred years ago. In the former the parting with friends in the old country was like death. The Atlantic voyage was a tremendous undertaking. It was followed by a long and toilsome land journey. Few of the exiles could expect to become wealthy enough to return to their native land. Communication by letter was slow. The telegraph and the cable when first introduced were expensive luxuries. To-day the immigrant crosses the Atlantic in less than a week and is whisked off to his destination by fast train in a few days more. He has speedy communication by mail with his friends at home. He can cable if necessary at a moderate expense. He sends money orders home. He receives parcels of plum pudding at Christmas. A visit to the old land is regarded as no great undertaking.

So every scientific invention has its human side. It lessens farm labor and increases the supply of food. It makes the work of the housewife easier. It makes the house warmer. It enormously increases the output of clothing and other necessaries. If you think these things have no human side try wearing shabby clothes. Talk to some householder who finds it hard to pay house rent and pay the butcher and buy new shoes to take the place of those that the kids wear out so fast.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4636, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

CHERISH HAPPY REMEMBERANCE OF DUKE OF CONNAUGHT'S STAY

Ottawa, June 11.—An address to the Duke of Connaught expressing appreciation of his services as Governor-General was moved by Premier Borden in the House this morning. It was seconded by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Both leaders made eloquent speeches and the address was passed amidst enthusiastic cheers. The address reads:

"We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects the members of the Commons of Canada in parliament assembled, desire to approach your Royal Highness with an expression of the deep regret with which we have learned that your official connection with this country is about to cease.

"We beg to assure your Royal Highness of the deep appreciation with which we have witnessed your assiduous care over the affairs of the Dominion as His Majesty's representative in the high office of Governor-General.

Showed High Devotion.

"In visiting every portion of the Dominion, and in the earnest endeavor to acquire by personal contact with all classes of the community a full and accurate knowledge of the varied conditions prevailing in this country, and of the purpose and aspirations which animate our national life, your Royal Highness has but given another evidence of that high devotion to duty which has always inspired your actions and has ever been associated with your career.

"The Canadian people will not fail to cherish a happy remembrance of the deep and practical interest which your Royal Highness has invariably manifested in literature, art and industrial pursuits in the Dominion, as well as in all philanthropic and charitable undertakings; and they recognize most fully that your Royal Highness has always been ready to associate yourself with every movement designed to improve the conditions and add to the happiness of those to whom has been entrusted the great task and duty of possessing and developing this portion of the Empire."

ROUSING CON. MEETING AT OPERA HOUSE

annum instead of having it given away to private individuals who would have lived in luxury on the proceeds and compelled the former owners to work like slaves to pay for what they had really formerly owned. The same thing occurred here at Burleigh Falls. This power was created and maintained by the people. Here, is power worth, after all expenses are paid, not less than $60,000 a year clear, yet it was given away by the Laurier Government to a few political favorites to whom it was leased for 59 years at one dollar a year, making a total sum of $59. It seems incredible. When he looked into it, Mr. Burnham said, and begged the present Minister of Canals to adopt means to restore this immense treasure to the people, the Minister was astounded and like a faithful trustee has taken means to restore it to the people. Now $60,000 for 59 years in interest and sinking fund on not less than one million dollars, the real value of the power given away. It would have been better to have given the power to the lumber companies who would have saved large sums in driving and could have established at Burleigh mills which would have given employment to a large number of people, but to give this power away to a Company without any obligations whatever to develop it and with no responsibility attaching to it whatever except the payment of a total sum of $59 is almost unequalled in governmental robbery.

Mr. Burnham thrashed this out fully in the House of Commons, before the ex-Minister of Canals, but there was no explanation forthcoming. The facts were plain. This is an example, he said, of what it means to the people to have honest trustees instead of those who deliberately rob the people in order to enrich themselves and to obtain campaign funds and what it means to others who get rake offs of large sums which go to make up the private fortunes of people who have grown rich without having ever explained how they got the money. It is because of these facts that public ownership has grown to be what it is. Public ownership and control was forced upon the peoples who could only save their own property for the general advantage by taking hold of it and working it themselves. It will always be to the glory of the Whitney party that they broke up private monoply in this Province and honestly administered the property of the people. It will always be to the undying glory of Sir James Whitney that he was above temptation, either of money or ambition, and was content to preserve to the people the immense blessing of a sound administration of their great natural resources for their own benefit and to preserve in other respects an absolutely stainless administration. To overthrown a government which no doubt has its shortcomings for all human beings however great have their shortcomings—to overthrow a Government which has been of enormous public benefit to the people as this has, would be more like an act of national suicide than an exercise of electrial franchise. Mr. Rowell is no doubt a good man. He has several good men under him, but what people would exchange the three less boon of a great and successful administration for the administration of one who has yet to show that he is worthy to hold Sir James Whitney's coat.

Power at cost for the people means power for the farmer delivered on his farm, in his house, in his barns, in his barn-yard, in his fields. It means to him a saving of hundreds a year. It is shown in Western Ontario to be of this value to the average farmer. It will be so here. Hydro power means also the furnishing of cheap power to the large manufacturer and to the small manufacturer, and the householder. In a word it is the most wonderful feat of administration that has ever been invented or discovered in any country in the world and should alone preserve to the people the present administration in Toronto.

The meeting closed with the customary cheers for the notables and the National Anthem.

Arctic Fur Harvest

Captain Bernier, the Arctic explorer, stated, after a trip to Baffin Land that he was absolutely convinced that Canada has an inexhaustible harvest of furs and other commercial commodities along her northern boundaries.

"I brought back with me," he said, "a full cargo of furs, ivory, fish and oil. There is a harvest up there that Canada of the future will be glad of, for it is boundless. Of the furs I brought back, the foxes, blue and white, are the best, but there are some very fine bearskins and sealskins."

Steam For Removing Creases

Steam is an excellent thing for removing creases from gowns or coats that have been packed away. Fix up a line in the bathroom, hang the creased clothes on it close to the window, then let the hot-water tap run until the room is full of steam, leave for an hour or two, then dry the clothes in the open air and press on the wrong side with a warm iron.

To Prevent Dust

Spread damp cloths over each register whenever the furnace is shaken.

Local Girl Hurt

A young lady of this city but now residing in Toronto a few days ago got off a King street car in that city, in front of a skyscrape in process of construction. A big chunk of plaster fell from the fifteenth story and struck her on the head. The lady was partly stunned but has since recovered

The Late M. R. Kidd.

The body of the late M. R. Kidd, who passed away at his home in McLean, Sask., on Sunday last, arrived here last night by C.P.R. The funeral will take place from the Murray street Baptist church at 2.30 this afternoon. Services in the church at 2 o'clock.

Mariposa Man Hurt

Lindsay Post: An accident which might have been attended with fatal results, occurred this morning south of Oakwood. Mr. Edward Jackson was driving a team attached to a wagon loaded with poles when they ran away. The young man fell through the waggon and received a bad shaking up, besides receiving a painful injury to one of his knees. It was thought at first that he was dead.

Well Known Traveller Here.

Mr. H. Lambert, representing the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. of Brocton, Mass, was in the city yesterday calling on Mr. John Kylie the Hunter street shoeman. Mr. Lambert, in conversation with The Times yesterday, noted that next July, he will have been twenty-three consecutive years with the firm he travels for. They employ 3000 people and turn out 10,000 to 12,000 pairs of shoes daily.

A Correction.

In our issue of yesterday appeared an article referring to Mr. Fallahee, representative of the Toronto Bituminous Paving Co., who is now in the city. This article might be misleading in the significance of its purport. Speaking of local paving contracts, Mr. Fallahee is made to say that "he is willing, in fact anxious that the city, should it so desire do the grading, etc." What Mr. Fallahee said was that his firm was willing for contractors under proper bonds do the work of grading, curb and gutter work.

Former Local Man Back.

Dr. Crevier, of Montreal, who was formerly a veterinary surgeon here on Simcoe street, and afterwards, for many years, "vet" of the Detroit Fire Department, but now one of Montreals big real estate owners, is a guest at the White House. "Doc." is the same old "two and sixpence." He held an informal levee at the White House yesterday that was largely attended. He is accompanied by his brother, Joe. They leave to-day for Detroit where they will call on Messrs. W. Lundy and Chas. Kempf secretary of the Detroit Stove Co. Both of the latter are old Peterborough boys.

Local Cattle Drover Sued

Lindsay Post: A very interesting case came before Judge McMillan at the jury sittings of the Spring Assizes of the County Court Tuesday afternoon in which Wm. R. Hutchings, cattle drover of Haliburton, sued Geo. Perrin, of Peterboro, another cattle drover, for breach of contract and for damages therefrom. It seems the whole action grew out of the sale of some cattle to a commission house in Toronto. Hutchings watched Perrin unload the two carloads of cattle and then that evening offered Perrin $5 for his check from the Commission house saying he would give Perrin $2500 for the check when paid and keep anything beyond that amount or make good himself anything under that. In the morning however, he rued his bargain and got his $5 back so that the deal was off. Later however he offered Perrin $1 for his chances of getting a check for $2375. As in the previous case Hutchings was to have for his own everything beyond that amount and to make up out of his own pocket any shortage below that amount should that occur.

The amount realized was $2350 and the bargain was not carried through. The jury held that the whole transaction was a betting proposition. The counter claim by the defendant was withdrawn by him under this ruling. The court dismissed the action.

COMPANY'S PROPERTIES:

The Southwest Petroleum and Development Company Limited, controls approximately 4,220 acres of Oil Lands situated South and West of the City of Calgary. The Company also owns the surface rights of the North One-half of Legal Sub-division Sixteen (16), Section one (1), Township twenty (20), Range three (3), West of the Fifth Meridian.

FIRST WELL:

The first well of the Company will be drilled on the above-mentioned Legal Subdivision, which is just west of the famous producing Discovery Well of the Calgary Petroleum Products Company, Limited, (the Dingman Company), and arrangements are being made to have this proceeded with.

The following are the Company's holdings, with details and locations: (1). The South One-half of Section Thirty-four (34), Township Twenty (20), Range Two (2), West of the Fifth Meridian. Three Hundred and Twenty acres (320).

Maps may be consulted and further information secured at the office of the undersigned.

The Company's properties are all carefully selected and were picked out at leisure by the original holders (from whom the Company has purchased) long prior to the recent striking of oil in quantity. The vendors of these leases are accepting approximately eight per cent. of the purchase price in cash, and the balance in stock of the Company, for their holdings. This is an evidence of their confidence in the value of the various properties as Oil producers.

The advantage is apparent of such a favorable agreement, as it leaves the Company free to apply incoming funds to development work and legitimate expenses.
